Caribbean Crackles After Castro Tries Venezuela Landing

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — The Caribbean is crackling with a new crisis over what the Venezuelan government calls the landing of a guerrilla force led by Cuban army officers. Two of the officers are prisoners.

The government of President Raul Leoni is pushing ahead with plans to indict Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro on charges of aggression before the Organization of American States and possibly before the United Nations.

This is the first time a South American country has reported capturing Cuban troops on a subversive mission.

The Venezuelan government contends it now has indisputable, concrete proof of Cuban intervention in its internal affairs.

An announcement Friday by Leoni said Cuban army officers led a group of Cuban-trained Venezuelans ashore at dawn last Monday on a lonely beach 90 miles east of Caracas and near a guerrilla mountain hideout.

Venezuelan army troops killed the Cuban commander of the group, a lieutenant, the announcement said. Another officer drowned but two were captured, Leoni reported.

The two were presented at a news conference in Caracas and admitted leading the guerrillas ashore. They said they were Cubans.

A Havana dispatch said the Cuban Foreign Ministry reported it had no official word of the landing and capture of the Cubans. A spokesman said he could neither confirm nor deny the Caracas reports on the basis of present information. The Communist party newspaper Granma published a news account of the Venezuelan announcement but did not comment on it.

The captured pair gives Venezuela added leverage in its quest for collective sanctions against the Havana regime. It has been seeking support for a collective indictment of Castro by the Latin-American nations. It has also lodged complaints with nations trading with Cuba.

Flash Flood Washes Roofs In Tennessee

Cars were washed away and residents had to take to their roofs for safety. No injuries were reported, however, and authorities said the floodwaters had subsided considerably late Saturday.

A rural church was washed away in the Culleoka community south of here. A bolt of lightning split open a grave at a Cleveland, Tenn., cemetery and another knocked stones out of the steeple of Christ Episcopal Church in Nashville.

Authorities here said the Duck River was two feet over flood stage. Thunderstorms were forecast for late Saturday but weather bureau officials expected them to arrive after the rivers and streams had subsided enough to take the rain.

Little Bigsby Creek roared out of its banks and swamped about 30 homes in the fashionable Valewood subdivision of Columbia. The town was isolated for a time by the flood.

Pope Arrives At Fatima, Prays For End To War

FATIMA, Portugal (AP) — Pope Paul VI came to Fatima — a shrine revered by Roman Catholics as the scene of a peace miracle—and prayed Saturday for an end to war, hunger and the stockpiling of arms in a world he said is in danger.

A massive throng knelt before him during an open air Mass just a few feet from the spot where three shepherd children said the Virgin Mary appeared six times in 1917 and told them to pray for peace at a time when World War I was spilling across Europe.

The Pope then returned to Vatican City a little more than 17 hours after his departure and told a throng of Romans in St. Peter's Square, "The stupendous, magnificent visions of the throng at Fatima assures us that these are the ways of peace — prayer, faith, concord."

As the Pope's plane taxied to take off from the Portuguese airfield of Monte Real for his return to Rome, the nose wheel snagged a bush and the aircraft had to be stopped and the bush pulled free. The Pope was unaware of the incident.

At Fatima, the mighty crush of the congregation caused many pilgrims to faint or fall. The Red Cross reported scores of persons lost consciousness or became ill during the 90-minute ceremony marking the 50th anniversary of the apparition of the Virgin Mary.

Heavy clouds over the ceremony scene on a rocky hillside where sheep once grazed. A series of buildings shaped in a horseshoe with a basilica at its center now overlook the scene.

Light rain and drizzle fell intermittently and umbrellas popped open during the Mass and sermon. Near the altar, the infirm, crippled and ailing sat in covered chairs. The Pope blessed them from the altar.

Police estimated there were a million persons in the vicinity of the shrine and another two million spread along the Pope's 25-mile route from Monte Real, where his plane landed, to Fatima.

Seated at the head of the congregation was Sister Lucia de Jesus, the sole survivor of the three peasant children who reported the apparitions, the first one May 13 and the last on Oct. 13 in 1917.

After the Pope's sermon, Sister Lucia, now 60, conversed briefly with the pontiff at the side of a sheltered altar. She kissed his ring. He bestowed his blessing upon her and patted her chubby cheeks.

"I am very sorry I cannot talk with you longer," the pontiff told her. "Tell your bishop anything you want to say to me and he will get the word to me."

The Pope's pilgrimage to Fatima, reported originally by the Vatican as a mission for peace in Vietnam, turned out to be an appeal for peace in the world in general.

Powell Appeals To High Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Adam Clayton Powell turned to the Supreme Court Saturday in his effort to regain the congressional seat from which he was ousted by the House last March 1.

Attorneys for the banished Harlem congressman asked the court to reverse a U.S. District Court ruling which dismissed Powell's suit seeking to overturn the House's action.

In applying to the Supreme Court, Powell's attorneys are bypassing the regular channel of appeals in hopes of getting prompt settlement of the case.

Last month the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia refused to act without a full hearing.

Mayor Of Hannibal Ends Search After Rainstorm

HANNIBAL, Mo. (AP) — The mayor of Hannibal, Harry Musgrove, called a halt to further searching Saturday when a heavy thunderstorm soaked the cavern area where three boys have been missing since Wednesday.

Many of the searchers stayed on the job despite the official halt. One group returned to Murphy's Cave for another look. Others investigated another about half mile south of Murphy's Cave.

Clues to the disappearance of brothers Billy, 11, and Joe Hoag, 13, and Craig Dowell, 13, have been scant.

A sock found in the vicinity of Murphy's Cave Saturday was identical to those worn by one of the boys but it was not of distinctive design, searchers said, and could have belonged to someone else.

There were tentative plans for a giant sweep of the area beginning Sunday morning but these were still in the discussion stage.

Underground rescue teams, led by William Karras, president of the Speleological Society of America, searched passages under the road bed of a new highway being constructed through the south side of Hannibal.

Earth moving equipment had opened several entrances to caves and it was felt the boys might have entered one of the holes.

Bill Bridges, vice commander of Hannibal's Mark Twain Emergency Rescue Squad, said many Hannibal youths play on the steep bluff sometimes digging their own caves.

"These boys have a history of digging. They were carrying a shovel when last seen," Bridges said. He indicated another search would be made of Murphy's Cave.

Operations at Murphy's Cave were abandoned Friday morning after repeated sweeps through the narrow passages turned up no evidence of the boys, although playmates said they were seen entering.

Bridges planned to concentrate on an area of the cave that has been sealed by rockfalls during most of the search. Two police dogs took their handlers to the base of the rockfalls on three occasions but could go no farther.

Rescue workers dug a new entrance to the cave on the far side of the cave-in but a search by underground teams turned up nothing.

The underground search is being conducted by members of the Speleological Society's underground rescue team. Karras brought six members from Washington to join six members of the united from St. Louis.

U.S. Pilots Shoot Down Seven With 'MIG Sweep' For Largest Air Victory

SAIGON (UPI) —U.S. Air Force pilots, carrying out the heaviest attack on North Vietnam in six months, shot down seven Communist jet fighters and probably downed two others Saturday in the biggest American air victory of the war. The pilots staged a massive "MIG sweep" after losing three jets during Hanoi raids Friday.

U.S. military spokesmen said the air battles over the North Vietnam skies erupted as Air Force pilots flying out of Thailand and South Vietnam bases launched their heaviest attack on the Communist territory since last December.

They hit the critical Yen Vien railroad yard six miles northeast of Hanoi and an army barracks 25 miles northwest of the capital in 72 raids.

They also blasted a Communist surface-to-air (SAM) missile site about 15 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone. North Vietnam has started moving the high-reaching missiles launching sites as far south as possible in efforts to counter U.S. B52 raids against North Vietnamese troop concentrations near the border.

For the third day in a row, the giant bombers stayed away from tempting targets along the frontier but hit twice in the Hue area, about 50 miles south of the DMZ.

In the ground war, U.S. Marines battled heavily entrenched North Vietnamese troops on the northern coast of South Vietnam and reported killing 138 in two days of fighting.

The new fighting boosted to about 350 the number of Communists killed since Wednesday on the bloody slopes of Hill 110, a jungle-covered finger commanding infiltration routes from the Communist-held mountains down to the South China Sea about 360 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Leatherneck offensive apparently blunted Communist hopes of moving down along the coast and harassing land communications between the string of Marine bases along the northern shores.

The northern skies were filled with dogfights as U.S. Phantom and Thunderchief jets streaked in from Thailand bases at 700 miles an hour and caught the Soviet-made MIGs one after the other during fresh strikes against the Hanoi area.

All the planes shot out of the sky were MIG17s, the workhorse of the Communist air defense system. There were no immediate reports of American losses in Saturday's raids.

On the ground, U.S. Marines operating out of the embattled outpost of Con Thien, just south of the Demilitarized zone (DMZ), battled a North Vietnamese force and killed 24 Communist soldiers before contact was broken off at Sunday Saturday. The U.S. Marines lost six killed and 35 wounded.

Farther south, U.S. Air Cavalrymen flown into battle killed at least 20 Communists in fighting in the An Lao Valley.

In Saturday's big air victory, U.S. spokesmen said, Air Force F105 Thunderchief jets destroyed five of the Communist MIGs and scored two other probable kills. F4C Phantom jets shot down two other MIG17s.

Spokesmen termed the action the biggest victory of the war for American pilots.

Last Jan. 2 Col. Robin Olds, one of the top U.S. air aces, led a "MIG sweep" of Phantom jets from Thailand in which seven Communist jet fighters were downed. But Saturday's tally also included two "probables."

Chances Of Rain At 60 Per Cent

The U.S. Weather Bureau has forecast that the probability of rainfall, in the form of showers and thunderstorms, is about 60 per cent today.

Should that forecast be correct there is a good chance that outdoor activity would have to be curtailed at least to an extent.

However, weather forecasters indicate that chance of rainfall will have decreased to about 20 per cent by tonight, a somewhat normal ratio of day to day probability in the spring and summer, thereby giving rise to the possibility of a good start for the work week.

Temperatures will be in the 80-85 range today, with the lows tonight 60-64.

High in Monroe Saturday, according to the Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field, was 92 and the low, recorded Saturday morning, was 73.

WAVING FLAGS, CARRYING signs and singing, marchers move down Fifth Avenue in New York City Saturday in a march to show support of American servicemen in Vietnam. Central Park is at left. One estimate said the number of marchers could be as high as 250,000. (AP Wirephoto)

Human Waves Of Marchers Show Support For U.S. Troops

NEW YORK (AP) — Halfway around the world from the battlefields of Vietnam, a human wave of marchers coursed down Fifth Avenue for eight hours Saturday in a flag waving, singing declaration of support for American servicemen engaging the enemy.

The parade, coming as a rebuttal to antiwar demonstrations here and in California last month, drew countless thousands of marchers and spectators.

Unlike last April 15 when police estimated the antiwar demonstrators at 125,000 strong, police officials declined Saturday to issue even an unofficial estimate. Parade officials then put the antiwar marchers at double the public figure and a long debate followed.

Seven hours after Saturday's parade had begun at noon, the New York Daily News estimated the number of marchers at 75,000 and said as many more were waiting in marshalling areas to step off.

The New York Times estimated the marchers numbered more than 60,000 at 6 p.m. and thousands were backed up. Both papers used mechanical counters.

A parade official said the marchers passed the reviewing stand at 20,000 to 25,000 an hour, which would more than double the newspaper estimate. He said some estimates ranged to 250,000.

The march was not without incidents.

Two men were smeared with tar and feathers, a demonstrator tried to set fire to a makeshift Soviet flag and another youth tried to burn a Viet Cong flag.

Ray Gimmler, a New York City Fire Department captain and Marine combat veteran, organized the parade under the theme of "Support Our Boys in Vietnam."

He emphasized that the parade was not a demonstration backing any particular stand on American's involvement in the Vietnam war.

"Peace is not the issue," he said. "Every sane man is for peace. The idea is to back our fighting men in Vietnam."

All along the parade route American flags were hung, and many signs bearing legends of support for U.S. fighting men in Vietnam were displayed in shop and apartment windows.

Police said a man they described as an "antiparade demonstrator" was set upon as he tried to invade the marching ranks. He was doused with warm tar and covered from head to foot with feathers.

Another man also was partially covered with tar and feathers before he made it known to his tormentors that he was not against the parade.

In both instances involving flag burnings, the banners were doused by police and only mild pushing and jeering ensued.

Most of the marchers carried American flags either brought from home or were purchased from hawkers lining the parade route.

At United Nations headquarters, off the parade route, some 75 teen-agers carrying American flags and signs supporting U.S. troops in Vietnam tried to demonstrate in front of the Secretariat building, but were evicted by security officers.

One "Stop Bombing" sign hung out of a third-floor window of an apartment at the parade's uptown assembly area. It was bombarded with eggs thrown by marchers. One window was broken.

Tax Probable, Fowler Says

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler conceded Saturday the proposed tax surcharge probably will be imposed sometime later than the July 1 effective date asked by President Johnson. He said also that Vietnam spending probably will exceed the $22 billion budget for it.

The secretary insisted, however, that the Treasury cannot now judge how great Vietnam outlays in fiscal 1968 will be. Economic consultants of the Business Council on Friday forecast a $5-billion jump and attributed the estimate to government sources.

Marines, Vietnam Reds Dig In After Stiff Battle

CON THIEN, Vietnam (AP) — A tank-supported battalion of U.S. Marines and a strong North Vietnamese force dug in Saturday night after a three-hour battle at point blank range in hills below the demilitarized zone.

"I think we just dented them," a Marine officer said. "They'll come back."

The battlefield was about 3,000 yards southeast of Con Thien, a forward American command post, and three miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The Americans, the 600 or so men of the 1st Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment, ran into the enemy troops during a sweep at 3 p.m.

The Marines were not expecting major contact and were almost walking over enemy positions when heavy fire erupted among them.

Staff Sgt. Haber Leche, Beckley, W.Va., said: "They were hidden under the hedgerow. After we were hit we couldn't bring in tanks because we would kill our own men. Every time we moved, they stood up and threw grenades at us."

One squad was severely mauled in an unsuccessful attempt to take out a line of enemy bunkers. These were later neutralized by the guns of two tanks that moved up to within five yards of the bunkers.

Newsmen who flew to the battle area found the 50-yard-wide landing zone under heavy small arms fire. Tanks were firing cannister rounds at enemy soldiers within 15 yards of the zone's edge.

Helicopters were under continuous fire but they managed to evacuate all the wounded Marines.

At nightfall the fighting slackened but later in the evening more Marines were reported wounded.

There was no announcement of the casualty count on either side.

The fight followed several days and nights of intense mortar and artillery fire on Con Thien and Gio Linh, a U.S. artillery base seven miles to the east.

Enemy mortars hammered Con Thien all day Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Bochmuth said: "They are stepping up their harassment and interdiction fire against us. We expect the pressure to continue indefinitely."

North Vietnam has started moving the high-reaching missiles launching sites as far south as possible in efforts to counter U.S. B52 raids against North Vietnamese troop concentrations near the border.

For the third day in a row, the giant bombers stayed away from tempting targets along the frontier but hit twice in the Hue area, about 50 miles south of the DMZ.

In the ground war, U.S. Marines battled heavily entrenched North Vietnamese troops on the northern coast of South Vietnam and reported killing 138 in two days of fighting.

The new fighting boosted to about 350 the number of Communists killed since Wednesday on the bloody slopes of Hill 110, a jungle-covered finger commanding infiltration routes from the Communist-held mountains down to the South China Sea about 360 miles northeast of Saigon.

The Leaterneck offensive apparently blunted Communist hopes of moving down along the coast and harassing land communications between the string of Marine bases along the northern shores.

The northern skies were filled with dogfights as U.S. Phantom and Thunderchief jets streaked in from Thailand bases at 700 miles an hour and caught the Soviet-made MIGs one after the other during fresh strikes against the Hanoi area.

All the planes shot out of the sky were MIG17s, the workhorse of the Communist air defense system. There were no immediate reports of American losses in Saturday's raids.

On the ground, U.S. Marines operating out of the embattled outpost of Con Thien, just south of the Demilitarized zone. (DMZ), battled a North Vietnamese force and killed 24 Communist soldiers before contact was broken off at Sunday Saturday. The U.S. Marines lost six killed and 35 wounded.

Farther south, U.S. Air Cavalrymen flown into battle killed at least 20 Communists in fighting in the An Lao Valley.

In Saturday's big air victory, U.S. spokesmen said, Air Force F105 Thunderchief jets destroyed five of the Communist MIGs and scored two other probable kills. F4C Phantom jets shot down two other MIG17s.

Spokesmen termed the action the biggest victory of the war for American pilots.

Last Jan. 2 Col. Robin Olds, one of the top U.S. air aces, led a "MIG sweep" of Phantom jets from Thailand in which seven Communist jet fighters were downed. But Saturday's tally also included two "probables."

Chances Of Rain At 60 Per Cent

The U. S. Weather Bureau has forecast that the probability of rainfall, in the form of showers and thunderstorms, is about 60 per cent today.

Should that forecast be correct, there is a good chance that outdoor activity would have to be curtailed, at least to an extent.

However, weather forecasters indicate that chances of rainfall will have decreased to about 20 per cent by tonight, a somewhat normal ratio of day to day probability in the spring and summer, thereby giving rise to the possibility of a good start for the work week.

Temperatures will be in the 80-85 range today, with the lows tonight 60-64.

High in Monroe Saturday, according to the Federal Aviation Agency at Selman Field, was 92 and the low, recorded Saturday morning, was 73.

WAVING FLAGS, CARRYING signs and singing, marchers move down Fifth Avenue in New York City Saturday in a march to show support of American servicemen in Vietnam. Central Park is at left. One estimate said the number of marchers is as high as 250,000. (AP Wirephoto)

Human Waves Of Marchers Show Support For U.S. Troops

NEW YORK (AP) — Halfway around the world from the battlefields of Vietnam, a human wave of marchers coursed down Fifth Avenue for eight hours Saturday in a flag waving, singing declaration of support for American servicemen engaging the enemy.

The parade, coming as a rebuttal to antiwar demonstrations here and in California last month, drew countless thousands of marchers and spectators.

Unlike last April 15, when police estimated the antiwar demonstrators at 125,000 strong, police officials declined Saturday to issue even an unofficial estimate. Parade officials then put the antiwar marchers at double the public figure and a long debate followed.

Seven hours after Saturday's parade had begun at noon, the New York Daily News estimated the number of marchers at 75,000 and said as many more were waiting in marshalling areas to step off.

The New York Times estimated the marchers numbered more than 60,000 at 6 p.m. and thousands were backed up. Both papers used mechanical counters.

A parade official said the marchers passed the reviewing stand at 20,000 to 25,000 an hour, which would more than double the newspaper estimates. He said some estimates ranged to 250,000.

The march was not without incidents.

Two men were smeared with tar and feathers, a demonstrator tried to set fire to a makeshift Soviet flag and another youth tried to burn a Viet Cong flag.

Ray Gimmler, a New York City Fire Department captain and Marine combat veteran, organized the parade under the theme of "Support Our Boys in Vietnam."

He emphasized that the parade was not a demonstration backing any particular stand on American's involvement in the Vietnam war.

"Peace is not the issue," he said. "Every sane man is for peace. The idea is to back our fighting men in Vietnam."

All along the parade route American flags were hung, and many signs bearing legends of support for U.S. fighting men in Vietnam were displayed in shop and apartment windows.

Police said a man they described as an "antiparade demonstrator" was set upon as he tried to invade the marching ranks. He was doused with warm tar and covered from head to foot with feathers.

Another man also was partially covered with tar and feathers before he made it known to his tormentors that he was not against the parade.

In both instances involving flag burnings, the banners were doused by police and only mild pushing and jeering ensued.

Most of the marchers carried American flags either brought from home or were purchased from hawkers lining the parade route.

At United Nations headquarters, off the parade route, some 75 teen-agers carrying American flags and signs supporting U.S. troops in Vietnam tried to demonstrate in front of the Secretariat building, but were evicted by security officers.

One 'Stop Bombing" sign hung out of a third-floor window of an apartment at the parade's uptown assembly area. It was bombarded with eggs thrown by marchers. One window was broken.

Tax Probable, Fowler Says

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler conceded Saturday the proposed tax surcharge probably will be imposed sometime later than the July 1 effective date asked by President Johnson. He said also that Vietnam spending probably will exceed the $22 billion budget for it.

The secretary insisted, however, that the Treasury cannot now judge how great Vietnam outlays in fiscal 1968 will be. Economic consultants of the Business Council on Friday forecast a $5-billion jump and attributed the estimate to government sources.

Marines, Vietnam Reds Dig In After Stiff Battle

CON THIEN, Vietnam (AP) — A tank-supported battalion of U.S. Marines and a strong North Vietnamese force dug in Saturday night after a three-hour battle at point-blank range in hills below the demilitarized zone.

"I think we just dented them," a Marine officer said. "They'll come back."

The battlefield was about 4,000 yards southeast of Con Thien, a forward American command post, and three miles south of the demilitarized zone.

The Americans—the 600 or so men of the 1st Battalion, 9th Marine Regiment—ran into the enemy troops during a sweep at 3 p.m.

The Marines were not expecting major contact and were almost walking over enemy positions when heavy fire erupted among them.

Staff Sgt. Hubert Leslie, Beckley, W.Va., said: "They were hidden under the hedge rows. After we were hit, we couldn't bring in tanks because we would kill our own men. Every time we moved, they stood up and threw grenades at us."

One squad was severely mauled in an unsuccessful attempt to take out a line of enemy bunkers. These were later neutralized by the guns of two tanks that moved up to within five yards of the bunkers.

Newsmen who flew to the battle area found the 50-year-wide landing zone under heavy small arms fire. Tanks were firing cannister rounds at enemy soldiers within 15 yards of the zone's edge.

Helicopters were under continuous fire, but they managed to evacuate all the wounded Marines.

At nightfall the fighting slackened, but later in the evening more Marines were reported wounded.

There was no announcement of the casualty count on either side.

The fight followed several days and nights of intensive mortar and artillery fire on Con Thien and Gio Linh, a U.S. artillery base seven miles to the east.

Enemy mortars hammered Con Thien all day Saturday.

Maj. Gen. Bruno A. Bochmuth said: "They are stepping up their harassment and interdiction fire against us. We expect the pressure to continue indefinitely."

Monroe Man Killed In Vietnam Fight

"I'm over here for a purpose — to keep Communism from spreading — if we weren't here they'd just keep coming and coming."

These were the words of Specialist 4th John E. Carmack in a letter to his wife just weeks before he was killed by enemy small arms fire Thursday near the Cambodian border in Vietnam.

"I wrote to him telling him I didn't understand the war, and that I missed him" his tearful wife Rebecca said, "but he wrote back and balled me out for questioning the war which he so strongly believed in."

Carmack enlisted in the Army the summer of 1966 and had been in Vietnam since October during that time her had been wounded twice and received the Army's Purple Heart.

Taking part in fighting in the Mekong Delta and in recent action near the Cambodian Border Carmack's wife said her 22 - year - old husband never complained about the situation.

ALEXANDER NO BEATNIK

NEW YORK (UPI) — In the Fourth Century B.C. Alexander the Great violated Greek custom by shaving. He liked the results so well that he insisted his soldiers follow his example to protect them against enemy swordsmen who might seize their beards and use them as leverage for shaving their heads off their shoulders.

Rep. Passman Asks Money For Channel

When presenting a delegation representing the Lower Mississippi Valley Flood Control Association to testify before the House Public Works Appropriations Subcommittee, U. S. Rep. Otto E. Passman also used the occasion to request the appropriation of $8,700,000 for the Ouachita River nine - foot navigation channel project for the next fiscal year, a minimum of $40,000 for planning on the Monroe "seawall," and $160,000 to continue planning of the Cocodrie pumping plant in Concordia Parish.

Passman told the committee the "all - important" Monroe seawall project has a benefits-to cost ratio of two and one-half to one, and that $1,160,000 will be required to complete the project.

The request appropriation for the Cocodrie pumping plant would provide for completion of 70 per cent of the advance engineering and design, he said.

Passman supported the budget request of $77,400,000 for flood control and related work on the Lower Mississippi River and its tributaries. He pointed out to the committee that this program, which he termed "one of our most advanced and most profitable flood - control undertakings, "has reached a new high of $6.25 in benefits for each one dollar in expenditures.

The program benefits the entire nation, he said. He noted that water from 31 states and two Canadian provinces is drained through the Mississippi River system being discharged through the river delta in Louisiana.

Passman expressed confidence that the committee would approve the funds necessary for "carrying on without delay" the Lower Valley flood - control program.

Employment Gain, Loss Is Reported

The Louisiana State Employment Service Saturday took note of "remarkable gains in contract construction, transportation, retail trade, service and government" during April in Ouachita Parish and credited it with an advance in employment from 34,000 to 34,225 persons or 225 over the month of March.

The employment service, in its publication "Labor Area Trends" reported that employment was 875 over this time last year.

But there was a cautious note. Said "Trends", "In manufacturing, fluctuations have been noted in most of the industrial groups. These fluctuations have resulted in a loss of 75 workers for the month and 125 for the year."

The publication said that seasonal loss in cotton seed and soybean milling was offset by the gains in firms manufacturing summer beverages.

At the same time, there was an upturn in unemployment also. Joblessness was put at 1,900 in April, an increase of 200 over the revised March level of 1,700. A rise in the number of entrants and re-entrants into the work force was the prime factor in this increase, said the employment service.

The outlook, according to the agency, is for "continued rise in employment" for both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing in the next 60 days. But college and high school graduates are expected to augment the local labor supply and in so doing will also increase the area's unemployment, the service said.

Argentina, like the United States, had a Wild West history with the appropriate symbols stagecoaches, westbound wagons and Indian raids.

Passman Gives Talk To Life Underwriters Here

U.S. Rep. Otto E. Passman of the Fifth Congressional District of Louisiana was the featured speaker of the convention of the Louisiana Association of Life Underwriters in the convention's final session here in the ballroom of the Paragon Club Saturday.

Passman told the Underwriters, "I am not speaking to you as a Democrat or as a Republican, but as an American. I wish to speak to you frankly about changes that are leading us into a socialistic state . . . "

Passman went on to say that he is first a politician and is proud of it, however that Americans do not spend enough time participating in politics to control politicians. He said that "Politicians control your lives not only from the cradle to the grave, but also one step beyond the grave . . . Therefore, you will get just as bad government as you are willing to stand for and just as good government as you are willing to fight for . . . If the form of government envisioned and brought into being by our Founding Fathers is to be retained, it will be up to you."

Passman went on to point out that where republican forms of government have been lost in the past, "it has been through the pretense of a 'share-the-wealth' program, a blind faith in public officials and apathy on the part of those who could act but did not."

He said, "If I should be called upon to sumarize what is going on in Washington, this would be my description:

"The Supreme Court is playing hell and rewriting the Constitution in its own image.

"The Big Chief of the 'Great Society' is playing God, bowing to professional demonstrators and their fellow trouble makers, practicing economy by turning off a few outside lights at the White House, and replacing Americanism with socialism at lightening speed.

"And, the Congress is rubber-stamping just about all liberty-destroying and socialistic proposals submitted to it by the President."

He went on to say that "the 'Great Society' has done nothing to eliminate racial strife, but much to encourage it."

Passman then critisized the "Great Society's" welfare and spending programs and callde for a balanced budget and real economy in government.

He said also that "much of the legislation being rammed through the Congress by the 'Great Society' architects is as socialistic as any legislation to be found in any socialistic country . . . The 'Great Society's' programs are a political give away—a redistribution of the people's wealth and savings."

He pointed out that not only did the government's public debt constitute the amount of U.S. indebtedness but also our statutory obligations as "veterans benefits," "Retirement pay" and "interest on the public debt."

Passman called the federal government's expenditures "Fantastic' Frightening! But factual." He pointed out that "the Administration is considering a Wage Subsidy, to be known as the 'Negative Income Tax' to equalize living standards regardless of an individual's ability or initiative . . . Any person not capable of realizing what this would do to our economy and country should be under the care of a psychiatrist."

Passman concluded by asking "Can such a thing happen in America? I say to you frankly, it is happening now! And the trend can be reversed only if we are willing to take a position and remove from public office the demagogues and socialists whether they are from Louisiana or elsewhere. The wise use of the ballot box is the only way the trend can be reversed."

Inspection Lanes Will Be Set Up

Voluntary auto inspection lanes will be set up June 10 and June 17 at various shopping centers in the Twin Cities area by the Independent Garage Owners of Monroe, a spokesman said this week.

The purpose of the lanes is to give a ten point check to all vehicles. A check recommended by the National Safety Council. The ten points include, brakes, front and back lights, steering, tires, exhaust system, windshield wipers, mirrors and horn.

R. L. (Bob) Jackson, state president of the IGO and recently appointed by Gov. John McKeithen to the Louisiana Highway Safety Commission, emphasized that the inspection is voluntary and that no compulsory action is required by card owners.

"We just want to prevent deaths," said Jackson, garage owner in Monroe.

A car completely rebuilt by IGO members will be given away to someone whose car is being inspected, Jackson said.

The commission will recommend "comprehensive legislation" at the next regular session of the legislature, including stringent measures on the inspection sticker issue in the state, Jackson said.

Still A Puzzling Disease Group

Hepatitis Known Long Time

Editor's Note — Hepatitis, mononucleosis or just plain jaundice—call it what you will, it's a puzzlement. This disease group has been around for centuries, and still no one knows the cause. Fifty thousand Americans have hepatitis every year, but fortunately it is seldom fatal. Researchers may be closing in on it.

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Just 751 years after the birth of Christ, Pope Zacharias wrote of a strange infectious jaundice spreading across Germany. Doctors didn't know for sure what caused it.

Today, 1,200 years and an age of medical marvels later, what is probably the same disease is known to circle the world. Doctors still don't know for sure what causes it.

They used to call it jaunisse des camps, or kriegsikterus, or just plain jaundice. Today they would probably call it infectious hepatitis. But they would know as well that it is only one of a block of troublesome ailments that mimic each other and haunt the community life of mankind.

BY VIRUSES

These diseases are probably caused by viruses, but no one can find the viruses. They infect humans, but apparently can't be passed on to experimental animals. Doctors have searched for the way they are transmitted and have indicated a long list of carriers—from shellfish to cockroaches, bad water and bad blood, food and chimpanzees.

The names are familiar—infectious hepatitis, serum hepatitis, infectious mononucleosis, and probably others. But they are like a distant and mysterious uncle who drops in to visit, but has no known address.

Scientists believe that there are two—well, at least two--viruses that cause hepatitis, one for infectious hepatitis and one for the serum disease. The trouble is finding them.

Another disease that wanders the world looking for a definition is infectious mononucleosis. Its symptoms and signs mimic a dozen diseases—from diphtheria to leukemia, from appendicitis back to hepatitis. It has been called the kissing disease and glandular fever.

Haunting the men who search for the virus of infectious mononucleosis is the case of the common cold. They used to think that the common cold was caused by just one virus, too. But now it seems likely that 150 different viruses produce colds. They wonder in searching for a virus in infectious mononucleosis is if its many symptoms are not also caused by many viruses.

VERY HARDY

The hepatitis agents—whatever they are—are very hardy. Serum hepatitis can resist 140 degrees fahrenheit for as long as 60 minutes. It can lurk on otherwise sterilized instruments or utensils. Puny amounts of blood can transmit the disease on a tattoo artist's needle, a drug addict's hypodermic, or a blood transfusion.

Infectious hepatitis inhabits the blood and the feces of an infected person. It can be passed on by injection or by oral route. Typically, a child picks it up at school and brings it home where haphazard sanitary habits spread it through the family. Or an infected person who handles food in a restaurant spreads the disease wholesale. Or people drink sewage-contaminated water, or eat shellfish from sewage-polluted shoreland. Some men who handle chimpanzees imported for research purposes have been infected, leading some researchers to believe that the chimpanzee can carry the disease.

More than half of the veitims of hepatitis are children or young adults. There appears to be a high degree of immunity in older people, although cases can be severe when they occur in upper age groups. Mostly hepatitis is a mild disease, with little chance of severe after effects. But it can kill, too. One in 1,000 cases is fatal.

Ironically, even in this day of modern medicine, the best a doctor can do for his patient is to put him to bed, order plenty of rest, and a diet designed to support the recovery of the patient's liver. The liver is the target of the disease. One of the signs of hepatitis is liver damage. But the liver is a remarkable organ, and has the power not only to heal itself, but to regenerate its damaged parts.

Doctors can help protect an exposed person with gamma globulin, the blood fraction that contains antibodies. This blood fraction from people who have had hepatitis can offer a share of someone else's imunity, and may even make a specific case milder.

Immunity is one of the prime reasons for believing there are at least two heptatis viruses. A person who has had infectious hepatitis is not immune to serum hepatitis, and vice versa.

The practiced eye of the doctor, backed up with laboratory tests, is the only way to diagnose the disease. The diagnosis is not easy because the symptoms, even the jaundice, often seem like something else.

One of the prime "somethings else" is infectious mononucleosis. This is a disease of many faces—and some think it may be many diseases as well. It has the sore throat of diphtheria, the stiff neck of convulsions of meningitis, the stomach pains of appendicitis, or pleurisy, or worse. It may present the cough of severe respiratory disease, or the rash of secondary syphillis. The lymph nodes may appear enlarged as they do in leukemia, and the white blood cell count is high as well. One researcher even suggested that in earlier days some of the spontaneous cures reported in leukemia might actually have been misdiagnosed and might have been cases of infectious mononucleosis.

Now doctors can recognize infectious mononucleosis by a strange and characteristic blood cell pattern. Certain of the white blood cells—the lymphocytes—increase in number and some become swollen.

Researchers still debate how infectious mononucleosis is passed on. Some say it is passed on by passionate kissing, and some think it is the eating utensils of an infected person that transmits the disease.

The United States may be approaching a critical period with both infectious mononucleosis and infectious hepatitis.

The incidence of mononucleosis is on a long-term rise—and may strike as many as 10,000 victims a year. Infectious hepatitis seems to be on a seven-year cycle—and the next peak is due next year or late this year. Normally it strikes 50,000 Americans a year.

There is still hope that researchers somewhere might find a research animal that can contract either of the two look-alike diseases. And when they do, they will have set the stage for the defeat of both of them.

In lieu of an experimental animal for hepatitis work, researchers have with great care worked with human volunteers—keeping always in mind that the disease can be fatal, especially in older people.

House GOP Chiefs Drop Policy Of Wooing Dixie Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican leaders, scenting congressional control in 1968 elections, have dropped their policy of wooing Southern Democrats and are putting long-range goals ahead of possible 1967 legislative victories.

While the old GOP-Southern Democrats coalition may function where the two groups have parallel interests, the cozy, consistent teamwork that marked the heyday of former GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and former Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., is gone.

Republican leaders have insisted since they picked up 47 seats last November that they were not going to deal with Southern Democrats to bring the "Great Society" to a halt.

The current maneuvering over the extension of federal education programs has shown that Republicans, while backing a states rights alternative that would naturally appeal to many Southerners, are not listening to Southern offers of a deal in exchange for votes.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the House GOP leader from Michigan, said in an Ohio speech last week that Republicans are following "my Southern strategy."

"The strategy is to drive Southern Democrats in the House into the arms of the administration—where they belong —on votes that will hurt them in their home congressional districts," he explained.

He said "this strategy runs exactly counter to the old pattern of a Southern Democrat-Republican coalition." And he added: "I think it is far better to lose a few legislative battles and win the next election."

In last November's election Republicans gained a net of six Southern House seats for a total of 23 out of 106.

Although other GOP gains were balanced off by defeats, the six-seat gain exactly matched the number of Southern administration supporters no longer in Congress this year. As a result, the administration can count regularly on only about 20 of the 83 remaining Southern Democrats.

House Democratic leaders have been making strenuous overtures to Southern members, and on the first major vote of this year—the increase in the debt ceiling—picked up a number of heretofore hostile Southerners.

It is votes like this that Republicans fell will eventually work to their advantage, among conservative Southerners. A Southern Republican is more helpful to them than a Southern Democrat who sometimes—but not always—votes with them.

"We won't win as many legislative fights as we could if we resorted to the old coalition tactics," Ford said. "But it's the big prize that counts, and that's what we're after.

"The big prize is control of at least one house of Congress and control of the White House," he said. He noted his party needs only 31 more seats to win House control.

The GOP strategy and the increase in GOP strength in the South are working to the advantage of the administration, at least over the short haul.

House GOP Chiefs Drop Policy Of Wooing Dixie Demos

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican leaders, scenting congressional control in 1968 elections, have dropped their policy of wooing Southern Democrats and are putting long-range goals ahead of possible 1967 legislative victories.

While the old GOP-Southern Democrats coalition may function where the two groups have parallel interests, the cozy, consistent teamwork that marked the heyday of former GOP Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana and former Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., is gone.

Republican leaders have insisted since they picked up 47 seats last November that they were not going to deal with Southern Democrats to bring the "Great Society" to a halt.

The current maneuvering over the extension of federal education programs has shown that Republicans, while backing a states rights alternative that would naturally appeal to many Southerners, are not listening to Southern offers of a deal in exchange for votes.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, the House GOP leader from Michigan, said in an Ohio speech last week that Republicans are following "my Southern strategy."

"The strategy is to drive Southern Democrats in the House into the arms of the administration—where they belong—on votes that will hurt them in their home congressional districts," he explained.

He said "this strategy runs exactly counter to the old pattern of a Southern Democrat-Republican coalition." And he added: "I think it is far better to lose a few legislative battles and win the next election."

In last November's election Republicans gained a net of six Southern House seats for a total of 23 out of 106.

Although other GOP gains were balanced off by defeats, the six-seat gain exactly matched the number of Southern administration supporters no longer in Congress this year. As a result, the administration can count regularly on only about 20 of the 83 remaining Southern Democrats.

House Democratic leaders have been making strenuous overtures to Southern members, and on the first major vote of this year—the increase in the debt ceiling—picked up a number of heretofore hostile Southerners.

It is votes like this that Republicans fell will eventually work to their advantage, among conservative Southerners. A Southern Republican is more helpful to them than a Southern Democrat who sometimes—but not always—votes with them.

"We won't win as many legislative fights as we could if we resorted to the old coalition tactics," Ford said. "But it's the big prize that counts, and that's what we're after.

"The big prize is control of at least one house of Congress and control of the White House," he said. He noted his party needs only 31 more seats to win House control.

No Federal Aid For St. Francis

St. Francis Hospital, Monroe, has been declared ineligible to receive federal funds under the medicare program, a report from Washington said Saturday.

The ruling was handed down by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which said the hosptial had not complied with anti - discrimination provisions of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

St. Francis and five other hospitals, two in Mississippi, two in Texas and one in Alabama, declined an opportunity for a hearing and offered no challenge to the government's findings, according to the welfare department.

The cutoff becomes effective in 30 days.

Realtor Week Celebration

Local Realtors Schedule Big Events For Observance

"The Time Is Right to Buy a Home" is the theme of the 1967 Realtor Week celebration by the 74 members of The Monroe-West Monroe Board of Realtors, Irene Reid, board president announced Saturday.

In honor of Realtor Week, a number of community-wide observances have been scheduled as Realtors in this area join with their more than 85,000 colleagues across the nation directing public attention to their calling and the special character of the services they render.

"A Realtor," said Mrs. Reid, "is a professional in real estate who subscribes to a strict Code of Ethics as a member of the local and state boards and of the National Association of Real Estate Boards."

The term Realtor, which is a coined term and a service mark registered with the U.S. Patent Office under the trademark laws, can be used only by members of the National Association and its local boards. Since is is a trademark, it should always be capitalized as are other trademarks or proper nouns, she said.

In discussing the Code of Ethics, Mrs. Reid continued that "it was one of the first such codes adopted in the history of American business. Under its 30 articles, which cover all aspects of real estate transactions, Realtors pledge fair treatment and their total real estate knowledge to both parties of a contract — the buyer and seller."

Realtor Week will continue through Saturday, May 27, Mrs. Reid explained. "The slogan this year underscores the resourcefulness of Realtors throughout the nation. For the prospective buyer who is experiencing a little difficulty in securing financing for property, the Realtor can suggest new money sources. For the family which needs more space for growth, the Realtor can find just the home which will fill their needs, both as to size and cost."

"Two thirds of American families own their homes, a proportion virtually unrivaled anywhere in the world," Mrs. Reid declared. "The advantages of home ownership, in convenience, in security, and as an investment, are boundless."

The local board was founded on December [illegible]. The following were the original charter members: Luther Reed, the late Wallace D. Ezell, B. S. Boswell, Robert M. Breard Jr., H. Rosenheim, E. W. Cruse, Lela King Breard, E. R. Breard, Irene Reid, George Guerriero, the late F. B. Johnston, Alan F. Sugar, E. A. [illegible] and the late Mrs. Myrtle Porter, W. M. Kramer, C. E. Buckley, Louise Gilliland, Lillian Davis, Bourland & Bourland, B. A. Gentry, Alice David and Bobbye Galloway. The parent group, the National Association of Real Estate Boards, was founded in 1908. With offices in Washington, D.C. and Chicago, NAREB furnishes Realtors with the latest information in real estate developments, market conditions, economic trends [illegible]

Some of the events scheduled for the local observance of Realtor Week include:

Tuesday, May [illegible] local committee will meet with State President Phillip Zollinger along with the board of directors. Also to be present to welcome Zollinger will be Miss Ouachita Parish, Ouachita High School Lionettes and band.

Wednesday, May 17, Women's Council will hold a luncheon at noon at the Paragon Club.

Tuesday, May 23, Frances Hotel Luncheon. Rep. Lawrence Gibbs will interview the following realtors on a KMLB program: Mrs. Irene Reid, Mrs. Bobby Galloway, Jack Fluck, George Guerriero, Nita Brinson, publicity chairman, Mrs. Terece Salley and Miss Ouachita Parish.

Thursday, May [illegible] will be held in Ruston. Friday, May 26, An early bird breakfast is scheduled for 8 a.m. at the Holiday Inn with Attorney D. C. Bernhardt as the guest speaker.

Concert Set At Northeast On Tuesday

A concert by the Chamber Orchestra of Northeast Louisiana State College is scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m.

Euphrates River Floods Villages

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) - Twenty villages in northeastern Syria have been devastated by Euphrates River, an Interior Ministry spokesman announced Saturday.

The new floods have destroyed 200,000 acres of cultivated land, killed thousands of cattle and left 15,000 persons homeless, he said.

Unity Mart Okay Near For Wheat

GENEVA (AP) — Agreement was near Saturday on a new international agreement to replace and broaden the 30-year-old International Wheat Agreement which expires July 31.

The new accord is part of the Kennedy Round of trade talks which are due to end Sunday.

It will be a broader accord than the old one, though it will lack the scope sought by the European Common Market.

The Europeans wanted a system that would virtually freeze price supports for grain farmers all over the world. In return they would have promised grain exporters, including the United States, a fixed share of their market — a share amounting to some seven million tons of grain a year.

Although France is a grain exporter, there is a shortage in the Common Market as a whole — which also includes West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Belgium, and Luxembourg.

There will be two important new features in the agreement: an increase in the world minimum price and establishment of an international aid program. In addition, the International Wheat Council in London will be turned into an International Cereals Council, with the job of preparing the way for wider accords.

Only in recent years have the feed grains — corn, barley, sorghum and others — become important items in world trade.

JUDGE DAWKINS

Memorial To Judge Is Slated

A memorial to the late Judge Benjamin C. Dawkins Sr. will be presented Monday in the U. S. District Court, Western District of Louisiana in Alexandria of which his son Ben C. Dawkins Jr. is now judge.

The memorial was prepared by a committee, chaired by Richard B. Sadler Jr. of the firm of Provosty, Sadler and Scott of Alexandria, and is being presented to the court in honor of Judge Dawkins' "distinguished career of judicial service to the State of Louisiana" which spanned more than half a century in the state and federal courts of this area.

Other members of the committee presenting the memorial are Sam H. Jones, Seth Lewis, J. J. Davidson Jr., Whitfield Jack, James Trousdale and James Sparks of the Monroe firm of Thompson, Thompson and Sparks.

The memorial begins, "May It Please The Court: The death of Benjamin C. Dawkins in the early hours of August 22, 1966 brought to a close a distinguished career of judicial service to the State of Louisiana. Throughout his tenure of office. . .he maintained a tradition of impeccable honesty and integrity. His career has done much to enhance the public's respect for the Courts and for our judicial system."

It goes on to say that "Judge Dawkins was an active and successful practicioner in Monroe, Louisiana, until elected Judge of the then Sixth Judicial District, composed of Ouachita and Morehouse Parishes in 1912. He was elected an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court during his second term as District Judge and took his seat on December 31, 1918. He served as an Associate Justice on this Court until May 17, 1924 when he resigned to accept an appointment by President Coolidge as Judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Louisiana. After his retirement as United States District Judge on May 17, 1953, he continued to perform judicial functions under special assignments to District Courts in Mississippi, Texas and Florida and other states and to the Court of Appeals, Fifth Circuit.

"Although Judge Dawkins will be long remembered as a jurist, his interests were broad and he made other significant contributions which enriched the legal history of Louisiana. . . So significant were his contributions that on May of 1955, he was voted one of the few members emeritus of Council.

"Judge Dawkins was devoted to his profession. He was considerate of counsel appearing before him and attentive to the issues presented by them. Never hasty or impulsive, he gave full consideration to the facts and issues before him and rendered judgment only after painstaking deliberation. His opinions were written in simple and logical language, free of extraneous reflections and ornamentation. As Associate Justice of the Supreme Court, he made substantial contributions to the substantive law of Louisiana. . .

"Judge Dawkins was a man of lofty ideals. he abhorred despotism, fraud and corruption in public office. He had great strength of character and convictions. To him, there could be no compromise in honesty and devotion to duty. Perhaps these qualities were best portrayed in his method of administration of criminal justice. He was renowned for the fact that every offender appearing before him was judged impartially, whether of high or of low estate. He gave no recognition to prominence, wealth or high office. When the circumstances demanded, he was rigorous in the enforcement of criminal justice. But his absolute impartiality assured every offender who came before him a fair and considerate trial. His court held the uniform and universal respect of the people. This perhaps, is his greatest contribution.

"Although stern in the dispatch of his judicial duties, Judge Dawkins was, nevertheless, a man of great warmth, conviviality and affection. He was a delightful host and his house was always a center of social activity and gracious hospitality. . . .His engaging personality made friends for him in every walk of life. It is these persons who will experience the greatest loss in his passing.

"On behalf of the bench and bar of this State, we present this memoriam in memory of the late Justice Benjamin Cornwell Dawkins and request that it be accepted and ordered kept for all times in the records of this Honorable Court."

Unity Mart Okay Near For Wheat

GENEVA (AP) — Agreement was near Saturday on a new international agreement to replace and broaden the 30-year-old International Wheat Agreement which expires July 31.

The new accord is part of the Kennedy Round of trade talks which are due to end Sunday.

It will be a broader accord than the old one, though it will lack the scope sought by the European Common Market.

The Europeans wanted a system that would virtually freeze price supports for grain farmers all over the world. In return they would have promised grain exporters, including the United States, a fixed share of their market — a share amounting to some seven million tons of grain a year.

Although France is a grain exporter, there is a shortage in the Common Market as a whole — which also includes West Germany, the Netherlands, Italy, Belgium, and Luxembourg.

There will be two important new features in the agreement: an increase in the world minimum price and establishment of an international aid program. In addition, the International Wheat Council in London will be turned into an International Cereals Council, with the job of preparing the way for wider accords.

Only in recent years have the feed grains — corn, barley, sorghum and others — become important items in world trade.

Many Courts Do Not Comply With Law On Reporting Conviction In Louisiana

By TOMMY FRAZER
World Staff Writer

Approximately 40 per cent of the courts in Louisiana are not complying fully with a state law that requires them to send reports on all traffic violation convictions except parking to the Department of Public Safety.

This was the estimate given recently by Col. Thomas Burbank, director of Public Safety, and Maj. H. Lee Arledge, troubleshooter with the Louisiana State Police, through neither official appeared eager to press the matter.

Saying that the Department of Public Safety does not have 100 per cent compliance from the courts in sending in these conviction notices, Burbank said, "Right now it is at about 57, 58, or 59 per cent statewide."

There is no provision in the law to penalize courts for not complying with the law, and the Department of Public Safety must rely on the efforts of its nine hearing officers who tour the state asking the courts to cooperate.

Hugh D. Stiles, administrator of the Drivers License Division of the Department of Public Safety, said if the courts would send in the notices, "it would be of tremendous assistance to us."

'SOME CONSCIENTIOUS'

"Some courts are very conscientious," he added.

Stiles was hired as administrator on Feb. 10 this year. Immediately preceding Stiles in this position was Arledge who was appointed on March 1, 1966, by Burbank following the resignation of a previous administrator, Preston Richardson.

Presently the conviction notices that have been received are added to records of Louisiana drivers which are contained in a large room entered through doors marked simply by the numerals "108" and "110." This record room is housed in the Department of Public Safety building on Foster Drive in Baton Rouge.

These conviction notices sent to Baton Rouge have several important functions, officials noted.

Since the notices are used in conjunction with what amounts to a "demerit" system of the Department of Public Safety whereby the department can suspend the drivers license of a person convicted of a certain number of various traffic violations, drivers who prove themselves habitually "dangerous" can be removed from the road for varying periods of time.

'TO IMPROVE DRIVERS'

The aim, said Arledge, is to improve drivers.

According to Jerry W. Millican, Baton Rouge, Gov. John McKeithen's special counsel for implementation of the National Highway Safety Act of 1966, Mississippi topped the nation in highway deaths in 1966, "but we were a close second."

Indeed, statistics of the National Safety Council for 1965 showed in that year, Louisiana had the highest highway death rate in the nation with 9.6 auto fatalities for each 100 million vehicle miles driven. That year, 1,100 men, women and children met death on the state's streets and highways.

By comparison in 1965, Mississippi recorded a rate of 7.7 and Arkansas, 7.1. In sharp contrast, Connecticut with its much greater population density recorded a low in the nation of 3.1 auto fatalities for each 100 million vehicle miles driven.

According to a report supplied by a local insurance company, one reason for Connecticut's low death rate might be that so many licenses of chronic offenders had been suspended. The report stated that in 1965, slightly more than 8,000 drivers licenses were revoked or suspended in Louisiana for one reason or another. But contrast, Connecticut suspended or revoked 47,000 licenses during the same period.

RECORDS AVAILABLE

The records of Louisiana drivers who might have had convictions in other courts in the state are available to judges to provide them a better assessment of pending traffic violation cases.

For instance, should the person arrested and brought before the court be charged with driving while intoxicated as a first offender or should he be charged as a second or a third offender if his record indicates he has had previous DWI convictions" Or should he perhaps also be charged as a multiple offender if his record shows a number of previous convictions such as reckless driving, speeding or running stop signs"

Conviction notices are also used in conjunction with the state's motor vehicle safety responsibility law that requires drivers to provide proof of financial responsibility under several circumstances.

For instance if a person's record shows he has been convicted of driving while intoxicated, he must provide proof to the Financial Responsibility Division of the Department of Public Safety he has a certain amount of automobile insurance or he must provide an assurity bond or make some other deposit of security for a period of three years.

Financial responsibility must also be shown in cases of drivers or owners of vehicles involved in collisions which result in the death or injuries to persons or damage to property of any one person in excess of $50.

COSTLY PROPOSITION

Having to provide proof of this financial responsibility can be a rather expensive proposition. For instance if a driver has no automobile insurance to begin with or if his insurance company cancels his current policy due to an auto accident or a DWI conviction, this usually means he must take out insurance under the "assigned risk plan."

H. N. Rowzie, administrator of the Financial Responsibility Division, said cost of insurance under the assigned risk plan is a driver's normal insurance rate, plus 50 per cent, plus 75 per cent. He said in most cases this comes to approximately $400 a year for the three years this proof of financial responsibility must be maintained.

Too, these conviction records will serve as the nucleus of a proposed Central Records Bureau designed to contain records on each Louisiana vehicle and each Louisiana driver. One thing seems obvious — some drivers are being penalized under the financial responsibility act, while a great number are not penalized on the same charge because their conviction is not sent in, often from the same area.

Though there is no provision at this time to penalize courts for not complying with the law, there once was. When the provision requiring courts to send in conviction notices was written into the state Highway Regulatory Act in 1928, it was also provided that failure to comply could be considered misconduct in office and could be grounds for removal.

However this penalty provision was stricken from the law shortly afterwards.

'NO SUCH RECORDS KEPT'

Asked by the Morning World to see any records that might show which courts in the state are sending in conviction notices and which courts are not, Arledge replied such records were not kept, adding, "Even if they were, I'm not sure I would show them to you."

He said the policy of the Department of Public Safety is to persuade, rather than force the courts to send in the conviction notices.

He also indicated since about 40 per cent of the courts in the state are not sending in conviction notices properly, if the Department of Public Safety were to publicize the names of these individual courts, there might be a resulting breakdown of cooperation.

"I think with a bit of work and explanation to these courts, we can reduce the 40 per cent figure down to five per cent, and then I'll be glad to tell you the names of the courts in that five per cent that are not complying."

Though he said no records exist that indicate how various courts are responding, he was able to say that courts in certain cities, including New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, Winnsboro and others are sending in conviction notices on a 100 per cent basis.

LOCAL COURTS COMPLYING

Recently the Monroe City Court and the West Monroe City Court joined this list on the basis of sending in notices on all traffic violation convictions. The Fourth District Court here had been sending in these reports on a 100 per cent basis for years. Previously the Monroe court had been sending in notices mainly on driving while intoxicated convictions, while the West Monroe Police Department had been sending in notices on the same convictions at the request of the West Monroe City Court.

Asked if he thought courts in large cities which are not complying are following that course because the "paper work" involved in sending in conviction notices might be too expensive, Arledge replied this would hardly be a valid reason since the courts are authorized by law to collect 50 cents for each notice sent to Baton Rouge.

"If anything," he declared, "the courts should be making money on the deal," saying the forms take so little time to fill out.

He also pointed out that the Department of Public Safety provides the courts with the necessary printed forms free of charge.

Arledge was then asked if he could think of any reason why courts in small towns which are not sending in conviction notices are not doing so.

Arledge indicated one possibility might be that due to the close relationship in small towns between the justice of the peace or public officials comprising mayors courts and the citizens of the town, these officials might shy away from sending in conviction notices that might cause a driver's license to be suspended for fear of not being re-elected.

'MISSIONARY WORK'

Burbank, who said his department is "doing a little missionary work on our own" in getting courts to comply, declared, "We're beginning to get better results from the various parishes and the various courts."

Said he, "We are attempting to talk to these clerks of courts and trying to instill the importance of this. They have helped us out a lot, and I think it's a matter of education to let them know the real necessity of this."

Burbank also said if his department's record system is to be expanded into a full-fledged Central Records Bureau, obtaining conviction notices from courts will be necessary "because we have got to have statistics to determine what's going on where."

He said he wouldn't recommend having a penalty placed on courts for not sending in conviction notices.

He also said if a Central Records Bureau is established that contains a complete record on Louisiana drivers determined in part by conviction notices, it would be possible for a merit rating system to be instituted by which good drivers could be rewarded with lower insurance rates. He said insurance rates under this plan would be less for a good driver "instead of when we pay for two bad drivers though we might be good drivers."

Arledge said at the moment the Department of Public Safety is not particularly interested in trying to pressure courts into sending in conviction notices since the department is in a laborious process of converting its records from a card system to electronic data processing.

WOULD BE SWAMPED

He said if all the courts suddenly started complying with the law and sending in all conviction notices, the department's record room personnel would be swamped.

"I would personally dread the deluge," added Stiles, new administrator of the department's Drivers License Division.

Arledge said when the department began converting its records about a year ago, it had approximately 750,000 conviction notices on file. Now, Arledge estimated, the department probably has about a million conviction notices on file, since he said about 20,000 notices are received each month.

Though Arledge said eventually the department will start soliciting the courts more vigorously, "We would prefer not to receive a large number of conviction notices during this conversion process."

THREE STAGE CHANGE

Arledge explained converting existing records of drivers into electronic data processing will take place in three stages.

First, he said, records are punched onto individual data processing cards coded by a driver's name, date of birth, and license number. He indicated this stage has been completed, with a master card having been made for each driver in the state.

Arledge said if any two of the three code items are known about a driver, such as his name and date of birth, this driver's record can be checked immediately.

In the second stage, these cards are fed into an electronic computer which is programmed to store various data of a driver's record on magnetic tape. Arledge said in a week or two, this stage should be completed for the state's approximately 170,000 licensed chauffers. Records of the chauffers who constitute about 10 per cent of Louisiana's 1.7 million licensed drivers are being used first on a trial basis, Arledge said, to work out the "bugs" of programming the magnetic tape computer.

After all, said Arledge, a computer is basically a "pretty dumb machine," explaining it can "do only what you tell it to do."

The third stage, explained Arledge, is to transfer information from the magnetic tapes into the "memory drum" of an even larger "random access storage computer."

The reason for using the random access storage computer, Arledge said, is that it will be even faster than the present computer with magnetic tapes. Saying it takes 11 minutes to "play" a reel of tape from one end to the other, Arledge said whenever the department wanted to check a driver's record or add other information to his record it would take 11 minutes to do this if this driver's record was on the far end of the tape.

132 MILLION 'FACTS'

But with the larger random access storage computer, which Arledge said the department hopes to get "sometime in the fall," checking a driver's record would take "only a millisecond." That's just one thousandth of a second. Arledge said the magnetic drum can handle an astounding 132 million pieces of information.

Another item that will play a major role in computer record keeping is a Univac 1005 card processor and printer which will type records of drivers after they are "located" by the computer.

This printer, explained Arledge, can type 6,000 lines a minute which he said is equivalent to a typist achieving a speed of 10,000 words a minute.

In addition to typing records of drivers, the printer is also being used to print checks for the some 2,800 municipal peace officers who get monthly support checks of $50 from the state. Arledge said it takes only 25 minutes for the printer to complete the entire job.

All of the computers, Arledge said, are rented by the department.

Arledge said with the coming of an electronic records system, the department can "nail down a driver's record at the pressing of a button." Then, he said, "If you accumulate enough of a record, we can have a look at you."

Stiles, in explaining the "demerit" system by which licenses are suspended if a driver accumulates a certain number of convictions of such violations as reckless driving, speeding, etc., said the department "had neither the desire nor the intention to punish anyone."

WARNING LETTER SENT

He explained after a driver has accumulated enough demerits to show he is a habitual violator, the department sends this person a warning letter urging him to devote more attention to his driving. Stiles said about 1,500 such warning letters are sent

Many Courts Do Not Comply With Law On Reporting Conviction In Louisiana

By TOMMY FRAZER
World Staff Writer

Approximately 40 per cent of the courts in Louisiana are not complying fully with a state law that requires them to send reports on all traffic violation convictions except parking to the Department of Public Safety.

This was the estimate given recently by Col. Thomas Burbank, director of Public Safety, and Maj. H. Lee Arledge, troubleshooter with the Louisiana State Police, through neither official appeared eager to press the matter. the matter.

Saying that the Department of Public Safety does not have 100 per cent compliance from the courts in sending in these conviction notices, Burbank said, "Right now it is at about 57, 58, or 59 per cent statewide."

There is no provision in the law to penalize courts for not complying with the law, and the Department of Public Safety must rely on the efforts of its nine hearing officers who tour the state asking the courts to cooperate.

Hugh D. Stiles, administrator of the Drivers License Division of the Department of Public Safety, said if the courts would send in the notices, "it would be of tremendous assistance to us."

'SOME CONSCIENTIOUS'

"Some courts are very conscientious," he added.

Stiles was hired as administrator on Feb. 10 this year. Immediately preceding Stiles in this position was Arledge who was appointed on March 1, 1966, by Burbank following the resignation of a previous administrator, Preston Richardson.

Presently the conviction notices that have been received are added to records of Louisiana drivers which are contained in a large room entered through doors marked simply by the numerals "108" and "110." This record room is housed in the Department of Public Safety building on Foster Drive in Baton Rouge.

These conviction notices sent to Baton Rouge have several important functions, officials noted.

Since the notices are used in conjunction with what amounts to a "demerit" system of the Department of Public Safety whereby the department can suspend the drivers license of a person convicted of a certain number of various traffic violations, drivers who prove themselves habitually "dangerous" can be removed from the road for varying periods of time.

'TO IMPROVE DRIVERS'

The aim, said Arledge, is to improve drivers.

According to Jerry W. Millican, Baton Rouge, Gov. John McKeithen's special counsel for implementation of the National Highway Safety Act of 1966, Mississippi topped the nation in highway deaths in 1966, "but we were a close second."

Indeed, statistics of the National Safety Council for 1965 showed in that year, Louisiana had the highest highway death rate in the nation with 9.6 auto fatalities for each 100 million vehicle miles driven. That year, 1,100 men, women and children met death on the state's streets and highways.

By comparison in 1965, Mississippi recorded a rate of 7.7 and Arkansas, 7.1. In sharp contrast, Connecticut with its much greater population density recorded a low in the nation of 3.1 auto fatalities for each 100 million vehicle miles driven.

According to a report supplied by a local insurance company, one reason for Connecticut's low death rate might be that so many licenses of chronic offenders had been suspended. The report stated that in 1965, slightly more than 8,000 drivers licenses were revoked or suspended in Louisiana for one reason or another. But contrast, Connecticut suspended or revoked 47,000 licenses during the same period.

RECORDS AVAILABLE

The records of Louisiana drivers who might have had convictions in other courts in the state are available to judges to provide them a better assessment of pending traffic violation cases.

For instance, should the person arrested and brought before the court be charged with driving while intoxicated as a first offender or should he be charged as a second or a third offender if his record indicates he has had previous DWI convictions? Or should he perhaps also be charged as a multiple offender if his record shows a number of previous convictions such as reckless driving, speeding or running stop signs?

Conviction notices are also used in conjunction with the state's motor vehicle safety responsibility law that requires drivers to provide proof of financial responsibility under several circumstances.

For instance if a person's record shows he has been convicted of driving while intoxicated, he must provide proof to the Financial Responsibility Division of the Department of Public Safety he has a certain amount of automobile insurance or he must provide an assurity bond or make some other deposit of security for a period of three years.

Financial responsibility must also be shown in cases of drivers or owners of vehicles involved in collisions which result in the death or injuries to persons or damage to property of any one person in excess of $50.

COSTLY PROPOSITION

Having to provide proof of this financial responsibility can be a rather expensive proposition. For instance if a driver has no automobile insurance to begin with or if his insurance company cancels his current policy due to an auto accident or a DWI conviction, this usually means he must take out insurance under the "assigned risk plan."

H. N. Rowzie, administrator of the Financial Responsibility Division, said cost of insurance under the assigned risk plan is a driver's normal insurance rate, plus 50 per cent, plus 75 per cent. He said in most cases this comes to approximately $400 a year for the three years this proof of financial responsibility must be maintained.

Too, these conviction records will serve as the nucleus of a proposed Central Records Bureau designed to contain records on each Louisiana vehicle and each Louisiana driver. One thing seems obvious — some drivers are being penalized under the financial responsibility act, while a great number are not penalized on the same charge because their conviction is not sent in, often from the same area.

Though there is no provision at this time to penalize courts for not complying with the law, there once was. When the provision requiring courts to send in conviction notices was written into the state Highway Regulatory Act in 1928, it was also provided that failure to comply could be considered misconduct in office and could be grounds for removal.

However this penalty provision was stricken from the law shortly afterwards.

'NO SUCH RECORDS KEPT'

Asked by the Morning World to see any records that might show which courts in the state are sending in conviction notices and which courts are not, Arledge replied such records were not kept, adding, "Even if they were, I'm not sure I would show them to you."

He said the policy of the Department of Public Safety is to persuade, rather than force the courts to send in the conviction notices.

He also indicated since about 40 per cent of the courts in the state are not sending in conviction notices properly, if the Department of Public Safety were to publicize the names of these individual courts, there might be a resulting breakdown of cooperation.

"I think with a bit of work and explanation to these courts, we can reduce the 40 per cent figure down to five per cent, and then I'll be glad to tell you the names of the courts in that five per cent that are not complying."

Though he said no records exist that indicate how various courts are responding, he was able to say that courts in certain cities, including New Orleans, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, Winnsboro and others are sending in conviction notices on a 100 per cent basis.

LOCAL COURTS COMPLYING

Recently the Monroe City Court and the West Monroe City Court joined this list on the basis of sending in notices on all traffic violation convictions. The Fourth District Court here had been sending in these reports on a 100 per cent basis for years. Previously the Monroe court had been sending in notices mainly on driving while intoxicated convictions, while the West Monroe Police Department had been sending in notices on the same convictions at the request of the West Monroe City Court.

Asked if he thought courts in large cities which are not complying are following that course because the "paper work" involved in sending in conviction notices might be too expensive, Arledge replied this would hardly be a valid reason since the courts are authorized by law to collect 50 cents for each notice sent to Baton Rouge.

"If anything," he declared, "the courts should be making money on the deal," saying the forms take so little time to fill out.

He also pointed out that the Department of Public Safety provides the courts with the necessary printed forms free of charge.

Arledge was then asked if he could think of any reason why courts in small towns which are not sending in conviction notices are not doing so.

Arledge indicated one possibility might be that due to the close relationship in small towns between the justice of the peace or public officials comprising mayors courts and the citizens of the town, these officials might shy away from sending in conviction notices that might cause a driver's license to be suspended for fear of not being re-elected.

'MISSIONARY WORK'

Burbank, who said his department is "doing a little missionary work on our own" in getting courts to comply, declared, "We're beginning to get better results from the various parishes and the various courts."

Said he, "We are attempting to talk to these clerks of courts and trying to instill the importance of this. They have helped us out a lot, and I think it's a matter of education to let them know the real necessity of this."

Burbank also said if his department's record system is to be expanded into a full-fledged Central Records Bureau, obtaining conviction notices from courts will be necessary "because we have got to have statistics to determine what's going on where."

He said he wouldn't recommend having a penalty placed on courts for not sending in conviction notices.

He also said if a Central Records Bureau is established that contains a complete record on Louisiana drivers determined in part by conviction notices, it would be possible for a merit rating system to be instituted by which good drivers could be rewarded with lower insurance rates. He said insurance rates under this plan would be less for a good driver "instead of when we pay for two bad drivers though we might be good drivers."

Arledge said at the moment the Department of Public Safety is not particularly interested in trying to pressure courts into sending in conviction notices since the department is in a laborious process of converting its records from a card system to electronic data processing.

WOULD BE SWAMPED

He said if all the courts suddenly started complying with the law and sending in all conviction notices, the department's record room personnel would be swamped.

"I would personally dread the deluge," added Stiles, new administrator of the department's Drivers License Division.

Arledge said when the department began converting its records about a year ago, it had approximately 750,000 conviction notices on file. Now, Arledge estimated, the department probably has about a million conviction notices on file, since he said about 20,000 notices are received each month.

Though Arledge said eventually the department will start soliciting the courts more vigorously, "We would prefer not to receive a large number of conviction notices during this conversion process."

THREE STAGE CHANGE

Arledge explained converting existing records of drivers into electronic data processing will take place in three stages.

First, he said, records are punched onto individual data processing cards coded by a driver's name, date of birth, and license number. He indicated this stage has been completed, with a master card having been made for each driver in the state.

Arledge said if any two of the three code items are known about a driver, such as his name and date of birth, this driver's record can be checked immediately.

In the second stage, these cards are fed into an electronic computer which is programmed to store various data of a driver's record on magnetic tape. Arledge said in a week or two, this stage should be completed for the state's approximately 170,000 licensed chauffers. Records of the chauffers who constitute about 10 per cent of Louisiana's 1.7 million licensed drivers are being used first on a trial basis, Arledge said, to work out the "bugs" of programming the magnetic tape computer.

After all, said Arledge, a computer is basically a "pretty dumb machine," explaining it can "do only what you tell it to do."

The third stage, explained Arledge, is to transfer information from the magnetic tapes into the "memory drum" of an even larger "random access storage computer."

The reason for using the random access storage computer, Arledge said, is that it will be even faster than the present computer with magnetic tapes. Saying it takes 11 minutes to "play" a reel of tape from one end to the other, Arledge said whenever the department wanted to check a driver's record or add other information to his record it would take 11 minutes to do this if this driver's record was on the far end of the tape.

132 MILLION 'FACTS'

But with the larger random access storage computer, which Arledge said the department hopes to get "sometime in the fall," checking a driver's record would take "only a millisecond." That's just one thousandth of a second. Arledge said the magnetic drum can handle an astounding 132 million pieces of information.

Another item that will play a major role in computer record keeping is a Univac 1005 card processor and printer which will type records of drivers after they are "located" by the computer.

This printer, explained Arledge, can type 6,000 lines a minute which he said is equivalent to a typist achieving a speed of 10,000 words a minute.

In addition to typing records of drivers, the printer is also being used to print checks for the some 2,800 municipal peace officers who get monthly support checks of $50 from the state. Arledge said it takes only 25 minutes for the printer to complete the entire job.

All of the computers, Arledge said, are rented by the department.

Arledge said with the coming of an electronic records system, the department can "nail down a driver's record at the pressing of a button." Then, he said, "If you accumulate enough of a record, we can have a look at you."

Stiles, in explaining the "demerit" system by which licenses are suspended if a driver accumulates a certain number of convictions of such violations as reckless driving, speeding, etc., said the department "had neither the desire nor the intention to punish anyone."

WARNING LETTER SENT

He explained after a driver has accumulated enough demerits to show he is a habitual violator, the department sends this person a warning letter urging him to devote more attention to his driving. Stiles said about 1,500 such warning letters are sent

Fuse On Urban Renewal Burns At Baton Rouge

By MILO DAKIN
World Legislative Writer

It's timed to go off Monday at 3 p.m.

Gov. John McKeithen apparently inadvertantly poured the powder but the fuse was lit by someone from the Caddo Parish delegation. The governor is now asking them to put out the fire and take the keg home until next year, but so far they have refused.

Inside is an explosive issue, urban renewal. Three members of the Caddo delegation on behalf of Shreveport wants it introduced in this session. The governor, facing re-election, this fall, doesn't want it introduced.

Which points to the diversity of politics. An issue can be life blood to one politician and trouble to another.

Since this is a fiscal session, the rules are on the governor's side. But it all depends on who is defining "fiscal" and "non-fiscal."

And that is going to be the hot issue Monday at 3 p.m. Will urban renewal — using federal money to clean up and prevent the spread of slums — be declared fiscal or non-fiscal?

If it is declared fiscal, then there is a good chance this session will burst wide open to outside legislation.

If it is declared non-fiscal, then this session will be "just what the doctor ordered," the doctor in this case being McKeithen.

Making the decision will be the House Affairs Screening Committee of Rep. Kenneth Barranger, Orleans. Although Barranger has already served notice he intends to follow strict guidelines which means no urban renewal, the committee is not administration packed.

In two previous hearings last week, committed members appeared to take each bill on its merits in relation to fiscal or non fiscal matters. But since all money bills are not fiscal in the strict sense of the word, the committee must thread a needle when making decisions.

The delegation from Shreveport claims there must be urban renewal legislation passed this year or their study group which is locally financed, will be dissolved due to financial troubles. The Shreveport urban renewal bill asks for a $5,000 study appropriation from the state general fund.

A majority of Louisiana lawmakers have long been opposed to urban renewal and the rural strength in both houses has prevailed. But this year it's not a case of being for or against urban renewal. The subject itself has never come up.

The governor just doesn't want to open legislative gates to a flood of bills on ever imaginable subject. Too, as Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard points out, an open session would allow Plaquemines Parish interests to attempt the diversion of public school funds to private schools in that area.

This is election year and open sessions where the opposition can twist even the best of intentions aren't always condusive to pleasing the voters back home.

It remains to be seen just how public sentiment in Shreveport will run if urban renewal is denied legislative action this year. For even if it gets into the House Monday, the Senate, which adheres closer to administration guidelines, will surely send it to a quick death.

QUIET ELSEWHERE

It has been comparatively quiet around the capitol during the first week of this 30-day session. In fact it's been so quiet that if legislators aren't careful, they might convince the public they're more interested in staying home than in lawmaking.

With one week behind, the governor has submitted his $1.276 billion budget for fiscal 1967-68 which turned out to have errors totaling around $1.3 million.

So the House Appropriations Committee revised the total budget upward by taking $337,378 from next year's anticipated general fund surplus and transferring $1 million from the proposed Public Works Department's drainage budget.

Basically, the revision just took away some of the small surplus the administration plans to have on hand at the end of June, 1968. It was caused by miscalculating expenses at several state institutions, including Ruston State School for mentally retarded children.

A Kansas City —Shreveport — New Orleans toll road drew support in the House Tuesday from McKeithen and Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, but was quickly fired on by several Monroe area legislators. Their feelings were summed up by Ouachita Rep. Lawrence Gibbs: "If there is no connection to Monroe, I will vote against it."

Many Courts Don't Comply On State Law

out monthly and added after the new records system is placed in operation, "We are going to be sending more than ever."

He also said if a driver still violates the law after receiving a warning letter, a hearing officer is sent to interview the driver and give him a further warning.

Stiles said drivers whose licenses have been suspended for 60 or 90 days tend to "straighten up for about a year." He said these drivers get very few tickets during the following months.

After the installation of electronic records, declared Rowzie, "Boy, there's going to be a lot of weeping and wailing." He said printer units which will be placed in the headquarters of each of the 13 state police areas will be able to provide a complete record on an arrested driver by the time he is booked.

He said immediately after a motorist is arrested by a state trooper, the trooper can radio to headquartres, giving the driver's name, date of birth and license number. Then, by use of the unit there, headquarters personnel can have the driver's record available by the time the trooper brings him in to be booked.

Rowzie said a person's record is checked back five years for driving while intoxicated convictions and three years for every other type of conviction.

BUREAU EXPLAINED

Burbank said submission of conviction notices will also be necessary to implement the proposed Central Records Bureau which is one of the requirements that must be met if the state is to receive federal funds made available under the National Highway Safety Act of 1966.

Burbank said an educational program would have to be pursued by which courts in the state are informed of the need for this Central Records Bureau if the state is to receive federal monies.

Under the National Highway Safety Act, the federal government can make available to Louisiana some $1.2 million for fiscal year 1967-68 and another $1.2 million for fiscal year 1968-69, according to Millican.

Millican noted at this time Louisiana does not have a central records system, "as these bureaus are envisioned by other states who are making much progress in highway safety."

Speaking of an effort to promote safety, Millican said one of the purposes behind a central records bureau is to try to identify problems at the local level and assist, with the cooperation with local government, in the solving of these problems.

The reason a central records bureau is so important, the governor's special counsel noted, "is because it is the only way we can or any traffic safety experts can determine what our problems are through the use of statistics collected, not only through the jurisdiction of the state police, but also the jurisdiction of local government."

"If the local government fails to report to some central clearing house, it is practically impossible for anyone to get a true picture of a traffic safety situation. We must base our picture on these reports."

Speaking of his work and that of the state highway safety commission to develop a safety program that will be approved by the U.S. Secretary of Transportation and make the state eligible for federal funds, Millican emphasized Lousiana would not accept any unreasonable safety standards imposed on the state by the federal government that would not take into consideration special conditions found in Louisiana.

Said he, "We've informed the federal government that we have been working to a solution to Louisiana's high accident and death rate and that we, of course, are very much delighted that the federal government has seen fit to make funds available, but that we would much rather proceed along the lines of the recommendations of our own safety committee than adopt recommendations of the federal government which we feel are not applicable in Louisiana.

'Other' Long Tells Of Try To Nip Probe

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) —Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating wiretapping and snooping said Saturday that a "hard core of federal agents" hampered his investigation from the beginning.

Long was a featured speaker at a conference of the Constitutional Rights Foundation at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

"This is 20th century America," he said. "We are supposed to be one of the most civilized nations on Earth. Yet we are subject to these and thousands more violations of our everyday privacy."

The Senator said that "at this very moment, there may be as many as 1,000 telephones being wiretapped in New York City alone."

He said that more than 4,000 business firms in the United States rented listening devices to monitor employe telephone conversations.

Long said there was one device on the market that can "bug" a phone 3,000 miles away and "almost impossible to discover. Not only is this gadget attractive to investigators, but husbands can use it to check up on their wives while the husband is away on business."

He said wiretapping "will soon have every man and woman bound in the chains of fear, the dread that society is becoming a closed door."

"There is a hard core of irresponsible and ruthless agents who have no respect for our constitutional rights," he charged. "These are the agents who violate a federal law which was passed in 1934 to prohibit wiretapping.

"To overcome these barriers, I have had to step on the toes of some very reluctant federal agencies. As a result, these agencies, along with big money interests in the East, have been and are now trying to discredit me and my subcommittee," Long said.

Making the decision will be the House Affairs Screening Committee of Rep. Kenneth Barranger, Orleans. Although Barranger has already served notice he intends to follow strict guidelines which means no urban renewal, the committee is not administration packed.

In two previous hearings last week, committed members appeared to take each bill on its merits in relation to fiscal or non fiscal matters. But since all money bills are not fiscal in the strict sense of the word, the committee must thread a needle when making decisions.

The delegation from Shreveport claims there must be urban renewal legislation passed this year or their study group which is locally financed, will be dissolved due to financial troubles. The Shreveport urban renewal bill asks for a $5,000 study appropriation from the state general fund.

A majority of Louisiana lawmakers have long been opposed to urban renewal and the rural strength in both houses has prevailed. But this year it's not a case of being for or against urban renewal. The subject itself has never come up.

The governor just doesn't want to open legislative gates to a flood of bills on ever imaginable subject. Too, as Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard points out, an open session would allow Plaquemines Parish interests to attempt the diversion of public school funds to private schools in that area.

This is election year and open sessions where the opposition can twist even the best of intentions aren't always condusive to pleasing the voters back home.

It remains to be seen just how public sentiment in Shreveport will run if urban renewal is denied legislative action this year. For even if it gets into the House Monday, the Senate, which adheres closer to administration guidelines, will surely send it to a quick death.

QUIET ELSEWHERE

It has been comparatively quiet around the capitol during the first week of this 30 - day session. In fact it's been so quiet that if legislators aren't careful, they might convince the public they're more interested in staying home than in lawmaking.

With one week behind, the governor has submitted his $1.276 billion budget for fiscal 1967 - 68 which turned out to have errors totaling around $1.3 million.

So the House Appropriations Committee revised the total budget upward by taking $337,378 from next year's anticipated general fund surplus and transferring $1 million from the proposed Public Works Department's drainage budget.

Bascially, the revision just took away some of the small surplus the administration plans to have on hand at the end of June, 1968. It was caused by miscalculating expenses at several state institutions, including Ruston State School for mentally retarded children.

A Kansas City —Shreveport — New Orleans toll road drew support in the House Tuesday from McKeithen and Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller, but was quickly fired on by several Monroe area legislators. Their feelings were summed up by Ouachita Rep. Lawrence Gibbs: "If there is no connection to Monroe, I will vote against it."

Many Courts Don't Comply On State Law

out monthly and added after the new records system is placed in operation, "We are going to be sending more than ever."

He also said if a driver still violates the law after receiving a warning letter, a hearing officer is sent to interview the driver and give him a further warning.

Stiles said drivers whose licenses have been suspended for 60 or 90 days tend to "straighten up for about a year." He said these drivers get very few tickets during the following months.

After the installation of electronic records, declared Rowzie, "Boy, there's going to be a lot of weeping and wailing." He said printer units which will be placed in the headquarters of each of the 13 state police areas will be able to provide a complete record on an arrested driver by the time he is booked.

He said immediately after a motorist is arrested by a state trooper, the trooper can radio to headquartres, giving the driver's name, date of birth and license number. Then, by use of the unit there, headquarters personnel can have the driver's record available by the time the trooper brings him in to be booked.

Rowzie said a person's record is checked back five years for driving while intoxicated convictions and three years for every other type of conviction.

BUREAU EXPLAINED

Burbank said submission of conviction notices will also be necessary to implement the proposed Central Records Bureau which is one of the requirements that must be met if the state is to receive federal funds made available under the National Highway Safety Act of 1966.

Burbank said an educational program would have to be pursued by which courts in the state are informed of the need for this Central Records Bureau if the state is to receive federal monies.

Under the National Highway Safety Act, the federal government can make available to Louisiana some $1.2 million for fiscal year 1967-68 and another $1.2 million for fiscal year 1968-69, according to Millican.

Millican noted at this time Louisiana does not have a central records system, "as these bureaus are envisioned by other states who are making much progress in highway safety."

Speaking of an effort to promote safety, Millican said one of the purposes behind a central records bureau is to try to identify problems at the local level and assist, with the cooperation with local government, in the solving of these problems.

The reason a central records bureau is so important, the governor's special counsel noted, "is because it is the only way we can or any traffic safety experts can determine what our problems are through the use of statistics collected, not only through the jurisdiction of the state police, but also the jurisdiction of local government."

"If the local government fails to report to some central clearing house, it is practically impossible for anyone to get a true picture of a traffic safety situation. We must base our picture on these reports."

Speaking of his work and that of the state highway safety commission to develop a safety program that will be approved by the U.S. Secretary of Transportation and make the state eligible for federal funds, Millican emphasized Louisiana would not accept any unreasonable safety standards imposed on the state by the federal government that would not take into consideration special conditions found in Louisiana.

Said he, "We've informed the federal government that we have been working to a solution to Louisiana's high accident and death rate and that we, of course, are very much delighted that the federal government has seen fit to make funds available, but that we would much rather proceed along the lines of the recommendations of our own safety committee than adopt recommendations of the federal government which we feel are not applicable in Louisiana.

'Other' Long Tells Of Try To Nip Probe

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) —Sen. Edward V. Long, D-Mo., chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating wiretapping and snooping said Saturday that a "hard core of federal agents" hampered his investigation from the beginning.

Long was a featured speaker at a conference of the Constitutional Rights Foundation at the Beverly Hilton Hotel.

"This is 20th century America," he said. "We are supposed to be one of the most civilized nations on Earth. Yet we are subject to these and thousands more violations of our everyday privacy."

The Senator said that "at this very moment, there may be as many as 1,000 telephones being wiretapped in New York City alone."

He said that more than 4,000 business firms in the United States rented listening devices to monitor employe telephone conversations.

Long said there was one device on the market that can "bug" a phone 3,000 miles away and "almost impossible to discover. Not only is this gadget attractive to investigators, but husbands can use it to check up on their wives while the husband is away on business."

He said wiretapping "will soon have every man and woman bound in the chains of fear, the dread that society is becoming a closed door."

"There is a hard core of irresponsible and ruthless agents who have no respect for our constitutional rights," he charged. "These are the agents who violate a federal law which was passed in 1934 to prohibit wiretapping.

"To overcome these barriers, I have had to step on the toes of some very reluctant federal agencies. As a result, these agencies, along with big money interests in the East, have been and are now trying to discredit me and my subcommittee," Long said.

The air show is being sponsored by the Monroe Jaycees, the Greater Monroe Optimist Club and local sports aviation club, the Monroe Aero - Nutz.

Rites Pend For Victim Of Viet War

Funeral arrangements, under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home of Monroe, were still incomplete late Saturday for Pfc. Vomer O. Wilson Jr., 20, of the U. S. Marine Corps who was killed Monday in the vicinity of Quand Tri, Republic of South Vietnam.

Pfc. Wilson will receive a military funeral and will be buried in the Hasley Cemetery in West Monroe.

According to a telegram sent to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. O. Wilson Sr. of Route 1, West Monroe, by the Commandant of the Marine Corps, Gen. Wallace M. Green Jr., Pfc. Wilson "sustained fragmentation wounds to the body from a satchel charge while engaged in action against hostile forces." He would have been in the Marines one year Tuesday, and he had been in Vietnam since last October.

He attended West Monroe High School having quit school one month before graduation to enter the Marines. He had danced many times on television programs and in theater productions in the Twin Cities area and was a raiser of champion livestock having won many ribbons for his stock in Northeast Louisiana livestock competitions.

Officers said the action came after his wife received minor cuts in a knifing.

Controversy Still Raging Over Custer's Last Stand

Monroe Morning World
Sunday Features
Monroe, La., May 14, 1967 1-B
Editorials — Spotlight — Amusements

Ninety years later, there still are many points of disagreement on the Battle of the Little Big Horn. Myths are thick around the famed massacre, and the commander's true character is shrouded. Was he a great leader, or a bungler? A new writers' group is searching for answers.

By STEVE MOORE

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — When George A. Custer and five companies of the U.S. 7th Cavalry fought their famous "Last Stand" on the banks of the Little Big Horn River in southeastern Montana in 1876, they spurred a military controversy that may rage as long as wars are fought.

Why didn't Custer listen to his Indian scouts, who forecast doom? Why did he detach two segments of troops and send them elsewhere before the battle? Why did he turn down an offer of additional troops and a platoon of Gatling guns?

It is questions such as these that a newly organized group of scholars of the West hopes to answer.

SEEK AND PRESERVE

"We want to seek out and preserve the truth for future students and historians," says Robert J. Ege of Great Falls, Mont., a writer, student of the Old West and a leader of the Custer fact finding group.

"But first we must debunk the myth, fantasy, official and unofficial inaccuracies that shroud the truth of what actually occurred," Ege said. Ege and Robert B. MacLaine of Tacoma, Wash., founded the Little Big Horn Associates last December and recruited 10 other Western history students as charter members. "We're 12 nonradicals, and we have no axes to grind," Ege said.

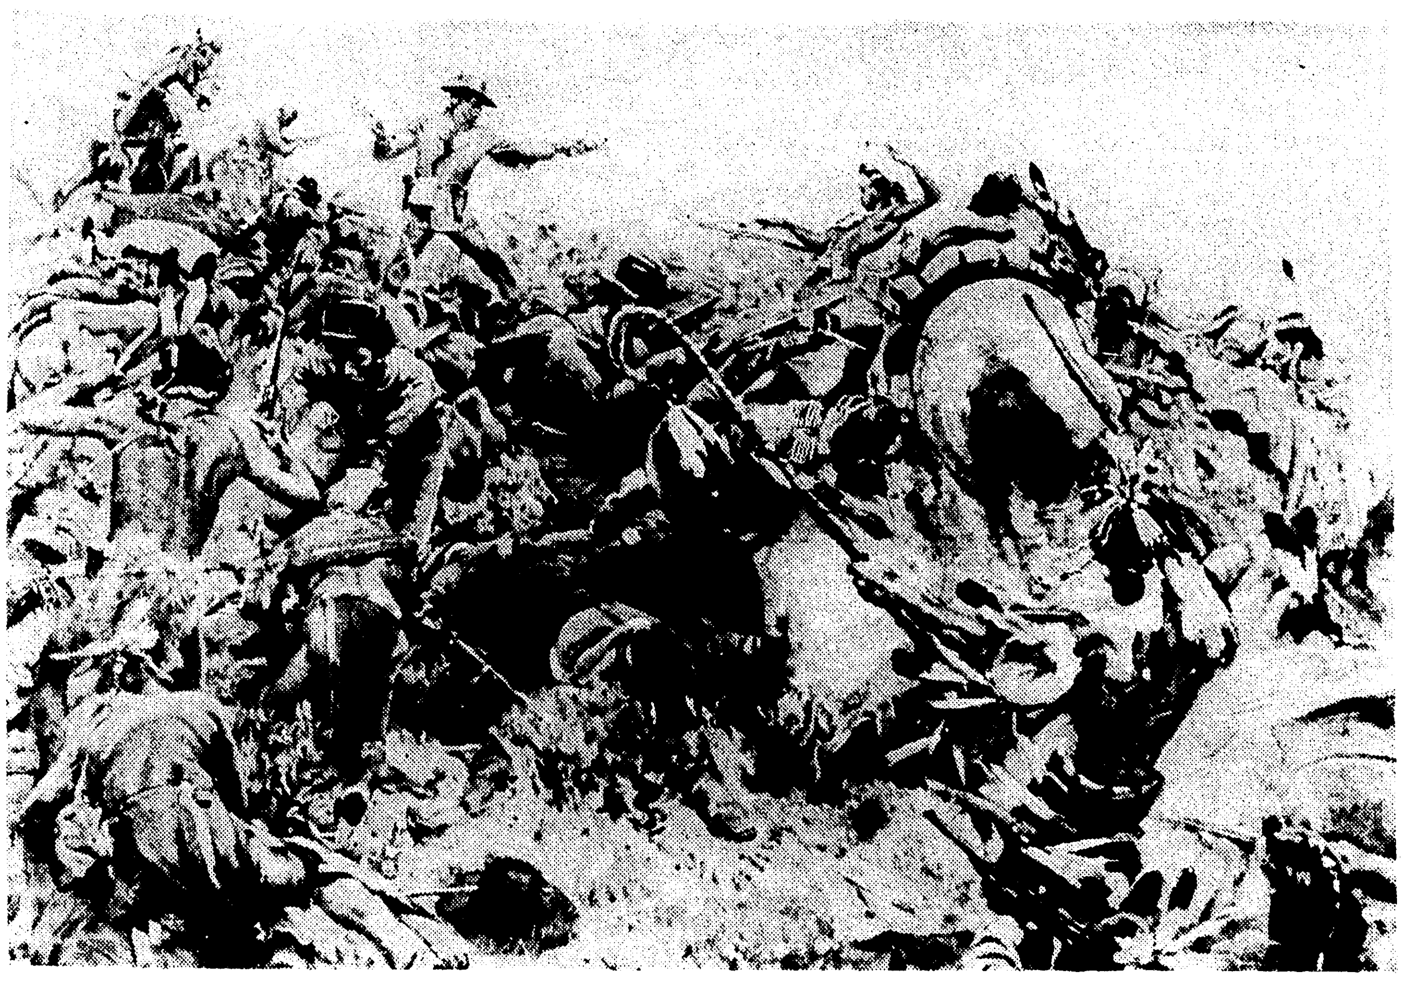
Radicalism has marked the Custer controversy. Custer went into history books either as a military genius and great leader or as a flamboyant, overconfident, glory seeker, whose biggest mistake was his last.

One school of thought says Custer wanted to be president and thought that by annihilating the Cheyenne and Sioux he could establish himself as a national hero. Others believe Custer was trying to rebuild his public image. He had been rebuked by President U. S. Grant for getting into a sticky political situation which involved the president's brother.

Contributing charter members of the associates include Carl W. Breihan, author of several books on the Old West; Michael Harrison, president of the Book Club of California and an Indian lecturer; and Dr. G. Derek West, Oxford graduate and a dean at McMaster University in Canada.

In the organization's monthly newsletter there are no colorful stories about an Indian fighter on the Little Big Horn standing to the last with saber dangling at his side and golden curls flying in the wind. No one writes of Custer being impeccably dressed in Army blues. Why?

Because such a man never fought at the Little Big Horn, says Ege, who has studied the battle for 25 years and is about to publish a book, "Curse Not His Curls." He said the real Custer went into the battle crewcut, saberless and in buckskins.



IN THE 90 YEARS since Lt. Col. George A. Custer led some 225 U.S. Army cavelrymen to death in a battle with Cheyenne and Sioux Indians, he has been the center of myths and controversy. His defenders maintain he was a military genius. His attackers insist he was a flamboyant, overconfident glory seeker. This famous painting, "Custer's Last Stand" by Harold Von Schmidt, is a romantic version, with Custer, in left background, killing Indians with two guns on the battlefield in southeastern Montana. (AP Newsfeatures Photos)

DIVIDED GROUPS

Just prior to Custer's defeat, he divided his command into three groups and a pack train. This action has been questioned ever since.

MacLaine, a student of Western history for 45 years, believes Custer's tactics, if assessed from a soldier's standpoint, indicate he was overconfident, had not reconnoitered completely and should not have split his command.

Ege, one of the pro-Custer members of the society, disagrees. He said the maneuver was militarily sound. "It was the old tactic of reconnaissance in force," Ege said.

Custer expected to clash with a force of 800 to 900 Indians, Ege said, but a breakdown in communications kept him from learning of the Indian buildup in the valley. The camp, as he learned too late, was three miles long and contained 15,000 to 20,000 Indians.

As it turned out, Custer faced the largest war party ever formed to fight the "white eyes." About 4,500 braves were of age — ready to do battle.

Isolated, Custer and his five troops of cavalry could do little but retreat. The command was forced back to Custer Ridge, where it fought to the last. Only a horse survived.

Before engaging the Indians, Custer scribbled a note to Capt. Frederick W. Benteen ordering him to come immediately with men and ammunition. The order was not acted upon. Benteen's lack of action followed him to the grave.

"Benteen, though within easy reach of the besieged Custer, never came," Ege said. "He did in fact disobey a written order that was militarily in force until it was obeyed or the issuer was dead."

Vivian Paladin, editor of the authoritative publication, "Montana, the Magazine of Western History," minces few words describing why Benteen failed to fulfill the order. "Benteen hated Custer's guts," she said.

Maj. Marcus A. Reno, who had been ordered by Custer to proceed up the Little Big Horn Valley and engage the Indians, did so and was routed. Reno beat a disorganized retreat across the river and up into the bluffs south of Custer's position. He was immediately engaged by Indians and couldn't extricate himself, much less reinforce Custer.

WEAK SUBORDINATES

"Custer essentially had weak sister subordinates," Ege said.

"Reno was no Indian fighter and had no experience. Benteen did not know how to take orders."

The battlefield was such a mess it was impossible to determine how many men died with Custer. Ege and MacLaine believe there were about 225 killed.

"On the field 212 bodies were found. There were four officers missing and nine troopers unaccounted for," Ege said.

"Yet," Ege maintained, "you cannot say no one escaped and be absolutely sure."

Ege believes at least one man did escape. "His name was Frank Finkel," Ege said, "and he died in 1930 near Carter, Mont."

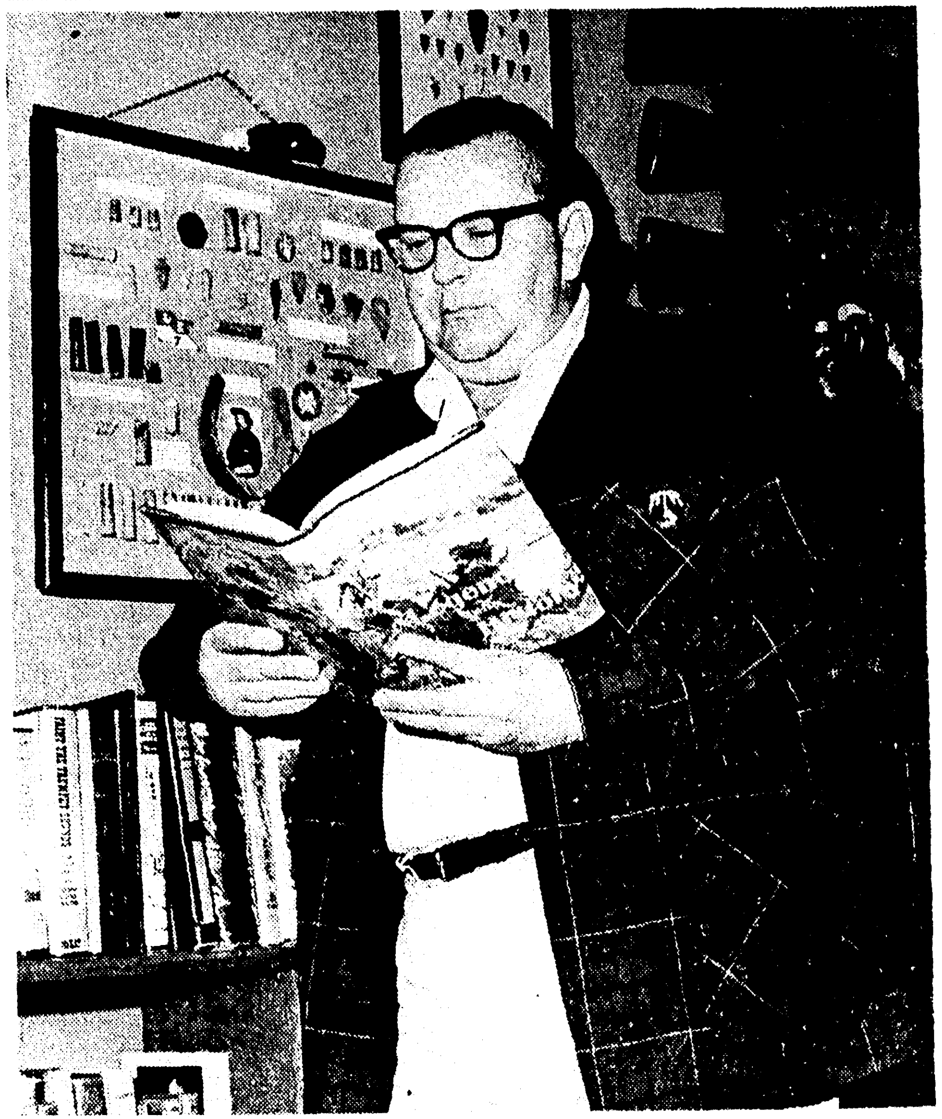
MacLaine, who considers himself neither anti nor pro Custer, often finds himself at odds with Ege. But he admitted "the Finkel case is the best so far" because the man knew so much about the terrain and what reportedly happened during the battle.

Survivor or no, the Battle of the Little Big Horn is far from over. More than 90 years later, the controversy shows no signs of diminishing.

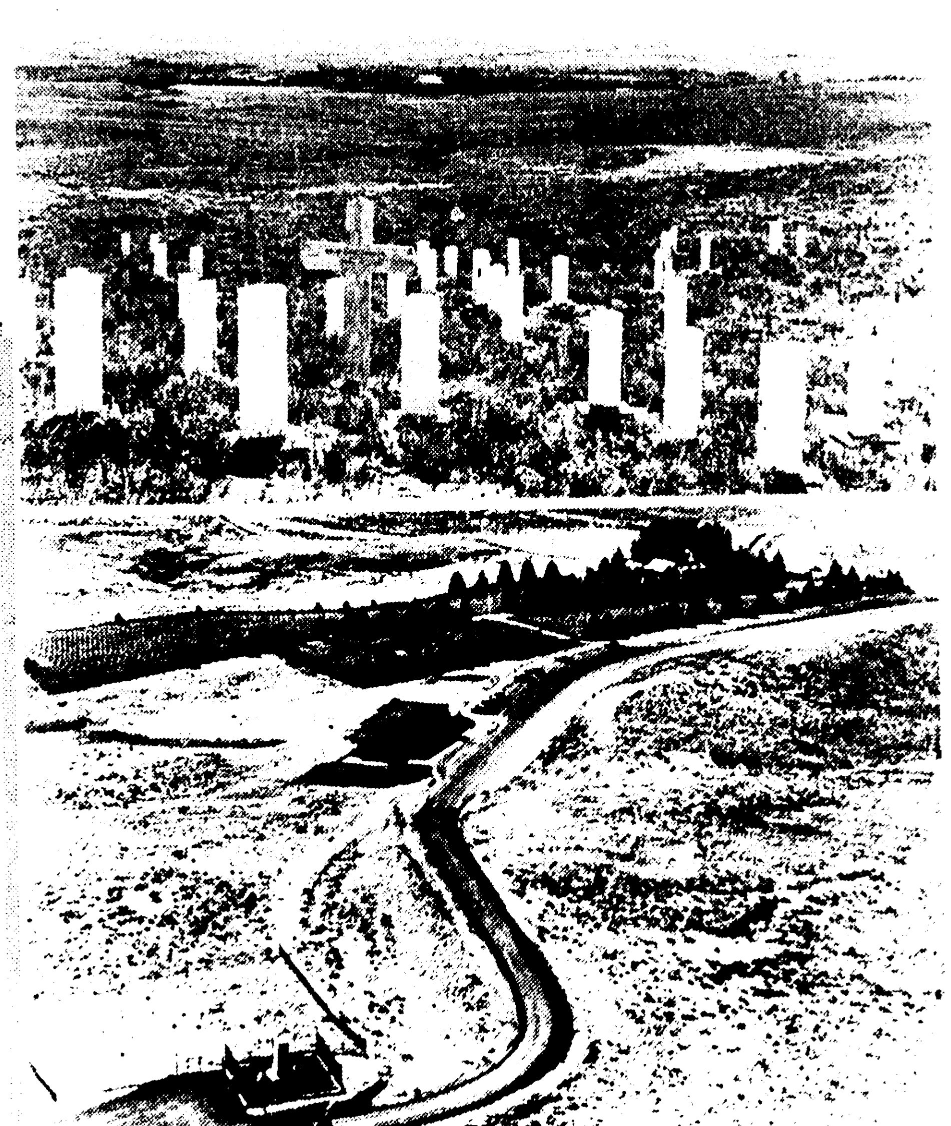
"Students of Custer have almost divided themselves into armed camps," Mrs. Paladin said. "The Custerians are on one side, the Reno-Benteen supporters on the other."

Mrs. Paladin believes, "Any commander who allows himself to be massacred did not use good sense." She said the battle has been blown out of proportion. "Aside from the drama and mystery, it just wasn't that important," she added.

Right or wrong, Custer still occupies a favored niche in the hearts of many Americans. A 7th Cavalry guidon marks the spot where he reportedly fell. After the battle, the 765-acre area was proclaimed a national cemetery. On March 22, 1946, the site was declared a national monument.



DEBUNKING THE myths and establishing the facts about "Custer's Last Stand" is the aim of the new Little Big Horn Associates. Here one of the founders, Robert J. Ege, a writer, looks at one of the books in his Custer library at his home in Great Falls, Mont. The cases hold relics found on the battlefield on the Little Big Horn River in southeastern Montana where Lt. Col. George A. Custer and about 225 of his troopers were killed by Cheyenne and Sioux Indians.



TOP: THE CROSS says, "Here Fell Custer, June 25, 1876." The white shafts around it represent the 225 or so — the exact number is not known — of Lt. Col. George A. Custer's troopers who died with him in a fierce battle against some 1,500 Cheyenne and Sioux braves. The cross, erected soon after the battle in southeastern Montana 15 miles from Hardin, has been replaced by a blue and white Seventh Cavalry guidon. BOTTOM: An aerial view of the Custer battlefield. After the battle the 765-acre area was proclaimed a national cemetery — seen in the background. On March 22, 1946, the battle site was declared a national monument.

Post Office Department Racing With Catastrophe

By GAYLORD SHAW

WASHINGTON (AP) —Press a green button and the squat, innocent looking machine starts chipping away at 200 years of postal tradition.

First its motor whines unsteadily, then settles into a quiet purr as six pieces of mail a second swish past its electronic eyes.

Zip — Zip — Zip.

In one hour, the machine can handle more mail than a clerk can sort in two hours into the pigeonhole cases first used in the United States in colonial days.

The ZIP code reader machine symbolizes the big push to revolutionize the nation's postal system — to convert it from a creaking relic of horse and buggy days into a jet age operation.

But the machine has been installed in only one post office and some bugs still must be worked out. Jet age mail service remains a long way off. In fact, it's quite likely the United States will have a man on the moon before its postal system can guarantee one day delivery of priority domestic mail.

PRESSING PROGRAM

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brian, best known as an astute political strategist, is pressing a $100 million postal modernization program this fiscal year and is seeking $300 million in modernization funds for next fiscal year. He has said, however, that the Post Office needs $1 billion a year for five years to adequately update its facilities.

O'Brien also is expanding the department's research efforts. He has asked Congress for $23.1 million in research funds for next year, up 40 per cent from last year but still only about half what the much smaller Veterans Administration spends for research.

But even as the Post Office searches for better ways to deliver the mail, it is, in the words of O'Brien, "in a race with catastrophe." Mail volume, increasing by about 11 million pieces daily, now totals 80 billion pieces a year.

This must be processed in aging plants that are poorly located and grossly inadequate — many of them too small to accommodate modern postal equipment. It must be funneled into a distribution system that hasn't adapted to the times.

The department is hemmed in by a maze of legal restrictions that have sprouted haphazardly over the years. It is buffeted by waves of political pressure.

In the past, as it teetered on the brink of chaos, the department has tried to solve its problems with more money and more people. Employment now totals 0,006 and modernization plans call for no cutback. The annual budget tops $6.3 billion. But the service continues to run a deficit and is seeking an $800 million annual rate increase — the third rate hike in the past decade.

The Post Office has gotten so big and so unwieldy, O'Brien says, that it "reminds me of the classic definition of an elephant — a mouse built to government specifications."

After 18 months as Postmaster General, O'Brien has concluded it would be best to slay the postal elephant and start afresh wtih a nonprofit government corporation.

Under his plan, which includes a very unbureaucratic proposal that his own job be abolished, bonds would be sold to finance postal modernization. President Johnson appointed a commission to study the proposal.

SIMILAR PLAN

O'Brien's plan is similar to one scheduled to go before the British Parliament this year. Under both the British and the O'Brien plans, the corporation would set postal rates. The British plan also would remove postal workers from civil service, but O'Brien has not made a specific statement on what would happen to U.S. postal workers. He has said, however, that he envisions the corporation as a public service that would not have to pay its own way.

O'Brien's corporate proposal got mixed reviews in Congress. This is understandable. Most congressmen are less than anxious to give up the political patronage system so embedded in postal operations.

Each of the nation's 33,000 postmasters, for example, is appointed subject to veto of a congressman or local political chieftain.

Some members of Congress have introduced bills to reform various phases of the postal system, but O'Brien says these "are only props for the tottering structure we now inhabit so uneasily."

Even as their boss talks of abandoning the present leaky ship, Post Office Department administrators, engineers and employes dream and scheme of better ways to deliver the mail, be it for Uncle Sam or for Post Office Inc.

Some of the ideas, if they ever are officially proposed, are certain to provoke grumbles from the public. Like the suggestion that door to door delivery of mail be terminated. Under this plan, everybody would pick up his mail at neighborhood distribution centers.

PRE-STAMPED ENVELOPES

Another proposal calls for abolition of postage stamps. Why spend millions of dollars to print stamps, more millions to sell them and even more millions to cancel them, some officials ask, when envelope manufacturers could produce and sell only prestamped envelopes.

Among postal officials there seems to be an almost universal desire to set strict standards for sizes and shapes of letters. One official noted that Americans are free to use 700 sizes of envelopes. West Germany permits 12, the Soviet Union 6.

Another official thinks the post office also should set standards for the size parcels it will accept.

Some officials predict the post office of the future will serve merely as a communications relay center for image transmission of letter mail directly into homes and offices.

Detroit Postmaster Edward L. Baker's post office, billed as the most mechanized postal facility in the world, serves as a proving ground for advanced equipment. The department's only operational Zip code reader, for example, is there.

Actually, Detroit is the department's second testing center. The first was set up seven years ago at Providence, R.I., but was plagued from the start by problems with equipment. Most of the bugs have been ironed out, officials say, but one problem remains. All of Rhode Island doesn't generate enough mail adequately to utilize the automated devices.

The five-year-old Detroit installation packs $11 million worth of equipment inside its modernistic glass and brick exterior. Located in a warehouse district it is a few blocks from expressways and a 38-minute drive from the airport. The loading docks can handle 14 railroad cars and 90 trucks.

Sacks of incoming mail are dropped down chutes onto 15 miles of conveyors which rumble through the 1 million square foot building. Television cameras stationed at key spots enable the clerk, perched on a high stool before a bank of pint sized television screens, to flick a switch or punch a button to reroute the onrushing sacks around any mailjam he sees developing.

After odd shaped pieces are culled out, letter sized mail is sped through one of six-facer canceler machines. They locate the stamp on each letter, cancel it, postmark the letter and turn the mail so the addresses are all on the same side. Each machine can process 30,000 letters an hour.

The machines cannot, however, discriminate between George Washington and an S&H green stamp. Nor can they determine whether a letter bears sufficient postage. But, one official said, "Somewhere along the line, some postal employe is going to see the envelope and slap a postage due stamp on it."

The canceled letters are piled into plastic trays and shuttled by conveyor to storage — oops, accumulation areas. The Post Office never, ever stores mail, officials insist.

A supervisor can, with a glance at a console studded with blue, red green and amber lights, tell how much of what type mail is in accumulation areas ready for sorting and which letter sorting machines are available for duty. By flipping a switch, he can dispatch the proper number of trays of mail via conveyor to the right machine.

Detroit has 22 letter sorting machines, roaring mechanical marvels which their attendants call "green monsters." Each is 10 feet tall, 12 feet wide and nearly 100 feet long, and can process 36,000 letters an hour, twice as fast as a clerk can by hand.

Using a key system, clerks shoot letters into more than 300 bins. A clerk by hand can reach no more than 81 pigeonholes.

Even more advanced is the Zip code reader. The one in Detroit is hooked up to a sorter and sometimes is pressed into regular service. Most of the time it plows through stacks of test mail while technicians fret over its performance.

The device still has some flaws. It cannot, for example, read handwriting. But 8 of every 10 letters are mailed by businesses, and most have typed or printed addresses.

The Post Office hails the Zip code reader as potentially the most important technological breakthrough in postal history. Three post offices — Boston, Houston and Los Angeles —are scheduled to get advanced models of the reader this year and O'Brien has said the system needs 70 of the $260,000 machines.

But for the machine to succeed, the Zip code —those five code numbers so symbolic of the automated age — must gain universal usage. To this end, the Post Office has mounted what perhaps is the most intensive and propaganda campaign outside wartime. The campaign is now in its fourth year, and at last report 65 per cent of the American people used Zip codes.

In a move to speed the mail, the department has divided the nation into 553 sectional centers. With the advent of the Zip code and these sectional centers, the department says there has been a sharp reduction in the number of times a letter must be sorted and resorted at different post offices before it reaches its destinations.

Before sectional centers, for example, a letter mailed from Washington to Wise River, Mont., would have been sorted first in Washington, again in Chicago, and again in Butte, Mont., before reaching Wise River. Now it is routed from Washington to a sectional center and then on to Wise River.

ANTIQUATED CENTERS

But some of the sectional centers are so antiquated that Benjamin Franklin the nation's first postmaster, would feel at home watching clerks flipping letters, one by one, into vast racks of pigeonholes, just as they did in his day.

Take Chicago, the world's biggest post office that isn't big enough any more. There, in a 14-story building constructed 34 years ago, 15,000 clerks and mail sorters try to cope with the postal problems of the 1960s — too much mail, not enough automation.

It was in Chicago last October that the postal system came nearest to collapse. At one time, 10 million pieces of mail jammed loading docks and clogged work aisles. O'Brien rescinded an overtime ban — decreed for economy reasons — authorized the hiring of temporary employes, diverted incoming mail to other post offices. The crisis eased.

Mechanization is sorely needed in Chicago, and in the 2,500 major postal facilities built before 1940. But it will be at least five years before industrial engineering and mechanization will have any significant impact on the system, officials predict.

Even if rapid headway is made in mechanization, it could all go for naught unless dramatic changes are made in other postal operations.

PERPLEXING PROBLEM

Transportation ranks among the department's most perplexing problems. In some locales, century old modes of transit work fine. Mail still is delivered by horseback on 38 routes in Kentucky, West Virginia and Montana. But the urban crush has become so great that helicopters are used in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco to ferry mail from post offices to airports.

Ronald B. Lee, 34-year-old former West Pointer who heads the department's office of planning, sees major post offices of the future simply as mail processing factories located along expressways close to the airports.

Postal operations in major urban areas have been hampered by rapid turnover in personnel. Chicago must hire nearly 1,000 new employes a month to keep its work force up to par. Detroit's turnover rate has hit 25 per cent a year. In San Francisco, 60 per cent of the 11,000 postal employes have less than one year's experience.

POSTMASTER GENERAL LAWRENCE F. O'BRIEN, shown recently in his Washington office, is asking Congress for more money for modernization and research. At the same time he has proposed a fresh start, turning the system into a non-profit government corporation — abolishing his job and selling bonds to finance modernization. (AP Newsfeatures Photo)

Controversy Still Raging Over Custer's Last Stand

Editorials — Spotlight — Amusements

Ninety years later, there still are many points of disagreement on the Battle of the Little Big Horn. Myths are thick around the famed massacre, and the commander's true character is shrouded. Was he a great leader, or a bungler? A new writers' group is searching for answers.

By STEVE MOORE

HELENA, Mont. (AP) — When George A. Custer and five companies of the U.S. 7th Cavalry fought their famous "Last Stand" on the banks of the Little Big Horn River in southeastern Montana in 1876, they spurred a military controversy that may rage as long as wars are fought.

Why didn't Custer listen to his Indian scouts, who forecast doom? Why did he detach two segments of troops and send them elsewhere before the battle? Why did he turn down an offer of additional troops and a platoon of Gatling guns?

It is questions such as these that a newly organized group of scholars of the West hopes to answer.

SEEK AND PRESERVE

"We want to seek out and preserve the truth for future students and historians," says Robert J. Ege of Great Falls, Mont., a writer, student of the Old West and a leader of the Custer fact finding group.

"But first we must debunk the myth, fantasy, official and unofficial inaccuracies that shroud the truth of what actually occurred," Ege said. Ege and Robert B. MacLaine of Tacoma, Wash., founded the Little Big Horn Associates last December and recruited 10 other Western history students as charter members. "We're 12 nonradicals, and we have no axes to grind," Ege said.

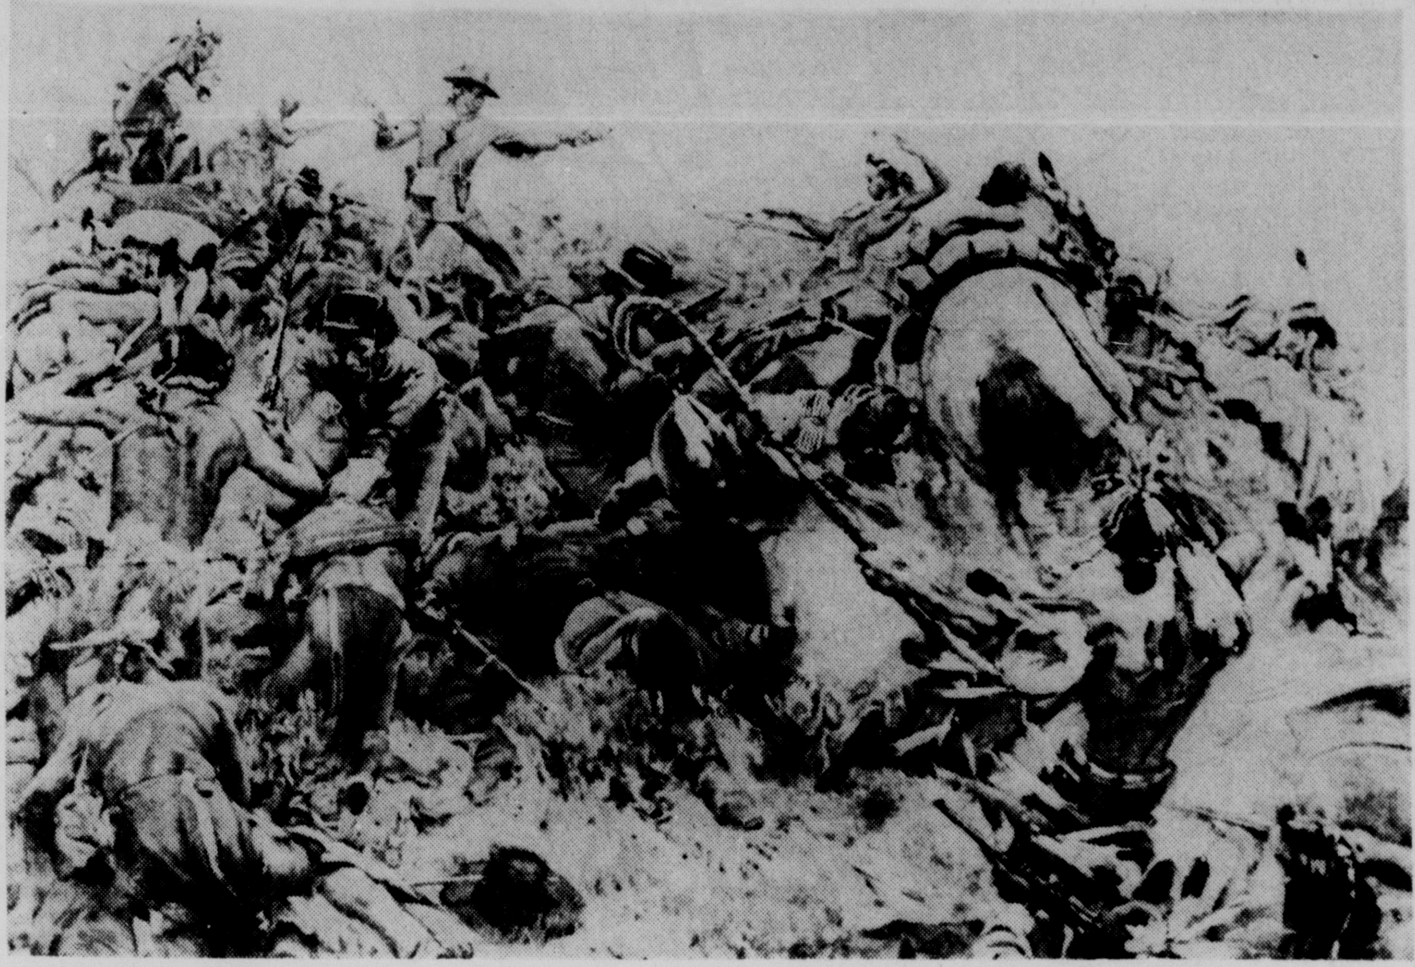
Radicalism has marked the Custer controversy. Custer went into history books either as a military genius and great leader or as a flamboyant, overconfident, glory seeker, whose biggest mistake was his last.

One school of thought says Custer wanted to be president and thought that by annihilating the Cheyenne and Sioux he could establish himself as a national hero. Others believe Custer was trying to rebuild his public image. He had been rebuked by President U. S. Grant for getting into a sticky political situation which involved the president's brother.

Contributing charter members of the associates include Carl W. Breihan, author of several books on the Old West; Michael Harrison, president of the Book Club of California and an Indian lecturer; and Dr. G. Derek West, Oxford graduate and a dean at McMaster University in Canada.

In the organization's monthly newsletter there are no colorful stories about an Indian fighter on the Little Big Horn standing to the last with saber dangling at his side and golden curls flying in the wind. No one writes of Custer being impeccably dressed in Army blues. Why?

Because such a man never fought at the Little Big Horn, says Ege, who has studied the battle for 25 years and is about to publish a book, "Curse Not His Curls." He said the real Custer went into the battle crewcut, saberless and in buckskins.



IN THE 90 YEARS since Lt. Col. George A. Custer led some 225 U.S. Army cavelrymen to death in a battle with Cheyenne and Sioux Indians, he has been the center of myths and controversy. His defenders maintain he was a military genius. His attackers insist he was a flamboyant, overconfident glory seeker. This famous painting, "Custer's Last Stand" by Harold Von Schmidt, is a romantic version, with Custer, in left background, killing Indians with two guns on the battlefield in southeastern Montana. DIVIDED GROUPS

Just prior to Custer's defeat, he divided his command into three groups and a pack train. This action has been questioned ever since.

MacLaine, a student of Western history for 45 years, believes Custer's tactics, if assessed from a soldier's standpoint, indicate he was overconfident, had not reconnoitered completely and should not have split his command.

Ege, one of the pro-Custer members of the society, disagrees. He said the maneuver was militarily sound. "It was the old tactic of reconnaissance in force," Ege said.

Custer expected to clash with a force of 800 to 900 Indians, Ege said, but a breakdown in communications kept him from learning of the Indian buildup in the valley. The camp, as he learned too late, was three miles long and contained 15,000 to 20,000 Indians.

As it turned out, Custer faced the largest war party ever formed to fight the "white eyes." About 4,500 braves were of age — ready to do battle.

Isolated, Custer and his five troops of cavalry could do little but retreat. The command was forced back to Custer Ridge, where it fought to the last. Only a horse survived.

Before engaging the Indians, Custer scribbled a note to Capt. Frederick W. Benteen ordering him to come immediately with men and ammunition. The order was not acted upon. Benteen's lack of action followed him to the grave.

"Benteen, though within easy reach of the besieged Custer, never came," Ege said. "He did in fact disobey a written order that was militarily in force until it was obeyed or the issuer was dead."

Vivian Paladin, editor of the authoritative publication, "Montana, the Magazine of Western History," minces few words describing why Benteen failed to fulfill the order. "Benteen hated Custer's guts," she said.

Maj. Marcus A. Reno, who had been ordered by Custer to proceed up the Little Big Horn Valley and engage the Indians, did so and was routed. Reno beat a disorganized retreat across the river and up into the bluffs south of Custer's position. He was immediately engaged by Indians and couldn't extricate himself, much less reinforce Custer.

WEAK SUBORDINATES

"Custer essentially had weak sister subordinates," Ege said.

"Reno was no Indian fighter and had no experience. Benteen did not know how to take orders."

The battlefield was such a mess it was impossible to determine how many men died with Custer. Ege and MacLaine believe there were about 225 killed.

"On the field 212 bodies were found. There were four officers missing and nine troopers unaccounted for," Ege said.

"Yet," Ege maintained, "you cannot say no one escaped and be absolutely sure."

Ege believes at least one man did escape. "His name was Frank Finkel," Ege said, "and he died in 1930 near Carter, Mont."

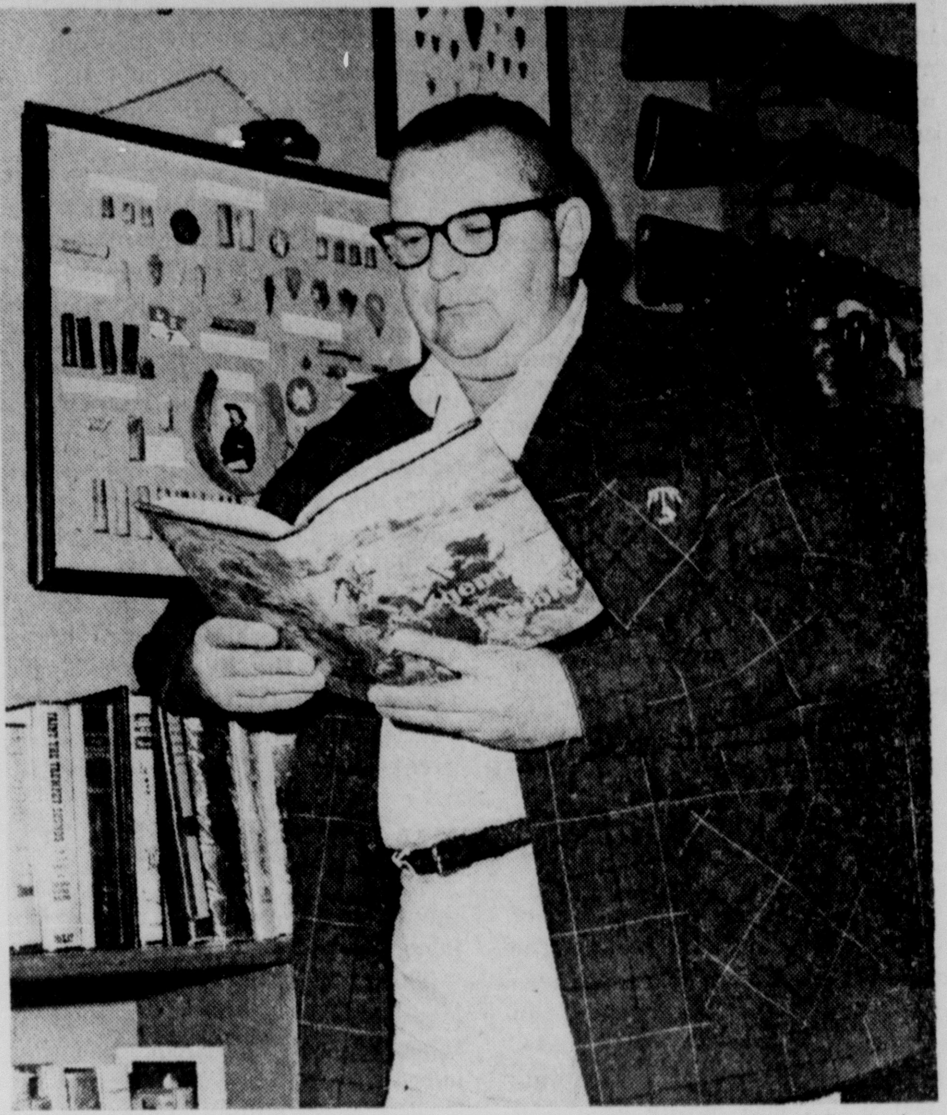
MacLaine, who considers himself neither anti nor pro Custer, often finds himself at odds with Ege. But he admitted "the Finkel case is the best so far" because the man knew so much about the terrain and what reportedly happened during the battle.

Survivor or no, the Battle of the Little Big Horn is far from over. More than 90 years later, the controversy shows no signs of diminishing.

"Students of Custer have almost divided themselves into armed camps," Mrs. Paladin said. "The Custerians are on one side, the Reno-Benteen supporters on the other."

Mrs. Paladin believes, "Any commander who allows himself to be massacred did not use good sense." She said the battle has been blown out of proportion. "Aside from the drama and mystery, it just wasn't that important," she added.

Right or wrong, Custer still occupies a favored niche in the hearts of many Americans. A 7th Cavalry guidon marks the spot where he reportedly fell. After the battle, the 765-acre area was proclaimed a national cemetery. On March 22, 1946, the site was declared a national monument.



DEBUNKING THE myths and establishing the facts about "Custer's Last Stand" is the aim of the new Little Big Horn Associates. Here one of the founders, Robert J. Ege, a writer, looks at one of the books in his Custer library at his home in Great Falls, Mont. The cases hold relics found on the battlefield on the Little Big Horn River in southeastern Montana where Lt. Col. George A. Custer and about 225 of his troopers were killed by Cheyenne and Sioux Indians.

Custer's troopers who died with him in a fierce battle against some 4,500 Cheyenne and Sioux braves. The cross, erected soon after the battle in southeastern Montana 15 miles from Hardin, has been replaced by a blue and white Seventh Cavalry guidon. BOTTOM: An aerial view of the Custer battlefield. Post Office Department Racing With Catastrophe

By GAYLORD SHAW

WASHINGTON (AP) —Press a green button and the squat, innocent looking machine starts chipping away at 200 years of postal tradition.

First its motor whines unsteadily, then settles into a quiet purr as six pieces of mail a second swish past its electronic eyes.

Zip — Zip — Zip.

In one hour, the machine can handle more mail than a clerk can sort in two hours into the pigeonhole cases first used in the United States in colonial days.

The ZIP code reader machine symbolizes the big push to revolutionize the nation's postal system — to convert it from a creaking relic of horse and buggy days into a jet age operation.

But the machine has been installed in only one post office and some bugs still must be worked out. Jet age mail service remains a long way off. In fact, it's quite likely the United States will have a man on the moon before its postal system can guarantee one day delivery of priority domestic mail.

PRESSING PROGRAM

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brian, best known as an astute political strategist, is pressing a $100 million postal modernization program this fiscal year and is seeking $300 million in modernization funds for next fiscal year. He has said, however, that the Post Office needs $1 billion a year for five years to adequately update its facilities.

O'Brien also is expanding the department's research efforts. He has asked Congress for $23.1 million in research funds for next year, up 40 per cent from last year but still only about half what the much smaller Veterans Administration spends for research.

But even as the Post Office searches for better ways to deliver the mail, it is, in the words of O'Brien, "in a race with catastrophe." Mail volume, increasing by about 11 million pieces daily, now totals 80 billion pieces a year.

This must be processed in aging plants that are poorly located and grossly inadequate — many of them too small to accommodate modern postal equipment. It must be funneled into a distribution system that hasn't adapted to the times.

The department is hemmed in by a maze of legal restrictions that have sprouted haphazardly over the years. It is buffeted by waves of political pressure.

In the past, as it teetered on the brink of chaos, the department has tried to solve its problems with more money and more people. Employment now totals 0,000, and modernization plans call for no cutback. The annual budget tops $6.3 billion. But the service continues to run a deficit and is seeking an $800 million annual rate increase — the third rate hike in the past decade.

The Post Office has gotten so big and so unwieldy, O'Brien says, that it "reminds me of the classic definition of an elephant — a mouse built to government specifications."

After 18 months as Postmaster General, O'Brien has concluded it would be best to slay the postal elephant and start afresh wtih a nonprofit government corporation.

Under his plan, which includes a very unbureaucratic proposal that his own job be abolished, bonds would be sold to finance postal modernization. President Johnson appointed a commission to study the proposal.

SIMILAR PLAN

O'Brien's plan is similar to one scheduled to go before the British Parliament this year. Under both the British and the O'Brien plans, the corporation would set postal rates. The British plan also would remove postal workers from civil service, but O'Brien has not made a specific statement on what would happen to U.S. postal workers. He has said, however, that he envisions the corporation as a public service that would not have to pay its own way.

O'Brien's corporate proposal got mixed reviews in Congress. This is understandable. Most congressmen are less than anxious to give up the political patronage system so embedded in postal operations.

Each of the nation's 33,000 postmasters, for example, is appointed subject to veto of a congressman or local political chieftain.

Some members of Congress have introduced bills to reform various phases of the postal system, but O'Brien says these "are only props for the tottering structure we now inhabit so uneasily."

Even as their boss talks of abandoning the present leaky ship, Post Office Department administrators, engineers and employes dream and scheme of better ways to deliver the mail, be it for Uncle Sam or for Post Office Inc.

Some of the ideas, if they ever are officially proposed, are certain to provoke grumbles from the public. Like the suggestion that door to door delivery of mail be terminated. Under this plan, everybody would pick up his mail at neighborhood distribution centers.

PRE-STAMPED ENVELOPES

Another proposal calls for abolition of postage stamps. Why spend millions of dollars to print stamps, more millions to sell them and even more millions to cancel them, some officials ask, when envelope manufacturers could produce and sell only prestamped envelopes.

Among postal officials there seems to be an almost universial desire to set strict standards for sizes and shapes of letters. One official noted that Americans are free to use 700 sizes of envelopes. West Germany permits 12, the Soviet Union 6.

Another official thinks the post office also should set standards for the size parcels it will accept.

Some officials predict the post office of the future will serve merely as a communications relay center for image transmission of letter mail directly into homes and offices.

Detroit Postmaster Edward L. Baker's post office, billed as the most mechanized postal facility in the world, serves as a proving ground for advanced equipment. The department's only operational Zip code reader, for example, is there.

Actually, Detroit is the department's second testing center. The first was set up seven years ago at Providence, R.I., but was plagued from the start by problems with equipment. Most of the bugs have been ironed out, officials say, but one problem remains: All of Rhode Island doesn't generate enough mail adequately to utilize the automated devices.

The five-year-old Detroit installation packs $11 million worth of equipment inside its modernistic glass and brick exterior. Located in a warehouse district it is a few blocks from expressways and a 38-minute drive from the airport. The loading docks can handle 14 railroad cars and 90 trucks.

Sacks of incoming mail are dropped down chutes onto 15 miles of conveyors which rumble through the 1 million square foot building. Television cameras stationed at key spots enable the clerk, perched on a high stool before a bank of pint sized television screens, to flick a switch or punch a button to reroute the onrushing sacks around any mailjam he sees developing.

After odd shaped pieces are culled out, letter sized mail is sped through one of six-facer canceler machines. They locate the stamp on each letter, cancel it, postmark the letter and turn the mail so the addresses are all on the same side. Each machine can process 30,000 letters an hour.

The machines cannot, however, discriminate between George Washington and an S&H green stamp. Nor can they determine whether a letter bears sufficient postage. But, one official said, "Somewhere along the line, some postal employe is going to see the envelope and slap a postage due stamp on it."

The canceled letters are piled into plastic trays and shutted by conveyor to storage — oops, accumulation areas. The Post Office never, ever stores mail, officials insist.

A supervisor can, with a glance at a console studded with blue, red green and amber lights, tell how much of what type mail is in accumulation areas ready for sorting and which letter sorting machines are available for duty. By flipping a switch, he can dispatch the proper number of trays of mail via conveyor to the right machine.

Detroit has 22 letter sorting machines, roaring mechanical marvels which their attendants call "green monsters." Each is 10 feet tall, 12 feet wide and nearly 100 feet long, and can process 36,000 letters an hour, twice as fast as a clerk can by hand.

Using a key system, clerks shoot letters into more than 300 bins. A clerk by hand can reach no more than 84 pigeonholes.

Even more advanced is the Zip code reader. The one in Detroit is hooked up to a sorter and sometimes is pressed into regular service. Most of the time it plows through stacks of test mail while technicians fret over its performance.

The device still has some flaws. It cannot, for example, read handwriting. But 8 of every 10 letters are mailed by businesses, and most have typed or printed addresses.

The Post Office hails the Zip code reader as potentially the most important technological breakthrough in postal history. Three post offices — Boston, Houston and Los Angeles —are scheduled to get advanced models of the reader this year and O'Brien has said the system needs 70 of the $260,000 machines.

But for the machine to succeed, the Zip code —those five code numbers so symbolic of the automated age — must gain universal usage. To this end, the Post Office has mounted what perhaps is the most intensive and propaganda campaign outside wartime. The campaign is now in its fourth year, and at last report 65 per cent of the American people used Zip codes.

But some of the sectional centers are so antiquated that Benjamin Franklin, the nation's first postmaster, would feel at home watching clerks flipping letters, one by one, into vast racks of pigeonholes, just as they did in his day.

U. S. Fighting Men 'Tall'

One would think almost anybody would deserve a vacation after a year of working 12 to 15 hours a day, seven days a week. And that would seem especially true if men working that way were constantly in danger of being killed.

Without a doubt, one of the biggest improvements in war methods in the war in Vietnam is the 12-month rotation system. Men who have served that long in Vietnam are allowed to leave the war behind for a while and perhaps permanently.

In previous wars, the soldiers, sailors, marines and air force men have had no such breaks, although there was some movement toward a specified time in the Korean War. Prior to that time, men were in for the "duration." That gave them nothing to look forward to — no hope of a specific date on which they might walk away from the horrors of war. There is nothing like setting time goals, in or out of war, to make unpleasant periods seem shorter.

A house armed services subcommittee recently reported that morale of American troops in Vietnam is "extremely high from the highest general to the lowest private." The report was made after the subcommittee, headed by Representative James A. Byrne returned from a 13-day trip to Southeast Asia.

The subcommittee said the biggest single factor contributing to high morale of servicemen in Vietnam is the 12-month rotation system.

Incidentally, it was reported that morale among the Negro fighting men in Vietnam paralleled that of the white men. The Negro soldier was described as "a full member of the team."

When we have fighting men of this caliber it gives us more faith in our nation. We wonder how the rabble - rousers of this country, including some in the Senate and some so-called civil rights pushers on "anti-poverty" doles feel when they realize we have men under fire whose morale is rated high. Nothing in the lives of the agitators can equal the fine spirit of our fighting men whose morale is great.

Maddox' Angry Outburst

Governor Lester Maddox of Georgia, who was elected by the state legislature after he ran second to the Republican candidate in a three-man general election, recently gave way to an angry outburst which was hardly becoming to a state's chief executive. In a rage over being accused of meddling in local affairs, Maddox jerked open the door to his office and threw out a delegation of county officials who had conferred with him on the subject of school consolidation.

Under a strange law in Georgia, if any candidate fails to get a majority of the votes, the legislature can choose between the two men who ran highest. In other states, in the general election, the man who polls the highest number of votes is the winner, even though he may not get more votes than all his opponents combined. In the last Georgia general election, a third candidate was entered in a successful effort to prevent "Bo" Calloway, a strong, capable Republican, from winning over Maddox, who ran almost entirely on his opposition to integration.

Maddox at one time ran a restaurant but closed it down rather than yield to a court order to serve Negroes.

Even among strong segregationists, Calloway was the choice of the people but, because the Georgia legislature is almost solidly Democratic, Maddox won the governor's seat.

Carroll county officials had proposed closing all existing schools and placing all students in one large school. Maddox had said he opposed the consolidation because the people had not had a chance to vote on the issue. He is generally opposed to consolidation because he says it is simply another way the federal government forces integration.

The delegation which called on Maddox was led by J. C. Brown, school board chairman, and its purpose was to ask Maddox not to block a $1.25-million appropriation for the proposed consolidation.

Regarding the delegation's ejection by Maddox, Brown said:

"I told him as many times as I had heard him fussing about Washington intervening in so many things and then him doing the very same thing these people were doing, except worse."

While Maddox' outburst was certainly a display of lack of self-control, we doubt that Brown's accusation that he was "messin' around where he hadn't oughta be messin' around" was solidly based. Apparently, the Carroll County school officials were asking the state legislature to make a special $1.25-million appropriation for the schools of their county. This certainly seemed to make the matter a state affair. If every county in the state were to ask big sums for the construction of large schools to replace all existing schools, the drain on the state treasury could become unbearable.

In most states, schools are now largely financed by state appropriations. This makes the operation of the schools a direct state affair.

Of course, the same situation will develop nationwide if states continue to call on the federal government for school aid. We don't want the federal government to interfere in our schools, and that is the reason we oppose federal aid to the schools.

Charges Of Treason

If the Greek politician Andreas Papandreou is guilty of high treason against the monarchy as charged, it is just as well the United States is rid of him. Papandreou is a former American citizen — a professor, no less, who headed the Department of Economics at the University of California at Berkeley. He gave up his citizenship to return to Greece and join his father in leftist politics. Early last week, he was officially charged with conspiring to overthrow King Constantine and set up a socialist state.

The best information available at the moment is that the coup was to take the form of a paramilitary drop, swiftly and efficiently carried out. The rebel organization goes by the name of Aspida (Shield). Already, fifteen Greek army officers have been sent to prison for terms ranging from two to eighteen years for their part in the abortive affair.

It has been rumored for some time that Andreas Papandreou, son of former Premier George Papandreou, was the guiding light of Aspida. As such, he would be the civilian brains, working from within Parliament of which he is a member.

The two Papandreous and 5,000 others were detained on April 11 when the Greek Army took over the country in the name of King Constantine. It was done, said the generals and colonels, to thwart a leftist move against the government, possibly with outside Communist help. The King, a handsome, democratic sort, did not know until the early hours of morning whether his country faced a leftwing or rightwing coup. He did not like the thought of either one.

As it turned out, the King decided that he would have to go along with the junta, but insisted that there be no executions. Thus far, there haven't been. But if the young Papandreou is found guilty, the generals may make him an exception.

To The Editor:

Through the years we have made the facilities at the Progressive Men's Club available to various groups in our community. Sometimes these groups have proven to be a disappointment to us in their behavior and mistreatment of the facilities.

I am most happy to publicly state that the Junior - Senior Prom of the West Monroe High School was a real delight for us. These young people were the best behaved group we have ever had the pleasure of hosting. The West Monroe High School, their parents, and chaperones can be justly proud of them and all of us can take encouragement in the knowledge that we do have such fine young people in our community.

Re. Perez Speech

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

The article in this morning's World, page 6-A, where the speech of the Honorable Leander H. Perez has been termed a "sneak punch" calls for some rebuttal.

To me, just an ordinary Joe Blow, this gentleman is the most honorable citizen of this state, has only the good of all the people in mind, and has led the fight to keep the races more pure than any other one man in the history of Louisiana. If the people backed him in his hard fighting tactics, something could have been done to undo the cowardly un-American activities of that group in Sodom to make our people a race of mongrels.

To call his actions a "sneak punch" is only the way of cowards when trying to carry over something which is not wanted by many people; this tax was put over by a very small group although it was stated that it was done by a majority of 2 to 1. As about 1600 people voted on the thing, it would seem many did not care for it.

To me, it does not behoove the commissioner of streets to term this such as he did, more especially after what he, the commissioner has done to the residents along Moore Avenue, putting over the paving of this street against the wishes of many of the homeowners. A petition was given him last year, which he ignored. If this is not a sneak punch, I do not know the meaning of the word. To add to this, the street was covered with sand several weeks ago, which has been blowing in the houses on the north side of the street, while every few days road patrols would grade the stuff to the center of the street, then back, then it would be rolled and again in a few days the same procedure would repeat.

The talk by Judge Perez was to stop the march of this integration deal, and anyone who is against such is away out to the left too far to be of much use to America.

War Problems

West Monroe, La.

To the Editors:

I've never written the way I feel about anything to any paper. I think "Views of the Readers" is the best part of your Sunday paper.

I'm with the Captain (Ret.) U.S.A. that wrote from Colorado that he will fight for his grandsons. This no-win war is no good. It tears your heart out to see boys dying in Vietnam, and know it's that kind of war. Only the poor fight these wars. There is nothing fair about it. My husband went through Two Wars. He served 22 years in the Army, retiring in April, 1964. I think it was 22 years wasted if now we are only having no-win wars that aren't even declared wars. I wonder how those people in Washington feel knowing that this war will just be used for the 1968 elections. This country sure is going downhill fast. I have seen riots overseas and I use to say that could not happen in America. Boy, was I ever wrong. I'd be ashamed to go to those same places and say I'm an American after the way things are here. We have federal laws but who gets punished for breaking them? Only the ones who break them without knowing it. I think people like Martin Luther King, Stokely Carmichael and Cassius Clay should be jailed for the things they have said and done. They, like a lot of others, live off the poor people. King says he won't run for president. Why should he when Johnson will run for him. He dictates to him now. We fight to keep the North Vietnam off South Vietnam, but here in the United States the federal government pushes everything down our throats, and if we say one word they (the federal government) use threats against us, by saying they'll cut off our federal aid if we don't comply. A threat is a threat regardless if it is Russia, North Vietnam or the federal government that makes it. It's sad times when threats are used against people by the government when we pay the taxes to run it. I've got a 10 year old son. What happens if Cassius Clay can refuse to serve his country and get by with it. We, the whites, have fought a long time and now all want a slice of what we have. There are lots of Negroes fighting in Vietnam who believe in what they are fighting for. They are not mistreated by the services as Martin Luther King says they are. If he will check he will find out that most of the Negroes and whites in Vietnam are volunteers. I lived in Germany for six years. Most of the Negroes there were volunteers. They have a "ball" there. Cassius Clay should have been arrested on the spot when he refused to be inducted. If a soldier, sailor or any other serviceman opens his mouth or writes to his Congressman he is dealt with at once. I see in the paper that Johnson's daughter stirred up trouble in South America. People like that should stay at home. The trouble in Panama a few years back was started by a smart college guy who was going to school in that country from the States. He caused some deaths.

This business of deferring people by reason of religion is a lot of bull. I'm sure there are those who have died and will die just as religious as Cassius Clay. People like that are not Christians. He fights for big money here in the States. He said he didn't want to have to fight looking over his shoulders behind him at boys from Georgia. I'm sure now if he went in he might have to watch those boys from elsewhere. I believe he is just plain scared like those draft card burners are mostly 4-Fers who couldn't pass the mental test and that is the only way they could be noticed. They stand out anyway. Most look like nuts and are filthy dirty.

I say God Bless every man who is fighting in Vietnam. My heart goes out to every mother, father, wife, brother and sister of those boys. There's no greater feeling than to see a serviceman. I was really proud of my husband and still am. I love to watch a military parade. The men are the neatest and best looking men in the United States.

Let's let those boys do their job. They are over there with one hand tied behind them. This war could have been over a a long, long time ago. I have a feeling it will end somewhere around the middle of 1968. I'm sure a lot of people would like to see it end before election.

Republicans Hit Snag In Tax-Sharing Plan

DIFFICULTIES of many sorts are beginning to beset Republican proposals for "tax sharing" between the federal and state governments.

Briefly, the idea seeks a way in which some portion of federal tax collections can be returned directly to the states to help restore a balance between Washington and the 50 other capitals.

Also briefly, the troubles that loom for the proposal include these:

1. Federal spending is so unbridled now, it is unlikely that in the foreseeable future there could be anything left to "share."

2. The possibility of getting the state "share" without any federal strings attached seems remote.

3. ARGUMENTS as to not which state would get what share, on what basis seem headed for endless wrangling.

4. Latest studies indicate a rising level of state revenues even without a share of the federal bite, thus reducing the "crisis" need for such sharing.

There is nothing in any of this, however, that should discourage Republicans from continuing to work toward the principle that underlies the proposal: reducing federal taxation.

The first important current burst of interest in this entire matter came with the 1964 Presidential campaign which so many are prone to brand as having produced "no new proposals." Actually, one of the campaign's major proposals was for a form of federal-state tax sharing.

IN A SPEECH in East St. Louis, Ill., for instance, I said that "The first step should be for the federal government to return a share of the taxes collected from them. Such grants without strings should gradually replace [illegible] strings which the federal government now uses to control more than $10 billion of spending at the local level."

This is still a practical goal although not as sweeping as some later Republican proposals for a more across-the-board approach. My suggestion would simply have replaced existing federal grant programs with so-called "block" grants in which comparable amounts of money would be given to the states, but not in the form of the tightly wrapped program packages in which they now are contained.

As I said then this would be just a first step. It would not really do much more than cut a lot of red tape, but even that is a useful possibility.

MORE IMPORTANTLY in another campaign proposal I suggested something which would cut straight through the difficulties surrounding current tax-sharing proposals, achieve the desired purpose, be practical, not require involved formulas or interstate squabbling and also be useful whether or not levels of state taxation go up or down.

The proposal simply was to legislate an across-the-board reduction of 5 per cent per year, up to 25 per cent, on all income taxes.

Supreme Court Palls In Obscenity Appeals

FOR THE PAST ten years since the famous Roth case of 1957, the U. S. Supreme Court has been wobbling back and forth on smut. Most of the time, the court has appeared to support a proposition that just about anything goes; even "Fanny Hill" was not obscene. Other times, the court has tended to protect community sensibilities; Ralph Ginzburg was a dirty "panderer," and had to go to jail.

This past Monday the court looked wearily at this whole field of the law, and then turned its glance away. In a brief per curiam opinion, probably composed by Justice Brennan, the court brushed aside three cases with an air of "go away, boys, you bother me." The effect, this time, was to suggest that prosecutors forget about obscenity charges unless they have a truly flagrant case, possibly involving juveniles, to bring into court.

THE THREE CASES came up from Arkansas, Kentucky and New York. Each of them originally was thought to embody some significant point of obscenity law. That was why the court agreed to hear them in the first place. In the Arkansas case, the question was whether the State could proceed "in rem" against a flock of girlie magazines, and have the magazines destroyed as obscene. The cases from Kentucky and New York were accepted because they involved the criminal liability of booksellers and newsstand clerks for the sale of off-color books.

But on Monday the high court was in one of its Olympian humors. The points of law that had been fully briefed and argued now seemed immaterial. It was enough that the particular magazines and books in question were not obscene as a matter of law. So ho-hum, and the convictions were reversed. Harlan and Clark dissented, but their hearts weren't in it.

This was a disserve on the court's part. The questions presented in the three cases were serious questions, of large importance to local prosecutors and to those engaged in the retail sale of books and magazines. The concept of an "in rem" approach, in which the offending book itself is tried, rather than its author, publisher, or distributor, at one time commanded a considerable support within the bar. The Arkansas law of 1961 reflected this legal opinion. It would be useful to learn from the Supreme Court, as the ultimate authority, whether this approach has validity: it is the court's duty to instruct us. But on Monday the court was out to lunch or gone fishing. It would not say.

SIMILARLY, the operators of drug stores, newsstands, and bookshops would like to know where they stand. Seven years ago, in Smith v. California, the court laid down the legal rule that in obscenity prosecutions, an element of "scienter" had to be proved. That is, no one could be convicted of selling an obscene book unless it were shown that he sold it "knowingly."

In the New York case, a clerk at a subway kiosk sold a couple of books called "Lust Pool" and "Shame Agent." His customer was a plain-clothes cop. According to the evidence, the clerk acknowledged that the two paperbacks were "garbage," but remarked that "there is worse stuff than that around." The cop made his arrest; conviction followed.

In the Kentucky case, a Committee on Moral and Social Welfare from the Paducah Ministerial Association called on a local newsstand operator and urged him not to sell such magazines as "High Heels" and "Spree." The distributor said he would think it over; meanwhile, he put the suspect publications in a rack behind the cashier's stand where they would have to be asked for by name. A couple of smut-hunting ladies came around, asked for the magazines and bought them. The distributor was found guilty of knowingly selling obscene publications and fined $250.

IN REVERSING the convictions, the high court tossed out some hints that will cause no gladness in Legion of Decency offices.

"In none of the cases," said the court, "was there a claim that the statute in question reflected a specific and limited state concern for juveniles. In none was there any suggestion of an assault upon individual privacy by publication in a manner so obtrusive as to make it impossible for an unwilling individual to avoid exposure to it."

Neither was there evidence of "pandering." In the New York and Kentucky cases, the customers did not have to be persuaded by sales appeals. They asked for the dirt on their own. The books and magazines in question may not have been utterly without redeeming social value. In its Delphic way, the court did not choose to discuss the issues.

This leaves the law as murky as ever. "What is "obscene" as a matter of law?" The answer, apparently, is durn near nothing. What conduct, in this field, is criminal? The answer is that we still don't know. And the court, for the nonce, won't talk.

Fast Senate Action On Dodd Is Deplored

THE SENATE will debate beginning on May 22 the recommendation of its ethics committee that Senator Thomas Dodd be censured. It is a pity that the leadership of the Senate is in so great a hurry. The ethics committee took approximately fourteen months to hear the case and write its recommendations. Those who are unconvinced by those recommendations should have a little time to do some research. What is the difference between censuring Senator Dodd now, and waiting a few weeks? Will the Senate lose its honor irretrievably during the period?

There are those who ask, Why delay? Wasn't the work of the ethics committee for all intents and purposes conclusive? That assumption is natural: why would a responsible group of senators desire to hang their colleague unjustly?

Yet even a perfunctory examination of the report, when compared with the hearings, suggests prejudice. Prejudice by the staff. It is a fact of life that a committee relies heavily, sometimes even altogether, on its staff. The staff framed the report, the senators saw it and approved of it. Did they mean to approve, for instance, of the following summaries?

CONCERNING the testimonial dinner for Senator Dodd at which Vice President Johnson was the guest of honor and the alleged impropriety of Senator Dodd's use of some of the funds raised at the event: "President Johnson," said the Report, "recently stated publicly that he never knew that any dinner he attended was to raise funds for anyone's personal use (p. 893 Hearings)."

Now on reading that sentence aren't you left with the impression that Johnson is conveying the impression that he was deceived by Senator Dodd? — that he had gone to Connecticut thinking the affair was to be one thing, whereas it has turned out to be something else — something else quite objectionable?

But then turn to page 893 of the Hearings which unfortunately is not easy to do because not everybody has the two fat Hearings volumes handy, and you will find an excerpt from a Presidential Press Conference (April 22, 1966) at which the President is asked his views on the use of money raised at the dozens of testimonial dinners he has attended. The President says that he has been at no testimonial dinner specifically described as intended to raise money for personal use (obviously). "I always understood," Johnson went on, "that they were having an appreciation dinner or testimonial dinner but I didn't know that it was for personal, or political, or local campaign, or national."

IN OTHER WORDS, the President, although he did not know that the proceeds were to be made available for personal use, said that for that matter he did not know for what purpose they were intended. At no time did he express shock at the proposal that such proceeds might be put to personal use, or imply that he had been deceived by Dodd.

What about the people who actually put up the money, who bought the one-hundred dollar tickets? Once again the committee's staff is deceptive.

The staff lists the four affairs, describing the number of affidavits collected, and the number of people present. Here is a typical example: "Form affidavits of about 300 persons who attended the 1965 dinner indicated that they contributed money for Senator Dodd's personal use. Approximately 1,000 persons attended the dinner, according to newspaper reports."

ONCE AGAIN: What is the impression conveyed? That only thirty per cent of the people who attended that dinner were prepared to sign affidavits favorable to Senator Dodd.

No mention at all that not one person who bought a ticket subsequently protested, either to Dodd or to the Committee — not one.

U. S. Fighting Men 'Tall'

One would think almost anybody would deserve a vacation after a year of working 12 to 15 hours a day, seven days a week. And that would seem especially true if men working that way were constantly in danger of being killed.

Without a doubt, one of the biggest improvements in war methods in the war in Vietnam is the 12-month rotation system. Men who have served that long in Vietnam are allowed to leave the war behind for a while and perhaps permanently.

In previous wars, the soldiers, sailors, marines and air force men have had no such breaks, although there was some movement toward a specified time in the Korean War. Prior to that time, men were in for the "duration." That gave them nothing to look forward to — no hope of a specific date on which they might walk away from the horrors of war. There is nothing like setting time goals, in or out of war, to make unpleasant periods seem shorter.

A house armed services subcommittee recently reported that morale of American troops in Vietnam is "extremely high from the highest general to the lowest private." The report was made after the subcommittee, headed by Representative James A. Byrne returned from a 13-day trip to Southeast Asia.

The subcommittee said the biggest single factor contributing to high morale of servicemen in Vietnam is the 12-month rotation system.

Incidentally, it was reported that morale among the Negro fighting men in Vietnam paralleled that of the white men. The Negro soldier was described as "a full member of the team."

When we have fighting men of this caliber it gives us more faith in our nation. We wonder how the rabble - rousers of this country, including some in the Senate and some so-called civil rights pushers on "anti-poverty" doles feel when they realize we have men under fire whose morale is rated high. Nothing in the lives of the agitators can equal the fine spirit of our fighting men whose morale is great.

Maddox' Angry Outburst

Governor Lester Maddox of Georgia, who was elected by the state legislature after he ran second to the Republican candidate in a three-man general election, recently gave way to an angry outburst which was hardly becoming to a state's chief executive. In a rage over being accused of meddling in local affairs, Maddox jerked open the door to his office and threw out a delegation of county officials who had conferred with him on the subject of school consolidation.

Under a strange law in Georgia, if any candidate fails to get a majority of the votes, the legislature can choose between the two men who ran highest. In other states, in the general election, the man who polls the highest number of votes is the winner, even though he may not get more votes than all his opponents combined. In the last Georgia general election, a third candidate was entered in a successful effort to prevent "Bo" Calloway, a strong, capable Republican, from winning over Maddox, who ran almost entirely on his opposition to integration.

Maddox at one time ran a restaurant but closed it down rather than yield to a court order to serve Negroes.

Even among strong segregationists, Calloway was the choice of the people but, because the Georgia legislature is almost solidly Democratic, Maddox won the governor's seat.

Carroll county officials had proposed closing all existing schools and placing all students in one large school. Maddox had said he opposed the consolidation because the people had not had a chance to vote on the issue. He is generally opposed to consolidation because he says it is simply another way the federal government forces integration.

The delegation which called on Maddox was led by J. C. Brown, school board chairman, and its purpose was to ask Maddox not to block a $1.25-million appropriation for the proposed consolidation.

Regarding the delegation's ejection by Maddox, Brown said:

"I told him as many times as I had heard him fussing about Washington intervening in so many things and then him doing the very same thing these people were doing, except worse."

While Maddox' outburst was certainly a display of lack of self-control, we doubt that Brown's accusation that he was "messin' around where he hadn't oughta be messin' around" was solidly based. Apparently, the Carroll County school officials were asking the state legislature to make a special $1.25-million appropriation for the schools of their county. This certainly seemed to make the matter a state affair. If every county in the state were to ask big sums for the construction of large schools to replace all existing schools, the drain on the state treasury could become unbearable.

In most states, schools are now largely financed by state appropriations. This makes the operation of the schools a direct state affair.

Of course, the same situation will develop nationwide if states continue to call on the federal government for school aid. We don't want the federal government to interfere in our schools, and that is the reason we oppose federal aid to the schools.

Charges Of Treason

If the Greek politician Andreas Papandreou is guilty of high treason against the monarchy as charged, it is just as well the United States is rid of him. Papandreou is a former American citizen — a professor, no less, who headed the Department of Economics at the University of California at Berkeley. He gave up his citizenship to return to Greece and join his father in leftist politics. Early last week, he was officially charged with conspiring to overthrow King Constantine and set up a socialist state.

The best information available at the moment is that the coup was to take the form of a paramilitary drop, swiftly and efficiently carried out. The rebel organization goes by the name of Aspida (Shield). Already, fifteen Greek army officers have been sent to prison for terms ranging from two to eighteen years for their part in the abortive affair.

It has been rumored for some time that Andreas Papandreou, son of former Premier George Papandreou, was the guiding light of Aspida. As such, he would be the civilian brains, working from within Parliament of which he is a member.

The two Papandreous and 5,000 others were detained on April 11 when the Greek Army took over the country in the name of King Constantine. It was done, said the generals and colonels, to thwart a leftist move against the government, possibly with outside Communist help. The King, a handsome, democratic sort, did not know until the early hours of morning whether his country faced a leftwing or rightwing coup. He did not like the thought of either one.

As it turned out, the King decided that he would have to go along with the junta, but insisted that there be no executions. Thus far, there haven't been. But if the young Papandreou is found guilty, the generals may make him an exception.

To The Editor:

Through the years we have made the facilities at the Progressive Men's Club available to various groups in our community. Sometimes these groups have proven to be a disappointment to us in their behavior and mistreatment of the facilities.

I am most happy to publicly state that the Junior - Senior Prom of the West Monroe High School was a real delight for us. These young people were the best behaved group we have ever had the pleasure of hosting. The West Monroe High School, their parents, and chaperones can be justly proud of them, and all of us can take encouragement in the knowledge that we do have such fine young people in our community.

Re, Perez Speech

Monroe, La.

To the Editor

The article in this morning's World, page 6-A where the speech of the Honorable Leander H. Perez has been termed a "sneak punch" calls for some rebuttal.

To me, just an ordinary Joe Blow, this gentleman is the most honorable citizen of this state, has only the good of all the people in mind, and has led the fight to keep the races more pure than any other one man in the history of Louisiana. Had the people backed him in his hard fighting tactics, something could have been done to undo the cowardly un-American activities of that group in Sodom, to make our people a race of mongrels.

To call his actions a "sneak punch" is only the way of cowards when trying to carry over something which is not wanted by many people; this tax was put over by a very small group, although it was stated that it was done by a majority of 2 to 1. As about 1600 people voted on the thing, it would seem many did not care for it.

To me, it does not behoove the commissioner of streets to term this such as he did, more especially after what he, the commissioner has done to the residents along Moore Avenue, putting over the paving of this street against the wishes of many of the homeowners. A petition was given him last year, which he ignored. If this is not a sneak punch, I do not know the meaning of the word. To add to this, the street was covered with sand several weeks ago, which has been blowing in the houses on the north side of the street, while every few days road patrols would grade the stuff to the center of the street, then back, then it would be rolled and again in a few days the same procedure would repeat.

The talk by Judge Perez was to stop the march of this integration deal, and anyone who is against such is away out to the left too far to be of much use to America.

War Problems

West Monroe, La.

To the Editors:

I've never written the way I feel about anything to any paper. I think "Views of the Readers" is the best part of your Sunday paper.

I'm with the Captain (Ret.) U.S.A. that wrote from Colorado that he will fight for his grandsons. This no-win war is no good. It tears your heart out to see boys dying in Vietnam, and know it's that kind of war. Only the poor fight these wars. There is nothing fair about it. My husband went through two wars. He served 22 years in the army, retiring in April, 1964. I think it was 22 years wasted if now we are only having no-win wars that aren't even declared wars. I wonder how those people in Washington feel knowing that this war will just be used for the 1968 elections. This country sure is going downhill fast. I have seen riots overseas and I use to say that could not happen in America. Boy, was I ever wrong. I'd be ashamed to go to those same places and say I'm an American after the way things are here. We have federal laws but who gets punished for breaking them? Only the ones who break them without knowing it. The distributor said he would think it over; meanwhile, he put the suspect publications in a rack behind the cashier's stand where they would have to be asked for by name. A couple of smut-hunting ladies came around, asked for the magazines and bought them. The distributor was found guilty of knowingly selling obscene publications and fined $250.

IN REVERSING the convictions, the high court tossed out some hints that will cause no gladness in Legion of Decency offices.

"In none of the cases," said the court, "was there a claim that the statute in question reflected a specific and limited state concern for juveniles. In none was there any suggestion of an assault upon individual privacy by publication in a manner so obtrusive as to make it impossible for an unwilling individual to avoid exposure to it."

Neither was there evidence of "pandering." In the New York and Kentucky cases, the customers did not have to be persuaded by sales appeals. They asked for the dirt on their own. The books and magazines in question may not have been utterly without redeeming social value. In its Delphic way, the court did not choose to discuss the issues.

This leaves the law as murky as ever. "What is "obscene" as a matter of law? The answer, apparently, is durn near nothing. What conduct, in this field, is criminal? The answer is that we still don't know. And the court, for the nonce, won't talk.

Fast Senate Action On Dodd Is Deplored

THE SENATE will debate beginning on May 22 the recommendation of its ethics committee that Senator Thomas Dodd be censured. It is a pity that the leadership of the Senate is in so great a hurry. The ethics committee took approximately fourteen months to hear the case and write its recommendations. Those who are unconvinced by those recommendations should have a little time to do some research. What is the difference between censuring Senator Dodd now, and waiting a few weeks? Will the Senate lose its honor irretrievably during the period?

There are those who ask, Why delay? Wasn't the work of the ethics committee for all intents and purposes conclusive? That assumption is natural: why would a responsible group of senators desire to hang their colleague unjustly?

Yet even a perfunctory examination of the report, when compared with the hearings, suggests prejudice. Prejudice by the staff. It is a fact of life that a committee relies heavily, sometimes even altogether, on its staff. The staff framed the report, the senators saw it and approved of it. Did they mean to approve, for instance, of the following summaries?

CONCERNING the testimonial dinner for Senator Dodd at which Vice President Johnson was the guest of honor, and the alleged impropriety of Senator Dodd's use of some of the funds raised at the event: "President Johnson," said the Report, "recently stated publicly that he never knew that any dinner he attended was to raise funds for anyone's personal use (p 893 Hearings)."

Now on reading that sentence, aren't you left with the impression that Johnson is conveying the impression that he was deceived by Senator Dodd? — that he had gone to Connecticut thinking the affair was to be one thing, whereas it has turned out to be something else — something else quite objectionable?

But then turn to page 893 of the Hearings which unfortunately is not easy to do because not everybody has the two fat Hearings volumes handy, and you will find an excerpt from a Presidential Press Conference (April 22, 1966) at which the President is asked his views on the use of money raised at the dozens of testimonial dinners he has attended. The President says that he has been at no testimonial dinner specifically described as intended to raise money for personal use (obviously). "I always understood," Johnson went on, "that they were having an appreciation dinner or testimonial dinner but I didn't know that it was for personal, or political, or local campaign, or national."

IN OTHER WORDS, the President, although he did not know that the proceeds were to be made available for personal use, said that for that matter he did not know for what purpose they were intended. At no time did he express shock at the proposal that such proceeds might be put to personal use, or imply that he had been deceived by Dodd.

What about the people who actually put up the money, who bought the one-hundred dollar tickets? Once again the committee's staff is deceptive.

The staff lists the four affairs, describing the number of affidavits collected, and the number of people present. Here is a typical example: "Form affidavits of about 300 persons who attended the 1965 dinner indicated that they contributed money for Senator Dodd's personal use. Approximately 1,000 persons attended the dinner, according to newspaper reports."

ONCE AGAIN: What is the impression conveyed? That only thirty per cent of the people who attended that dinner were prepared to sign affidavits favorable to Senator Dodd.

No mention at all that not one person who bought a ticket subsequently protested, either to Dodd or to the Committee — not one.

Sunday Thought

Someone sent in the following for the Sunday thought:

Be pleasant when it is easier to be grouchy.
Listen cheerfully to other's troubles, even if they are trite, and we are burdened.
Speak well of one deserving credit when others criticize.
Seek the good in everyone, attempt to bring it out, even if others think it is hopeless.
Do what is necessary instead of complaining.
Be silent when you know words would hurt.
Show thoughtfulness to others woes.
Have patience when others are curt.
Lend a deaf ear to gossip, a still tongue when it is spread.
Have courage when misfortune falls.
Encourage those who are depressed or pessimistic.

A Good One To Read

That is the essence of a booklet written and published recently by Dr. Kenneth McFarland, called "The Topeka Plan for Law Enforcement."

It is a booklet everyone should read, providing you are lucky enough to get a copy. We are indebted to Ouachita Sheriff Bailey Grant for a copy.

Dr. McFarland is one of the outstanding citizens of Topeka, Kans., who is leading a crusade to aid law enforcement in his city and throughout the nation.

POINTING out that the number one domestic problem in our nation is the breakdown of law and other, Dr. McFarland sketches the statistics to back up this point.

"The rationalizers, who say we have more crime because we have more people, can be ruled out at once by the fact that our crime rate is increasing five times faster than the population," he wrote. Then he said, "The FBI reports that in America a murder is committed every hour, a rape every 23 seconds, a burglary every 27 seconds and a car stolen every minute."

In his opinion, Dr. McFarland says the core cause of our chaotic crime conditions is that we have gone soft on law enforcement, adding it has become fashionable to blame the crimes of individuals upon a mythical something called "society."

POINTING out that the new liberalism finds it fashionable to flout the law, Dr. McFarland says "Many civil-rightist, religious activists, liberal educationists and assorted crusaders have rendered an enormous disservice through preaching and practicing the doctorine of selective compliance. Simply stated this means the individual citizen need obey only those laws which he personally considers to be morally right."

Ironically, many are getting away with this.

On the question of riots and disorder on college campuses, Dr. McFarland says the chief blame must be on the heads of those in authority who do not have the guts to send home those students involved.

"These authorities have permitted distinguished leaders in government to be hissed and booed; our military heroes insulted by yellow - bellies whose chief reasons for being on the campus is to evade the draft," he said, adding they should be sent away so the students who want to learn may do so in peace.

"I concur with the writer who said that if campus chaos is to be called education, then we should refer to bank robbery as a financial transaction," McFarland wrote.

McFarland pointed out that law enforcement officers who have been fighting a steadily - losing battle with crime, have been delt staggering setbacks by recent rulings by far - out decisions handed down by Chief Justice Earl Warren and his "Extreme Court."

For example of this, picture a policeman when he stops a murderer, hit-and-run driver, dope peddler or any other or having to pull out a long piece of paper and read:

"I am required by the Constitution to warn you that anything you say may be used against you in a court of law; that you need say nothing and have a right to remain silent. That if you wish, you have the right to consult with an attorney and have him present; that if you are unable to afford an attorney one will be appointed for you."

WE WONDER what the Warren Liberal Quintet would do if the stopped suspect pulled a gun and shot the officer while he was reading the suspect his rights. It is small wonder that dedicated policemen are becoming deeply discouraged.

Dr. McFarland outlined his Topeka Four Point Program for Law Enforcement briefly as follows:

1. Provide the Police Department with all the manpower and equipment it needs to meet the best standards.

2. Respect for law to be taught continuously in the schools, in the home and to the general public.

3. Seek and achieve legislation at all levels of government that will strengthen law enforcement agencies.

4. Maintain a modern police training school.

In conclusion, Dr. McFarland wrote:

"There is chaos abroad in our land. We are going down a road that leads unerringly to anarchy, and to the death of our personal freedoms. No nation before us has continued to exist in increasing disorder, and we cannot. Order is Heaven's first law. ... Everything is at stake: our lives, our freedom, our families, our property, our future, and our children's future."

This booklet can be ordered by writing to Homemakers Guild of America Corporation, Mile High Center, Denver, Colorado 80202. If you wish to communicate directly with Dr. McFarland, his address is 3127 Huntoon Street, Topeka, Kans.

Is Unlucky After All

Just as we were ready to abandon as an old wives' tale the idea that 13 is an unlucky number, we have been brought up short. The Treasury Department reports that the total of U.S. debts has reached 13 figures.

In round numbers, total debts are listed at $1,525,700,000,000, that's more than one-and-a-half-trillion dollars. That grand total has increased $99.1 billion in the year ended last December 31. We have never achieved any really adequate conception of a million dollars, much less a billion, which a mathematics teacher once told us is a thousand million. And now we have trillions, which we are assured are thousands of billions.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Henry H. Fowler, told the House Appropriations Committee that the government will continue to run deficits at least until the end of the Vietnam war. By deficits, he means increased debt. By debt, he means money that you and I are responsible for ... money that we owe.

Some years ago the Congress placed a "ceiling" of $185 billion on the national funded, interest-bearing, debt. But that ceiling has been escalated. The present Congress raised the ceiling from $328 billion to $336 billion. And Secretary Fowler indicated that the Congress will be asked to raise the ceiling again this month, possibly as high as $346 billion. We have lost count of the exact number of times that ceiling has been raised in little more than a decade. It is approximately 13 times in the last 13 years.

Asked by the Committee chairman whether or not the administration will ever recommend a balanced budget, the Secretary replied that he thought there would be administrations that would recommend a balanced budget, and there might even be administrations that would recommend budgets with a surplus which would permit reduction of the federal debt. We don't find much consolation in the possibility. We remember too vividly some administrations that were elected on a solemn promise to do just that.

Meanwhile, we're convinced that the figure 13 really is unlucky. And we suspect that it is even more unlucky for our children who will have to pay those debts, or suffer them to come out of their standard of living.

You might try, some evening, to explain to your youngsters why that debt is 13 figures big, and why you are leaving it for them to pay.

The World's Week In Focus

Navies Play 'Chicken' As Washington Frets

By Oland Silk

LAST week saw a naval bumping match between the United States and Russia, a record - tying casualty toll in Vietnam, a rousing catfight between candidates of the National Federation of Republican Women, the arrest of Greek leftist Andreas Papandreou on a charge of "conspiracy to commit high treason", Negro student riots in Jackson, Miss., and the opening of an international jazz festival in, of all places, Soviet Russia.

OTHER major events included a switch from civilian to military control of South Vietnam's pacification program, and exoneration of girlie magazine and spicy paperback distributors in Paducah, Kentucky, New York, and Arkansas.

The Supreme Court did not break new ground on the obscenity issue; that is, no new guiding principle as to what constitutes obscenity was offered in the unsigned opinions in the three cases. The justices simply agreed that to prohibit sellers of the products in question would be a violation of the First Amendment.

In a related matter, New York Judge Milton Shalleck found a woman who played her cello barechested guilty of an indecent performance. The arresting officer testified Miss Charlotte Moorman, 28, performed the opening number of a Times Square concert dressed in what seemed to be little more than three strategically - placed, battery powered lights. The judge decided Miss Moorman's act "was born not of a desire to express art but to get the vernacular sucker to come and be aroused." He got in a satiric jab at the Unwashed Ones who no doubt would call him a "square." Said the judge, they are a "small group of rushing, impetuous persons wandering fretfully somewhere for some unknown goal of intangible value and for uncertain reason." They are, he said, merely "bearded, bathless beats."

Even though Miss Moorman was found guilty, Judge Shalleck gave her a suspended sentence. She will appeal.

BEFORE getting into the hard news, a word about the Soviet jazz festival. Stalin banned the American phenomenon years ago, and former Premier Khruschev likened the music to a rattletrap truck screeching around a corner. He said it gave him a pain in the stomach. Nevertheless, jazz survived underground.

Last week in Tallin, Russia, it burst forth in a festival on the Baltic Sea. The opening number: "When the Saints Go Marching In", played by a Leningrad band. Most of the music was Western, particularly American. Thirty-one groups competed, but the U. S. entry, the Charles Lloyd Quartet, was allowed only to give workshops. No reason given.

Cold War 'Chicken'

WHILE Russian jazz lovers warmed to America's chief export, an incident in the Sea of Japan nudged relations between Washington and Moscow into a new frigid zone.

Two different Soviet destroyers on two successive days collided with the U. S. Navy destroyer Walker, operating in U. S.-Japanese antisubmarine warfare maneuvers. Late Friday, it was learned that the Soviet destroyer involved in the second incident was the command ship in a group of seven naval vessels which had been shadowing American vessels.

Mrs. Phyllis Schafly
. . . loser asks inquiry

As small as the confrontation was, the eyeball-to-eyeball meeting between the two Super Powers in Southeast Asia sent jitters through Washington. Our policy in Vietnam is geared to avoiding a direct conflict with either Peking or Moscow.

The bumping incidents will no doubt be smoothed over. One official described them as just another game of cold war "chicken."

The fact that the collision happened more than once indicated it was deliberate on the Russians' part. The second blow tore a six-inch hole in the Walker's starboard side.

STATE Department officials called in a Soviet Embassy diplomat to protest the "harassment." Radio Moscow said the incidents were caused by "provocative maneuvers" by American warships.

In other Vietnam, Southeast Asia developments:

AMERICAN dead and wounded numbered 274 and 1,748, respectively. Spokesmen said most of them fell near the North-South Vietnam border where Marines blunted Communist efforts to move south. The communists suffered even heavier losses — 1,903 men killed in the same week.

General Westmoreland's command took over the pacification program, a major headache in any language.

The job of separating the Viet Cong from the South Vietnamese villager and protecting the peasants from terror and death at the hands of the VC was formerly in the hands of the American Embassy in Saigon, and the Ky government. The big switch came because of slow progress in winning the loyalty of the Vietnamese people.

The United States has been reluctant to commit large units to pacification. Former Ambassador Lodge opposed such a move. He felt that only the South Vietnamese could do the job, besides it was theirs to do in the first place.

Last week, Lodge's replacement in Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker, turned the "other war" over to Westmoreland. Reports said several American generals showed no joy at the task of supervising a heavily civilian program abounding with problems.

Meanwhile in Washington, Senator Henry Jackson of the Armed Services Committee said National Guardsmen and Reservists will have to be ordered to active military duty to meet manpower needs in Vietnam and the decision will have to come soon. There are 442,000 troops in the war zone now; the number will reach 470,000 by the end of the year.

AT THE United Nations, Secretary-General U Thant contended that America must stop bombing North Vietnam as the first step necessary toward prevention of World War III. Thant told a U.N. Correspondents Association that he feared "we are witnessing today the initial phase of World War III."

The Administration responded quickly. U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, after hurried consultation with Washington, said, "we do not share his current assessment of the situation in Vietnam." Goldberg reminded Thant that offers of a bombing halt had been made to Hanoi, on condition that a reciprocal move be made. There was and has been none.

The official rebuttal of Thant's views was somewhat negated Friday when the Washington Post reported that President Johnson told his daughter, Luci, last June that "your Daddy may go down in history as having started World War III."

The President related this remark at a social affair honoring members of the Supreme Court. He was quoted by Post society reporter, Judith Martin, as saying to Luci, "you may not wake up tomorrow." The President's session with his daughter brought out that he was worried over the results of American bombing of oil tanks and in North Vietnam.

Denials and out - of - context charges were likely to follow these revelations. The report will add one more piece of barbed wire to the "credibility gap."

Long Act Derailed

PRESIDENT Johnson figured prominently in two other events last week. He made it clear at a $250-a-plate Democratic dinner that he expected to run again, and would lay his re-election chances on the line with "Great Society" accomplishments and the fight against "naked aggression" in Vietnam.

Dutiful speeches were made by other top Democrats. Senators William Fulbright and Robert Kennedy were conspicuously absent however. Fulbright was the target of a caustic presidential remark last year at a similar dinner. Both men are highly vocal critics of the Johnson war policy.

JOHNSON sent shock troops to help rescue Senator Russell Long's Campaign Fund Act. A battle over repeal of the $1 checkoff measure had tied up the Senate for seven weeks. Henry Fowler, Secretary of the Treasury, called individually on senators to urge them to vote against repeal. And Mike Manatos, White House aide, set up headquarters in the office of the Secretary of the Senate to lobby for the radical measure.

With the aid of a tie-breaking vote by Vice President Humphrey, the law that would [illegible] presidential nominees $30 million each with which to campaign [illegible] ... nearly two months [illegible] ... Senator

Long.

THEY managed to attach an amendment which barred operation of the law until specific guidelines on how the money was to be spent were nailed down. Long at first was saddened over the action that turned his offspring into a hollow shell. Later, however, he saw it in a different light; it could be straightened out and put into effect by the 1968 elections, he said.

ALMOST incidental to resolving the Long Act dispute was passage of a bill restoring major tax incentives to business.

Phyllis Schlafly, attractive Goldwaterite author of "A Choice Not An Echo," called on Republican National Chairman Ray Bliss to investigate the presidential election of the 500,000-member National Federation of Republican Women. Mrs. Schafly lost the election to moderate Californian, Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell.

In her letter to Bliss, Mrs. Schafly listed a 12 point formal complaint of "illegalities and violations of the bylaws" at the convention. Cried the loser, "this controlled and rigged election has constituted an election fraud which has robbed the half million federated Republican women of their representation at the national convention."

Mrs. Schafly lost to Mrs. O'Donaell by a margin of 416 votes out of 3,404 cast. This came about, Mrs. Schafly charged, because the Credentials Committee wrongfully deprived about 100 of her delegates of their right to vote, and "wrongfully seated about 800 O'Donnell delegates from New York and Pennsylvania."

BY FRIDAY, Chairman Bliss had not responded to the distaff tempest. The National Committee may beg off, since the federation is not under its jurisdiction. Mrs. Schafly, 42-year-old mother of six, indicated that whatever happens she may form a rival GOP women's group.

The Pentagon served as target for Senator John McClellan. The Arkansas Democrat predicted the Defense Department would pay up to $12 billion to get 1,300 F111 planes in the air — double the cost officials once estimated for 1,700 of the controversial aircraft.

McCLELLAN said he wanted to know the details of the $1.82 billion contract the Air Force signed with General Dynamics Corporation for 493 of the all-purpose planes, once known as the TFX.

BRIEFLY, a look at a mixed bag of news here and abroad:

Andreas Papandreou, ex-American citizen and ex-chairman of the Department of Economics at Berkeley, was accused by Greece's military rulers of conspiring to overthrow the monarchy, withdraw the nation from NATO, and set up a socialist, neutralist state. The maximum penalty if convicted is death. King Constantine has warned the generals against executions. So have American diplomats.

Papandreou is a former member of Parliament, and son of the aging, former Premier, George Papandreou, also under arrest.

JACKSON, Miss. police and National Guardsmen battled rioting Negro students at Jackson State College two consecutive nights. One Negro, 22-year-old Benjamin Brown, was killed when city police fired a volley of shotgun blasts over the heads of students charging street barricades.

Brown, hit in the head and back, fell to the street between the retreating mob and police lines. A companion suffered minor wounds. Twelve others were arrested for violating a 10 p.m. curfew.

The stormy two-day outbreak involving 1,000 youngsters was marked by looting, vandalism, and assaults on police by approximately 100 students. The trouble erupted when a policeman tried to arrest a college student for speeding. No one could say for sure whether the riots were planned or spontaneous, but CORE militants were flying in from Atlanta to keep the racial fires burning.

Students appeared to have only two complaints. They objected to four-lane Lynch street bisecting their campus with a 30 mph speed limit and with no walkway for them to use. One Negro said whites had been driving through the area for six months throwing bottles and rocks.

SINCE a fatality occurred and the incident happened in Mississippi, Jackson officials may have their hands full by the time this gets into print.

If New Orleans was shocked by District Attorney Jim Garrison's arrest of Clay Shaw for conspiring to kill President Kennedy, it — and the world — had another jolt last week.

Garrison said the CIA was involved somehow in the death of Kennedy and will seek a full-scale Senate investigation of both CIA and the FBI. The pistol-totin', controversal district attorney made these charges:

(1) THE CIA gave the Warren Commission "fake photographs" of Oswald and a companion to hide the fact that Oswald was working with government agencies in New Orleans.

(2) Oswald was not a Communist, as he was depicted by the Warren Comission, but was actually working with anti-Castro organizations. He used the Fair Play for Cuba link as cover.

(3) Oswald was in New Orleans in November, 1963. The Warren Commission says he left New Orleans in September.

(4) FEDERAL agents are suppressing vital knowledge regarding the assassination. Their superiors are trying to discredit and obstruct his (Garrison's) gathering of evidence.

At week's end, the probe was a scramble of bribe charges and new names in an ever-spreading kaleidoscope.

By RICHARD TYLER
World Staff Writer

Umpteen thousand years before Francis Bacon and his prim notions about a scientific method took the fun out of life, people rightly viewed any celestial irregularity as prophetic. By that old standard, last week would have been star-crossed, in fact double-crossed.

The week started with the sighting Sunday night by many local and area residents of a UFO (unidentified hurtling object), described as blue-green flame splitting into four parts and fading on the southeastern horizon. Less than two days later, Tuesday morning, sky watchers were rewarded with a 10 per cent eclipse of the sun by the moon.

Were the events ominous? Perhaps it must be conceded to Sir Francis that the point is debatable, but it must also be pointed out that these intimations of astronomical dyspepsia were followed by some rare and keenly interesting goings here below.

Locally, there were the results of two school maintenance tax elections to report, along with some thoughtful comments on same in relation to a virtual election eve appeal for defeat of the taxes.

Too, there was much local and area interest in the magical workings of the Louisiana Legislature which began a 30-day fiscal session and found itself split on how or whether to stay fiscal.

On the other hand, a mouthless fish was caught in the Tensas River near Winnsboro and brought for examination to the Northeast Louisiana State College biology department.

Politics close to home came to an early summer ahead of the December first Democratic primary. Monroe phone company executive W. E. Whetstone revealed definite plans to run for the state senate; local attorney William D. (Billy) Brown was giving "very serious consideration" to an identical step.

Simmering, too, were plans for a 26-store addition and new face for the Twin City Shopping Center, heralded by the announcement of a new Selber Bros. high fashion apparel store which will open in the center next spring or early summer.

Thus were a few of the revelations a pre-Baconite might have read in the stars. The man of the Twentieth Century read them in the pages of the News-Star-World.

MAINTENANCE TAXES

In passing on May 6 maintenance taxes totaling 12 and seven mills respectively, the Monroe and Ouachita Parish school systems weren't held except [illegible] majorities of [illegible] but in each [illegible] vote was closer than in any previous election.

The city system earned about [illegible] age 2-1 popular approval at a [illegible] out on its two propositions ... the first [illegible] an extra five mills, the second [illegible] newal of the current seven. The [illegible] ment majority hit roughly $7.6 million on Proposition 1 while Proposition [illegible] apparently to voter confusion [illegible] was the old tax which [illegible] left with approximately $18 million.

The returns probably [illegible] no doubt of approval [illegible] though they compared poorly [illegible] port in previous elections [illegible] 2-1, according to Supt. [illegible]

Putting all its eggs in the one [illegible] of a single proposition for [illegible] five mills and addition of [illegible] system won out despite a [illegible] opposition leaflets which, together [illegible] other factors, had some backers viewing prospects with alarm. The [illegible] vote majority barely got past 400 votes — about 3-2 — with an assessment [illegible] ality of approximately $1.1 million.

Odom and Ouachita Supt. Milton C. Hall later found several forces at work in the relative drama of their experience. Hall, of course, mentioned the leaflets and their referral to issues in the timeless quarrel over operating two systems in the parish, as well as the fact that or Mr. [illegible] were obliged to [illegible] to read [illegible] a statement on the [illegible] this fall.

But both, along with Monroe [illegible] pointed to the local re[illegible] Louisiana segregationist leader Leander Perez as the key to the [illegible]. Among other things he said Perez [illegible] for the defeat of taxes [illegible] support desegregated schools [illegible].

Commenting, Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard said the vote, however close, showed that an outsider can't come in here and make a talk and defeat our school system. Street Commissioner W. P. H. [illegible] also of the special [illegible] City Council [illegible] Board [illegible] the Perez talk [illegible] by the Greater Ouachita Citizens Council [illegible] before the election.

Both [illegible] out of Citizens Council [illegible] Rev. [illegible] the Rev. H. [illegible] Dr. [illegible] claimed any relation [illegible] between the Perez speech and the school tax elections [illegible]

LEGISLATION

[illegible]

Shreveport [illegible] staff arranged for administration of [illegible] [illegible] Monroe mayor [illegible] Thursday removed himself gracefully from the [illegible]

respect for the Legislature to try to jam this through." The city had no concrete plan anyway for use of the money, he said.

There were other items of importance to mull before the two hours of government adjourned Wednesday ... certainly not the least of them being the state's proposed $1.276 billion, tightrope-walking on a razor-thin surplus. In that shuffle, Monroe area institutions were logged for a total of $22.7 million.

Northeast Louisiana State College, for example, went down for $5.9 million ... a [illegible] per cent boost. Louisiana Tech was booked for a two per cent rise to $7.7 million; the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital was budgeted $2.2 million, a jump of 7.2 per cent; and the Ouachita Valley Vocational-Technical School in West Monroe rose by 4.7 per cent to near [illegible] $219,000.

Also attracting attention from locals was the union of Gov. John McKeithen's support Tuesday with that of Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller for an expressway from Kansas City to New Orleans through Shreveport and Alexandria. Quick opposition showed itself with Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Rep. George Wood and Howard ... sometimes at cross purposes ... in general agreement. Howard, with former Ruston Mayor T. C. Beasley, wants a junction route from Monroe to connect with the expressway at Alexandria.

Gibbs, meanwhile, was calling for [illegible] [illegible] the state's [illegible] insurance rates, in common with other local expressions of concern over a plan to levy ad valorem taxation at a maximum of 10 per cent of real value. Passage would mean a boost in millages in most parishes including Ouachita where the average is 29 per cent.

Followers of the political wars at home about the time were being intrigued by Whetstone's confirmation that he will seek to represent Ouachita, Morehouse, East and West Carroll Parishes ... the district formerly composed of Ouachita and [illegible] in the Senate. A member and former president of the Louisiana Education Board, he [illegible] seat [illegible] district manager. Brown [illegible] that [illegible] to make the same run. President of the State Junior Bar Association and Monroe Rotary Club, he also has [illegible] Lake Providence [illegible]

SHOPPING NEWS

[illegible] of the Twin City Shopping Center [illegible] of a double dose of ex[illegible] last week. First came word that Selber Bros. of Shreveport will start work in July on a chic 40,000-square-foot store there and then, the next day, the architect designing that store, Lou Heuer, revealed that, indeed, the center will be adding 26 units. The old, the new and nearby Ward's facility will be joined by a modern, air conditioned mall, he said.

Selber officials were in Monroe Thursday for their announcement indicating a planned total investment at the center of more than $1.5 million. The Selber Bros. store — to feature a beauty shop and specialty gift section, as well as departmentalized apparel selections — will employ 100 persons, to be chosen almost entirely from the local work force.

Heuer, in disclosing the other additions — also due to come in quick order — essayed a shift in access orientation from heavily - travelled Louisville Avenue to Oliver Road. Selber Bros., as Ward's now does, will front on Oliver Road.

MOUTHLESS FISH

In case readers still are wondering about the mouthless fish mentioned earlier, they are not alone. The writer wondered about him quite a lot also and read with inordinate interest the account of his examination by Northeast's Dr. Neil Douglas.

Caught in a hoop net by Winnsboro fisherman J. M. Fletcher, the small-mouth (very small, indeed) buffalo measured 16-inches and scaled two and a half pounds, against an estimated age of three years. The examiner said scar tissue indicated the fish originally had a mouth, like any other, but that it seemed to have been torn out somehow toward the end of its second year. Its intestines contained none of the usual food materials, but only minute acquatic insects ... apparently infused by respiration through the gills and Mother Nature abiding through the esophagus into the stomach.

Whether by adaptation or mutation, it was a rare fish and will hold a place in the college's vertebrate collection.

OTHER NEWS

Other news of the week, besides the usual royal variety, reported a number of deaths, both accidental and natural, taking from the area some of its better known citizens.

A lifelong Monroeian and retired attorney A. Milling Bernstein, father of now-practicing Henry Bernstein Jr., died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack at the age of 66. Well known retired Monroe businessman Roland Siegle, 69, former owner of two local theaters, died the same day at the Methodist Hospital in Houston, Tex. The victim of a fatal heart attack Sunday night was the Rev. Raymond T. Watson, pastor of St. John's Christian Church and a Monroe religious leader for more than 25 years. In Shreveport, G. M. (Jake) Anderson, 53, a Monroe native and widely - known Shreveport independent oil and gas operator, succumbed late Monday after a short illness.

Accidental death during the week claimed 16-year-old Donnie Gauce of Epps, who drowned in a pond near that town, Mrs. Myrtle Garret of Monroe ... victim of a two-car collision near Bossier City ... and Mrs. Ella McCalla, 73, of Quitman, hit Sunday night by a car as she was walking home from church

Sunday Thought

Someone sent in the following for the Sunday thought:

Be pleasant when it is easier to be grouchy.
Listen cheerfully to other's troubles, even if they are trite, and we are burdened.
Speak well of one deserving credit when others criticize.
Seek the good in everyone, attempt to bring it out, even if others think it is hopeless.
Do what is necessary instead of complaining.
Be silent when you know words would hurt.
Show thoughtfulness to others woes.
Have patience when others are curt.
Lend a deaf ear to gossip, a still tongue when it is spread.
Have courage when misfortune falls.
Encourage those who are depressed or pessimistic.

A Good One To Read

That is the essance of a booklet written and published recently by Dr. Kenneth McFarland, called "The Topeka Plan for Law Enforcement."

It is a booklet everyone should read, providing you are lucky enough to get a copy. We are indebted to Ouachita Sheriff Bailey Grant for a copy.

Dr. McFarland is one of the outstanding citizens of Topeka, Kans., who is leading a crusade to aid law enforcement in his city and throughout the nation.

POINTING out that the number one domestic problem in our nation is the breakdown of law and other, Dr. McFarland sketches the statistics to back up this point.

"The rationalizers, who say we have more crime because we have more people, can be ruled out at once by the fact that our crime rate is increasing five times faster than the population," he wrote. Then he said, "The FBI reports that in America a murder is committed every hour, a rape every 23 seconds, a burglary every 27 seconds and a car stolen every minute."

In his opinion, Dr. McFarland says the core cause of our chaotic crime conditions is that we have gone soft on law enforcement, adding it has become fashionable to blame the crimes of individuals upon a mythical something called "society."

POINTING out that the new liberalism finds it fashionable to flout the law, Dr. McFarland says "Many civil-rightist, religious activists, liberal educationists and assorted crusaders have rendered an enormous disservice through preaching and practicing the doctorine of selective compliance. Simply stated this means the individual citizen need obey only those laws which he personally considers to be morally right."

Ironically, many are getting away with this.

On the question of riots and disorder on college campuses, Dr. McFarland says the chief blame must be on the heads of those in authority who do not have the guts to send home those students involved.

"These authorities have permitted distinguished leaders in government to be hissed and booed; our military heroes insulted by yellow - bellies whose chief reasons for being on the campus is to evade the draft," he said, adding they should be sent away so the students who want to learn may do so in peace.

"I concur with the writer who said that if campus chaos is to be called education, then we should refer to bank robbery as a financial transaction," McFarland wrote.

McFarland pointed out that law enforcement officers who have been fighting a steadily - losing battle with crime, have been delt staggering setbacks by recent rulings by far - out decisions handed down by Chief Justice Earl Warren and his "Extreme Court."

For example of this, picture a policeman when he stops a murderer, hit-and-run driver, dope peddler or any other of having to pull out a long piece of paper and read:

"I am required by the Constitution to warn you that anything you say may be used against you in a court of law; that you need say nothing and have a right to remain silent. That if you wish, you have the right to consult with an attorney and have him present; that if you are unable to afford an attorney one will be appointed for you."

WE WONDER what the Warren Liberal Quintet would do if the stopped suspect pulled a gun and shot the officer while he was reading the suspect his rights. It is small wonder that dedicated policemen are becoming deeply discouraged.

Dr. McFarland outlined his Topeka Four Point Program for Law Enforcement briefly as follows:

1. Provide the Police Department with all the manpower and equipment it needs to meet the best standards.
2. Respect for law to be taught continuously in the schools, in the home, and to the general public.
3. Seek and achieve legislation at all levels of government that will strengthen law enforcement agencies.
4. Maintain a modern police training school.

In conclusions, Dr. McFarland wrote: "There is chaos abroad in our land. We are going down a road that leads unerringly to anarchy, and to the death of our personal freedoms. No nation before us has continued to exist in increasing disorder, and we cannot. Order is Heaven's first law. . . .Everything is at stake: our lives, our freedom, our families, our property, our future, and our children's future."

This booklet can be ordered by writing to Homemakers Guild of America Corporation, Mile High Center, Denver, Colorado 80202. If you wish to communicate directly with Dr. McFarland, his address is 3127 Huntoon Street, Topeka, Kans.

Is Unlucky After All

Just as we were ready to abandon as an old wives' tale the idea that 13 is an unlucky number, we have been brought up short. The Treasury Department reports that the total of U.S. debts has reached 13 figures.

In round numbers, total debts are listed at $1,529,700,000,000; that's more than one-and-a-half-trillion dollars. That grand total has increased $99.1 billion in the year ended last December 31. We have never achieved any really adequate conception of a million dollars, much less a billion, which a mathematics teacher once told us is a thousand million. And now we have trillions, which we are assured are thousands of billions.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Henry H. Fowler, told the House Appropriations Committee that the government will continue to run deficits at least until the end of the Vietnam war. By deficits, he means increased debt. By debt, he means money that you and I are responsible for — money that we owe.

Some years ago, the Congress placed a "ceiling" of $185 billion on the national funded, interest-bearing, debt. But that ceiling has been escalated. The present Congress raised the ceiling from $328 billion to $336 billion. And Secretary Fowler indicated that the Congress will be asked to raise the ceiling again this month, possibly as high as $346 billion. We have lost count of the exact number of times that ceiling has been raised in little more than a decade. It is approximately 13 times in the last 13 years.

Asked by the Committee chairman whether or not the administration will ever recommend a balanced budget, the Secretary replied that he thought there would be administrations that would recommend a balanced budget, and there might even be administrations that would recommend budgets with a surplus which would permit reduction of the federal debt. We don't find much consolation in the possibility. We remember too vividly some administrations that were elected on a solemn promise to do just that.

Meanwhile, we're convinced that the figure 13 really is unlucky. And we suspect that it is even more unlucky for our children who will have to pay those debts, or suffer them to come out of their standard of living.

You might try, some evening, to explain to your youngsters why that debt is 13 figures big, and why you are leaving it for them to pay.

The World's Week In Focus

Navies Play 'Chicken' As Washington Frets

By Oland Silk

LAST week saw a naval bumping match between the United States and Russia, a record - tying casualty toll in Vietnam, a rousing catfight between candidates of the National Federation of Republican Women, the arrest of Greek leftist Andreas Papandreou on a charge of "conspiracy to commit high treason", Negro student riots in Jackson, Miss., and the opening of an international jazz festival in, of all places, Soviet Russia.

OTHER major events included a switch from civilian to military control of South Vietnam's pacification program, and exoneration of girlie magazine and spicy paperback distributors in Paducah, Kentucky, New York, and Arkansas.

The Supreme Court did not break new ground on the obscenity issue; that is, no new guiding principle as to what constitutes obscenity was offered in the unsigned opinions in the three cases. The justices simply agreed that to prohibit sellers of the products in question would be a violation of the First Amendment.

In a related matter, New York Judge Milton Shalleck found a woman who played her cello barechested guilty of an indecent performance. The arresting officer testified Miss Charlotte Moorman, 28, performed the opening number of a Times Square concert dressed in what seemed to be little more than three strategically - placed, battery powered lights. The judge decided Miss Moorman's act "was born not of a desire to express art but to get the vernacular sucker to come and be aroused." He got in a satiric jab at the Unwashed Ones who no doubt would call him a "square." Said the judge, they are a "small group of rushing, impetuous persons wandering fretfully somewhere for some unknown goal of intangible value and for uncertain reason." They are, he said, merely "bearded, bathless beats."

Even though Miss Moorman was found guilty, Judge Shalleck gave her a suspended sentence. She will appeal.

BEFORE getting into the hard news, a word about the Soviet jazz festival. Stalin banned the American phenomenon years ago, and former Premier Khruschev likened the music to a rattletrap truck screeching around a corner. He said it gave him a pain in the stomach. Nevertheless, jazz survived underground.

Last week in Tallin, Russia, it burst forth in a festival on the Baltic Sea. The opening number: "When the Saints Go Marching In", played by a Leningrad band. Most of the music was Western, particularly American. Thirty-one groups competed , but the U. S. entry, the Charles Lloyd Quartet, was allowed only to give workshops. No reason given.

Cold War 'Chicken'

WHILE Russian jazz lovers warmed to America's chief export, an incident in the Sea of Japan nudged relations between Washington and Moscow into a new frigid zone.

Two different Soviet destroyers on two successive days collided with the U. S. Navy destroyer Walker, operating in U. S.-Japanese antisubmarine warfare maneuvers. Late Friday, it was learned that the Soviet destroyer involved in the second incident was the command ship in a group of seven naval vessels which had been shadowing American vessels.

Mrs. Phyllis Schafly
. . . loser asks inquiry

As small as the confrontation was, the eyeball-to-eyeball meeting between the two Super Powers in Southeast Asia sent jitters through Washington. Our policy in Vietnam is geared to avoiding a direct conflict with either Peking or Moscow.

The bumping incidents will no doubt be smoothed over. One official described them as just another game of cold war "chicken."

The fact that the collision happened more than once indicated it was deliberate on the Russians' part. The second blow tore a six-inch hole in the Walker's starboard side.

STATE Department officials called in a Soviet Embassy diplomat to protest the "harassment." Radio Moscow said the incidents were caused by "provocative maneuvers" by American warships.

In other Vietnam, Southeast Asia developments:

AMERICAN dead and wounded numbered 274 and 1,748, respectively. Spokesmen said most of them fell near the North-South Vietnam border where Marines blunted Communist efforts to move south. The communists suffered even heavier losses — 1,903 men killed in the same week.

General Westmoreland's command took over the pacification program, a major headache in any language.

The job of separating the Viet Cong from the South Vietnamese villager and protecting the peasants from terror and death at the hands of the VC was formerly in the hands of the American Embassy in Saigon, and the Ky government. The big switch came because of slow progress in winning the loyalty of the Vietnamese people.

The United States has been reluctant to commit large units to pacification. Former Ambassador Lodge opposed such a move. He felt that only the South Vietnamese could do the job; besides, it was theirs to do in the first place.

Last week, Lodge's replacement in Saigon, Ellsworth Bunker, turned the "other war" over to Westmoreland. Reports said several American generals showed no joy at the task of supervising a heavily civilian program abounding with problems.

Meanwhile in Washington, Senator Henry Jackson of the Armed Services Committee said National Guardsmen and Reservists will have to be ordered to active military duty to meet manpower needs in Vietnam and the decision will have to come soon. There are 442,000 troops in the war zone now; the number will reach 470,000 by the end of the year.

AT THE United Nations, Secretary-General U Thant contended that America must stop bombing North Vietnam as the first step necessary toward prevention of World War III. Thant told a U.N. Correspondents Association that he feared "we are witnessing today the initial phase of World War III."

The Administration responded quickly. U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg, after hurried consultation with Washington, said, "we do not share his current assessment of the situation in Vietnam." Goldberg reminded Thant that offers of a bombing halt had been made to Hanoi, on condition that a reciprocal move be made. There was and has been none.

The official rebuttal of Thant's views was somewhat negated Friday when the Washington Post reported that President Johnson told his daughter, Luci, last June that "your Daddy may go down in history as having started World War III."

The President related this remark at a social affair honoring members of the Supreme Court. He was quoted by Post society reporter, Judith Martin, as saying to Luci, "you may not wake up tomorrow." The President's session with his daughter brought out that he was worried over the results of American bombing of oil tanks and in North Vietnam.

Denials and out - of - context charges were likely to follow these revelations. The report will add one more piece of barbed wire to the "credibility gap."

Long Act Derailed

PRESIDENT Johnson figured prominently in two other events last week. He made it clear at a $250-a-plate Democratic dinner that he expected to run again, and would lay his re-election chances on the line with "Great Society" accomplishments and the fight against "naked aggression" in Vietnam.

Dutiful speeches were made by other top Democrats. Senators William Fulbright and Robert Kennedy were conspicuously absent however. Fulbright was the target of a caustic presidential remark last year at a similar dinner. Both men are highly vocal critics of the Johnson war policy.

JOHNSON sent shock troops to help rescue Senator Russell Long's Campaign Fund Act. A battle over repeal of the $1 checkoff measure had tied up the Senate for seven weeks. Henry Fowler, Secretary of the Treasury, called individually on senators to urge them to vote against repeal. And Mike Manatos, White House aide, set up headquarters in the office of the secretary of the Senate to lobby for the radical measure.

With the aid of a tie-breaking vote by Vice President Humphrey, the law that would give presidential nominees $30 million each with which to campaign, passed 49-48. It was the sixth vote taken in nearly two months. But, alas, foes of the law proved stubborn as Senator Long.

Andreas Papandreou
. . . held for treason

THEY managed to attach an amendment which barred operation of the law until specific guidelines on how the money was to be spent were nailed down. Long at first was saddened over the action that turned his offspring into a hollow shell. Later, however, he saw it in a different light; it could be straightened out and put into effect by the 1968 elections, he said.

ALMOST incidental to resolving the Long Act dispute was passage of a bill restoring major tax incentives to business.

Phyllis Schlafly, attractive Goldwaterite author of "A Choice Not An Echo," called on Republican National Chairman Ray Bliss to investigate the presidential election of the 500,000-member National Federation of Republican Women. Mrs. Schafly lost the election to moderate Californian, Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell.

In her letter to Bliss, Mrs. Schafly listed a 12 point formal complaint of "illegalities and violations of the bylaws" at the convention. Cried the loser, "this controlled and rigged election has constituted an election fraud which has robbed the half million federated Republican women of their representation at the national convention."

Mrs. Schafly lost to Mrs. O'Donnell by a margin of 416 votes out of 3,404 cast. This came about, Mrs. Schafly charged, because the Credentials Committee wrongfully deprived about 100 of her delegates of their right to vote, and "wrongfully seated about 800 O'Donnell delegates from New York and Pennsylvania."

BY FRIDAY, Chairman Bliss had not responded to the distaff tempest. The National Committee may beg off, since the federation is not under its jurisdiction. Mrs. Schafly, 42-year-old mother of six, indicated that whatever happens she may form a rival GOP women's group.

The Pentagon served as target for Senator John McClellan. The Arkansas Democrat predicted the Defense Department would pay up to $12 billion to get 1,300 F111 planes in the air — double the cost officials once estimated for 1,700 of the controversial aircraft.

McCLELLAN said he wanted to know the details of the $1.82 billion contract the Air Force signed with General Dynamics Corporation for 493 of the all-purpose planes, once known as the TFX.

BRIEFLY, a look at a mixed bag of news here and abroad:

Andreas Papandreou, ex-American citizen and ex-chairman of the Department of Economics at Berkeley, was accused by Greece's military rulers of conspiring to overthrow the monarchy, withdraw the nation from NATO, and set up a socialist, neutralist state. The maximum penalty if convicted is death. King Constantine has warned the generals against executions. So have American diplomats.

Papandreou is a former member of Parliament, and son of the aging, former Premier, George Papandreou, also under arrest.

JACKSON, Miss. police and National Guardsmen battled rioting Negro students at Jackson State College two consecutive nights. One Negro, 22-year-old Benjamin Brown, was killed when city police fired a volley of shotgun blasts over the heads of students charging street barricades.

Brown, hit in the head and back, fell to the street between the retreating mob and police lines. A companion suffered minor wounds. Twelve others were arrested for violating a 10 p.m. curfew.

The stormy two-day outbreak involving 1,000 youngsters was marked by looting, vandalism, and assaults on police by approximately 100 students. The trouble erupted when a policeman tried to arrest a college student for speeding. No one could say for sure whether the riots were planned or spontaneous, but CORE militants were flying in from Atlanta to keep the racial fires burning.

Students appeared to have only two complaints. They objected to four-lane Lynch street bisecting their campus with a 30 mph speed limit and with no walkway for them to use. One Negro said whites had been driving through the area for six months throwing bottles and rocks.

SINCE a fatality occurred and the incident happened in Mississippi, Jackson officials may have their hands full by the time this gets into print.

If New Orleans was shocked by District Attorney Jim Garrison's arrest of Clay Shaw for conspiring to kill President Kennedy, it — and the world — had another jolt last week.

Garrison said the CIA was involved somehow in the death of Kennedy and will seek a full-scale Senate investigation of both CIA and the FBI. The pistol-totin', controversal district attorney made these charges:

(1) THE CIA gave the Warren Commission "fake photographs" of Oswald and a companion to hide the fact that Oswald was working with government agencies in New Orleans.

(2) Oswald was not a Communist, as he was depicted by the Warren Comission, but was actually working with anti-Castro organizations. He used the Fair Play for Cuba link as cover.

(3) Oswald was in New Orleans in November, 1963. The Warren Commission says he left New Orleans in September.

(4) FEDERAL agents are suppressing vital knowledge regarding the assassination. Their superiors are trying to discredit and obstruct his (Garrison's) gathering of evidence.

At week's end, the probe was a scramble of bribe charges and new names in an ever-spreading kaleidoscope.

World Staff Writer

Umpteen thousand years before Francis Bacon and his prim notions about a scientific method took the fun out of life, people rightly viewed any celestial irregularity as prophetic. By that old standard, last week would have been star-crossed, in fact double-crossed.

The week started with the sighting Sunday night by many local and area residents of a UHO (unidentified hurtling object), described as blue-green flame splitting into four parts and fading on the southeastern horizon. Less than two days later, Tuesday morning, sky watchers were rewarded with a 10 per cent eclipse of the sun by the moon.

Were the events ominous? Perhaps it must be conceded to Sir Francis that the point is debatable, but it must also be pointed out that these intimations of astronimical dyspepsia were followed by some rare and keenly interesting goings here below.

Locally, there were the results of two school maintenance tax elections to report, along with some thoughtful comments on same in relation to a virtual election eve appeal for defeat of the taxes.

Too, there was much local and area interest in the magical workings of the Louisiana Legislature which began a 30-day fiscal session and found itself split on how or whether to stay fiscal.

On the other hand, a mouthless fish was caught in the Tensas River near Winnsboro and brought for examination to the Northeast Louisiana State College biology department.

Politics close to home came to an early simmer ahead of the December first Democratic primary. Monroe phone company executive W. E. Whetstone revealed definite plans to run for the state senate; local attorney William D. (Billy) Brown was giving "very serious consideration" to an identical step.

Simmering, too, were plans for a 26-store addition and new face for the Twin City Shopping Center, heralded by the announcement of a new Selber Bros. high fashion apparel store which will open in the center next spring or early summer.

Thus were a few of the revelancies a pre-Baconite might have read in the stars. The man of the Twentieth Century read them in the pages of the News-Star — World.

MAINTENANCE TAXES

In passing on May 6 maintenance taxes totalling 12 and seven mills, respectively, the Monroe and Ouachita Parish school systems weren't held exactly to majorities of $1.98, but in each case the vote was closer than in any previous election.

The city system earned about an average 2-1 popular approval in a light turnout on its two propositions — the first for an extra five mills, the second for renewal of the current seven. The assessment majority hit roughly $2.6 million on Proposition 1, while Proposition 2 — due apparently to voter confusion on which was the old tax, which the new — was left with approximately $1.8 million.

The returns, promulgated Monday, left no doubt of approval in either case, though they compared poorly with support in previous elections of from 3-1 to 24-1, according to Supt. Van D. Odom.

Putting all its eggs in the one basket of a single proposition for renewal of five mills and addition of two, the parish system won out, despite a campaign of opposition leaflets which, together with other factors, had some backers viewing prospects with alarm. The popular vote majority barely got past 400 votes —about 3-2 — with an assessment plurality of approximately $1.1 million.

Odom and Ouachita Supt. Milton C. Hall later found several forces at work in the relative drama of their experiences. Hall, of course, mentioned the leaflets and their referral to issues in the timeless quarrel over operating two systems in the parish, as well as the fact that, on May 1, both systems were obliged by law to mail parents a statement on the total desegregation coming this fall.

But both, along with Monroe government officials, pointed to the local address May 4 of widely - known Louisiana segregationist leader Leander Perez as the key to the close vote. Among other things he said, Perez called for the defeat of taxes which would support desegregated school systems.

Commenting Monday, Monroe Mayor W. L. Howard said the vote, however close, showed that "an outsider can't come in here and make a talk and disrupt our school systems." Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez, also at the special combined meeting of City Council and school board, called the Perez talk, sponsored by the Greater Ouachita Citizens Council, a "sneak punch," since it left no time for an answer before the elections.

Both statements got a substantial rise out of Citizens Council spokesmen Roy Boyd and the Rev. H. L. Driskell. Disclaiming any relationship of timing between the Perez speech and the school tax elections, the pair said they had been working on arranging the address since "before Easter." The delay, they said, going into considerable detail on related personal and telephone contact, was occasioned by time-consuming but unsuccessful attempts to obtain a site for an earlier talk.

Boyd said the group was refused use of West Monroe High School auditorium, Neville High School auditorium and the American Legion baseball stadium.

Meanwhile, unconfirmed reports continued to circulate that Perez will return for another address — some said shortly before a vote June 10 on the Fifth District sales tax. A large part of the proceeds of that tax, is passed, would go into education.

LEGISLATURE

The campfires were burning in Baton Rouge during this period as the Legislature lurched through its first week — albeit a short week — of a fiscal session wracked by disagreement over introduction of urban renewal legislation.

Louisiana at this point is the only continental U.S. state which prohibits its cities the acceptance of such federal money, despite an apparently growing taste for the idea in some of the larger metropolitan areas. Reports from the capital city said a group of rural lawmakers got the governor's ear Tuesday and, while Shreveport and other cities presumably felt they had a contrary commitment, administration leaders soon came out against non-fiscal matters in the session — i.e., urban renewal.

Shreveport, which reportedly has a staff arranged for administration of urban renewal efforts, is expected to join New Orleans Monday in a further push, however, though the drive definitely will not include Monroe. Monroe's mayor Thursday removed himself gracefully from the "scrap," averring "'too much respect for the Legislature to try to jam this through." The city had no concrete plan anyway for use of the money, he said.

There were other items of importance to mull before the two hours of government adjourned Wednesday — certainly not the least of them being the state's proposed $1.276 billion, tightrope-walking on a razor-thin surplus. In that shuffle, Monroe area institutions were logged for a total of $22.7 million.

Northeast Louisiana State College, for example, went down for $5.9 million — a 7.1 per cent boost; Louisiana Tech was booked for a two per cent rise to $7.7 million; the E. A. Conway Memorial Hospital was budgeted $2.2 million, a jump of 7.2 per cent; and the Ouachita Valley Vocational-Technical School in West Monroe rose by 4.7 per cent to nearly $319,000.

Also attracting attention from locals was the union of Gov. John McKeithen's support Tuesday with that of Arkansas Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller for an expressway from Kansas City to New Orleans through Shreveport and Alexandria. Quick opposition showed itself with Rep. Lawrence Gibbs, Rep. George Wood and Howard, sometimes at cross purposes, in general agreement. Howard, with former Ruston Mayor T. C. Beasley, wants a junction route from Monroe to connect with the expressway at Alexandria.

Gibbs meanwhile was calling for discussion of the state's "messed up" insurance rates, in common with other local expressions of concern over a plan to fix ad valorem taxation at a maximum of 10 per cent of real value. Passage would mean a boost in millages in most parishes, including Ouachita where the average is 20 per cent.

Followers of the political wars at home, about this time, were being intrigued by Whetstone's confirmation that he will seek to represent Ouachita, Morehouse, East and West Carroll Parish (the district formerly composed of Ouachita and Jackson) in the Senate. A member and former president of the Louisiana Education Board, he retires next year as Southern Bell's district manager. Brown told the papers that friends are encouraging him to make the same run. President of the State Junior Bar Association and Monroe Rotary Club, he also has area appeal as a Lake Providence native.

SHOPPING NEWS

Users of the Twin City Shopping Center in Monroe got a double dose of exciting news last week. First came word that Selber Bros. of Shreveport will start work in July on a chic 40,000-square-foot store there, and then, the next day, the architect designing that store, Lon Heuer, revealed that, indeed, the center will be adding 26 units. The old, the new and nearby Ward's facility willl be joined by a modern air-conditioned mall, he said.

Selber officials were in Monroe Thursday for their announcement, indicating a planned total investment at the center of more than $1.5 million. The Selber Bros. store —to feature a beauty shop and specialty gift section, as well as departmentalized apparel selections — will employ 100 persons, to be chosen almost entirely from the local work force.

Heuer, in disclosing the other additions — also due to come in quick order — essayed a shift in access orientation from heavily - travelled Louisville Avenue to Oliver Road. Selber Bros., as Ward's now does, will front on Oliver Road.

MOUTHLESS FISH

In case readers still are wondering about the mouthless fish mentioned earlier, they are not alone. The writer wondered about him quite a lot also and read with inordinate interest the account of his examination by Northeast's Dr. Neil Douglas.

Caught in a hoop net by Winnsboro fisherman J. M. Fletcher, the small-mouth (very small, indeed) buffalo measured 16-inches and scaled two and a half pounds, against an estimated age of three years. The examiner said scar tissue indicated the fish originally had a mouth, like any other, but that it seemed to have been torn out somehow toward the end of its second year. Its intestines contained none of the usual food materials, but only minute acquatic insects — apparently infused by respiration through the gills and, Mother Nature abiding, through the esopagus into the stomach.

Whether by adaptation or mutation, it was a rare fish and will hold a place in the college's vertebrate collection.

OTHER NEWS

Other news of the week, besides the usual royal variety, reported a number of deaths, both accidental and natural, taking from the area some of its better-known citizens.

A lifelong Monroyan and retired attorney A. Milling Bernstein, father of now-practicing Henry Bernstein Jr., died Tuesday of an apparent heart attack, at the age of 66. Well-known retired Monroe businessman Roland Siegle, 69, former owner of two local theaters, died the same day at the Methodist Hospital in Houston, Tex. The victim of a fatal heart attack Sunday night was the Rev. Raymond T. Watson, pastor of St. John's Christian Church and a Monroe religious leader for more than 25 years. In Shreveport, G. M. (Jake) Anderson, 53, a Monroe native and widely - known Shreveport independent oil and gas operator, succumbed late Monday after a short illness.

Accidental death during the week claimed 16-year-old Donnie Guice of Epps, who drowned in a pond near that town, Mrs. Myrtle Garret of Monroe —victim of a two-car collision near Bossier City — and Mrs. Ella McCalla, 73, of Quitman, hit Sunday night by a car as she was walking home from church.

Reading Laboratory At School Here Rated High In State

READING
PROVIDES THE JEWELS IN THE CROWN OF EDUCATION

Materials range from first grade level through college level, and each child works at his own individual level. The completion of the Ouachita Junior High School reading laboratory, along with the addition of another reading teacher, since its small beginning four years ago, has resulted in some of the finest reading instruction in the state.

The reading laboratory was the project of A. L. Lewis, principal of the school. He worked with J. M. Waldrop, Ouachita Parish elementary school supervisor, Dr. Woodrow Flanary of Northeast Louisiana State College, and Mrs. Thelma Bradley, one of the reading teachers for the laboratory.

Lewis felt at that time, and still does, that it is his responsibility and the responsibility of his teachers to help adolescents solve problems that have meaning to them. He also believes that accomplishment in reading is accompanied by social recognition and an increase in social prestige for the student.

TO AID SOLUTION

And Lewis has tried to help solve those problems that may be concerned with reading by providing for his seventh and eighth graders a very fine laboratory. There are now four rooms equipped and available to the students for their various reading assignments.

Two of these rooms are for instructional purposes. Between these there is the laboratory itself, with tables, chairs, earphones, record players, tapes and many types of programmed learning.

In one of the instruction rooms, there is an overhead projector, where lessons in dictionary skill are taught. Diacritical marks and primary and secondary accents are flashed on the screen in color.

In the laboratory is the individual Science Research Association Reading Accelerator. With this equipment the student learns to develop increased speed in reading.

There is also a stereo-reader in the laboratory, which aids in developing a student's eye muscles when one eye is weaker than the other. Sometimes mixed dominance occurs, when a child has a strong eye opposite a dominant hand and foot. This may cause reading difficulties. The stereo-reader helps the student by strengthening the weaker eye to coordinate with the dominant hand and foot.

One of the most interesting things found in the laboratory is the salt tray. The students use the kinesthetic method of tracing words in salt as a sensory process to learn new words. Only readers who need help with sounds, reversals and spelling use the salt tray.

The other room is a darkroom, in which film strips, the motion picture machine and the opaque projector are used as needed. These are used in connection with reading skills learned with the Educational Developmental Laboratories' Controlled Reader.

NEW READING MACHINE

The comprehensive reading program at Ouachita Junior High is based on the continuity of the spiral-like fashion of the reading skills introduced in the elementary grades. However, emphasis at the seventh and eighth grade level is placed on critical reading, critical reaction and reading in the content area. This well-coordinated program is developmental for all the students, as well as being remedial for those who are reading below their grade level.

According to Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Kathey Roane, the new reading teacher, this type of instruction give immediate feedback and reinforcement to the reader. He works at his own level independently, checks his work, makes his corrections and continues in a spiral, continuous series. One level of mastery leads to the next.

According to Lewis, one consistent trend in education has been toward greater and greater individualization in all areas of the school curriculum. Psychologists have pointed out that when a pupil is deeply involved in the selection of a specific learning task, his instruction becomes more rewarding.

Since reading is a private matter involving a pupil, his background, abilities, interests, habits and attitudes all affect the fundamental purpose of learning to read — self-fulfillment. The student accommodates himself to the materials selected by his principal, consultants, librarians and teachers.

According to Mrs. Bradley, the reading done by the student is actually therapeutic in nature. Many personality difficulties with respect to feelings of failure have been eliminated through the laboratory work, because each child works at his own rate and at his own level.

SOMEHWAT RELAXED

The all-important American concept of competition is somewhat relaxed, and the student is more at ease in his work. He is actually competing with himself to become a better reader, therefore, a better student.

And these students who are bettering themselves may thank A. L. Lewis for so much of the work done in acquiring the laboratory and setting up its programs. It is apparent that he made a wise decision when, after consultations with his faculty, he decided that every seventh grade student be required to take one semester of reading and then another semester in the eighth. For, when mid-semester came and the students had a choice of taking another elective, many asked to return to the reading lab, an interest in reading hardly ever shown before at the junior high level.

RESULTS PLEASING

Lewis is very pleased with the results of Ouachita Junior High School reading laboratory. A really concentrated program is now in operation. And according to Mrs. Bradley, "Valid and reliable test scores have proved without a doubt that every boy and girl has benefited from the stepped-up methods and materials in operation in the new reading laboratory."

Many visitors have been enthusiastic after visiting the reading lab. Jack Lee, supervisor of elementary instruction in LaSalle Parish, said, "I think it is the type of instruction that we need. I saw signposts pointing in the proper direction and evidence of meeting the pupils' individual needs.

"What I did see could not have been done without excellence in teaching. There was certainly teamwork. Another thing that impressed me was the instruction and research skills from the library unit that I saw being taught to the gifted and more accelerated readers. Many times our reading programs are much more of a remedial nature."

J. M. Waldrop, supervisor of elementary schools in Ouachita Parish, seems to be well pleased with the quality of instruction in the reading lab. His statement probably summarizes Principal Lewis' goals for the reading laboratory. "There has been a need for this type of instruction for a long time. I have seen great progress in the students in the reading program at Ouachita Junior High School."

South Vietnam Makes Heavy Bid For More Tourist Trade

By KENNETH L. WHITING

SAIGON (AP) —Having trouble deciding where to take your vacation this year? How about Vietnam?"

No kidding. Officials classify some 46,000 of last year's visitors as tourists and they have high hopes of increasing that figure in 1967.

They tout big game hunting, attractive beaches and ancient shrines. No mention is made of the war.

One government brochure put it this way: "With its sophisticated, temperate climate, resorts in the highland country, its white beaches, its ancient imperial city, its vast hunting reserves and its numerous other attractions, Vietnam is rapidly becoming a "must see' for thousands of foreign tourists."

Despite more than 20 years of combat, terrorism, economic instability and other difficulties the Saigon government is doing its best to welcome vacationers. There are 14 travel bureaus in Saigon. National Tourist Director Tranba Thach visited Seattle late in April to sing the praises of South Vietman at a meeting of the Pacific Region Tourist Federation.

Few of the 438,000 American troops regard their tours in Vietnam as a holiday, but some of their parents and relatives spend vacations here visiting them. They help swell tourists figures.

SOMETHING UNUSUAL

The tourist will notice something unusual even before his plane lands in Saigon. Passenger jets plummet steeply into Tan Son Nhut airport — among the world's busiest — to avoid Viet Cong ground fire.

After a one hour wait in a hot arrival hall during customs and immigration procedures, the vacationer is ready to sample the delights of Saigon. It is no longer the quiet and beautiful city that once laid claim to the title "Paris of the Orient."

But one tourist brouchure insists: "Saigon's attractiveness is enhanced by its boulevards, shaded by tall, exotic trees, and its public parks. Its busy river front is picturesque and ocean liners travel 40 miles up river to reach the docks."

Trees are falling fast along Cong Ly Boulevard to widen the main road from the airport for military traffic. The river is picturesque with patrolling gunboats, floating garbage and rusty freighters. Ocean shipping from the South China Sea is regularly fired upon by Communist guerrillas as it navigates the twisting channel.

Sights to see in Saigon include an assortment of French colonial buildings, Buddhist shrines, the new Doc Lap Independence Palace, the Chinese section of Cholon, the Botanical Gardens, National Museum and beautiful Vietnamese girls in their traditional "ao dai," silk pantaloons under a long silk tunic split on both sides.

Souvenir seekers can acquire multicolored China elephants or dragons in several sizes, lacquer, ivory carvings, or an attache case covered in elephant leather for $20. Those with a taste for the garish may want a black nylon jacket lettered Fighter day, lover by night. Drunkard by choice — Vietnam 1967."

English has spread rapidly in South Vietnam. The male tourist may be pleased to be hailed in his own language by pedicab drivers: "Hey you! Take number one girl?"

Gourmets will be disappointed. The once superb French cuisine has deteriorated. Those with a yen to sample Vietnamese food should be warned about "nuoc nam," the pungent fermented fish sauce. It tastes better than it smells largely because it is impossible to taste worse.

Jolly Green Giants Save Lives Of Downed Airmen

By JOHN T. WHEELER

DA NANG, South Vietnam (AP) — As the sleek fighter rolled in for another strafing pass, its doom already was a fact. The neat row of machine gun bullet holes marked the points where steel jacketed slugs had punched through to the vital innards of the American jet.

One red light winked on, an uncompromising announcement of the plane's death throes. Below the light on the F100's instrument panel was the small sign: "Flight Control Fail."

Col. Frank C. Buzze felt the stick between his feet freeze. Two more red lights —"Fire Warning" and "Aft Section Overheat." Then just as more warning lights snapped on, Buzze heard his wingman radio, "You're on fire Dusty 71."

He armed and then fired his ejection seat. Then he was tumbling through space above a Communist strongpoint along North Vietnam's supply line into the south.

The peaceful looking jungle below was crawling with enemy troops. Their natural hostility for American airmen had not been diminished by the bombing and strafing attacks just carried out by Buzze's flight of Super Sabers.

At this point in any other war, Col. Buzze would have been almost certain of being captured or killed. He certainly could not have expected the scores of warplanes which saturated the countryside around him to hold off the enemy troops.

UNPRECEDENTED

Although there were helicopter rescues during the Korean War, there has never been anything like the Jolly Green Giants.

The Jolly Greens, as they are called with near reverence by U.S. combat pilots, have rescued more than 50 downed crewmen in North Vietnam, Laos and South Vietnam. The cost to the members of the 37th Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron has been about 40 killed, wounded or missing. About 10 choppers have been lost.

Hundreds of medals have been hung on the chests of rescue team members. Others have been pinned on the American flag draped coffins bound for the United States.

"Jet pilots are a pretty individualistic lot and will argue about almost anything," one squadron commander said. "But the sure way to start a fight is for someone to bad mouth the Jolly Greens. No one does."

Col. Buzze wasn't thinking of rescue as his parachute opened, even though alert aircraft were already flashing news of his fate. At Da Nang, a HH3C chopper and a flight of A1E Skyraiders were already being launched.

Buzze was worried about getting on the ground alive. The shock of the chute opening ripped two panels out of the orange nylon canopy when it blossomed over his head. As he neared the ground, bullets began whizzing by his head as the Communist soldiers opened fire. More panels ripped away and Buzze dropped heavily into a bamboo thicket.

One of the first things he heard were "many voices shouting what appeared to be commands. Then the firing died down."

Armed only with a pistol and hunting knife, Buzze began moving away from the voices hoping to find an area where the Jolly Greens could pick him up. That one would come, Buzze accepted as fact.

Minutes later the Skyraiders arrived and Buzze flashed a mirror signal through an opening in the jungle canopy. A Skyraider pilot spotted the flash and wiggled his wings to let Buzze know he had been seen.

The Skyraiders began rolling in one by one to "sanitize" the area. That meant dropping napalm and antipersonnel bombs around Buzze and shooting up the area with 20mm shells.

The attack was in the nick of time. Buzze heard the searching enemy troops closing in from all directions.

Minutes later the unmistakable noise of helicopter blades announced the arrival of Jolly Green 56. The camouflaged helicopter spotted a pen gun flare fired by Buzze and stopped right over the downed colonel. The Communist troops opened up with everything they had.

Another helicopter already was on the way with more fighter bombers racing ahead of it. They fired to keep a box of fire around Buzze to screen him from the enemy troops.

INSIDE BOX

But some of the troops were inside the box with Buzze. As one crashed through the jungle close to the airman the pilot dived under some fallen bamboo to hide. The soldier came within a few feet of him and called out in broken English: "American pilot, me Communist soldier." The searcher missed Buzze and moved on down the hill.

Buzze began working his way up the hill. He scrambled from hiding place to hiding place during the bomb and rocket passes. A second Jolly Green whirled into position. But again the firing was too intense. Finally it was forced to go back to Da Nang.

"Ruscue from the air seemed impossible," Buzze remembered thinking. It appeared senseless to expose any further rescue crews to the terrible gunfire.

Jolly Green 56 took it for several minutes while the crew tried to get a rescue line to Buzze. But they had to abandon the try and turned back toward Da Nang. Capt. Angelo Pullara, of Lubbock, Tex., the pilot, was dead and Capt. Jerrold D. Ward, the copilot, was wounded. Jolly Green 56 had done its best and more.

"I started thinking about holing up until night and then trying to walk out." But Buzze had no water and the dense jungle and concentration of enemy troops were formidable foes.

More aircraft joined the "Sanitation Brigade" as others ran out of bombs and rockets or approached "Bingo," the point where they had only enough fuel to get home.

For Buzze and his would be captors, the violent drama went from a nearly unbearable peak to still higher levels as the minutes turned into hours.

The forward air controller — FAC — in a monotone: "He should be just about under us now. Paste that ridge line again, please."

Rescue commander, "Uh, Roger."

From another pilot, "Twenty five Charlies (Communist) troops at 10 o'clock." He might have been ordering a beer for all the emotion in his voice.

PILOT IN SIGHT

An F100 pilot: "Okay, two bombs apiece on this run."

Control: "Please don't send another chopper into the area until we sterilize it some more. "The pilot has left the ridge and is 100 yards down on the north side into the valley where we were putting the napalm."

"Okay, Saber 82, get right down on those trees so you don't miss and hit the pilot."

"I can't see the pilot flashing the mirror anymore. He probably is in another footrace with the troops."

Contral: "No more strikes until we find him again. He may have been scarfed up (captured)."

Agonizing minutes of uncertainty and then another monotone, "There were two flashes below the ridge near the smoke."

"Uh, Roger, can you get him."

Jolly Green 37 was commanded by Capt. Robert L. Powell of Framingham Mass. He and his copilot, Maj. Powel Moore of Wheaton, Md., scanned th area below for enemy troops while th mechanic, S. Sgt. John P. Rogerson o Williamston, N.C., and the parareseu man, Airman 1C David W. Slinger o Trenton, Fla., got ready for the rescu attempt.

Command: "Want to give it a try"

"TRYING RIGHT NOW"

"I'm trying right now." A few mi utes and Jolly Green 37 added, "I thi we've got a good chance if you wo over the area real well."

Fighters began rolling into satura the area around Buzze with everythi they had.

"This is Jolly Green 37. I'm going try for a pickup now."

"If we don't make it this time, I re ommend we discontinue." This from co trol. The voice was flat.

"Hit west of the chopper and north the smoke. Jolly Green's getting fire The tension was building in everyone voice now.

"Hits, hits, hits. I'm hit. I'm hit." Th from Jolly Green 37 who was bei raked by automatic weapons fire as lowered the rescue seat into the jun for Buzze. Despite the fire he stayed over the colonel.

"Come on, baby," someone radioed encouragement.

"Put some fire on the north side of t chopper. I saw some rifle flashes there Then the triumphant shout, "We got t boy!"

"This is control. Thanks a lot and yo buddies too. Without it we never wo have gotten him." This to the leader a flighter bomber flight.

"That was our buddy, too. Glad to g out."

Buzze recalled later that as the resc seat was being winched up to the ch per, "I took off on a wild ride bef I knew it, I was at the chopper's d and whisked inside safe, happy and lieved.

"But most of all, I was humble o the self sacrifice, raw courage and termination demonstrated by all th who fought to rescue me."

Buzze was offered the big shot of wh key reserved for all rescued airmen. was 4 hours and 20 minutes since those red lights had flashed on Buzze's cockpit.

Major progress has been recorded in remedial reading work in a project at Ouachita Parish Junior High School.

Control: "Please don't send another chopper into the area until we sterilize it some more. "The pilot has left the ridge and is 100 yards down on the north side into the valley where we were putting the napalm."

"Okay, Saber 82, get right down on those trees so you don't miss and hit the pilot."

"I can't see the pilot flashing the mirror anymore. He probably is in another footrace with the troops."

Contral: "No more strikes until we find him again. He may have been scarfed up (captured)."

Agonizing minutes of uncertainty and then another monotone, "There were two flashes below the ridge near the smoke."

Jolly Green 37 was commanded by Capt. Robert L. Powell of Framingham, Mass. He and his copilot, Maj. Powell Moore of Wheaton, Md., scanned the area below for enemy troops while the mechanic, S. Sgt. John P. Rogerson of Williamston, N.C., and the pararescueman, Airman 1.C. David W. Slinger of Trenton, Fla., got ready for the rescue attempt.

"TRYING RIGHT NOW"

"I'm trying right now." A few minutes and Jolly Green 37 added, "I think we've got a good chance if you work over the area real well."

Fighters began rolling into saturate the area around Buzze with everything they had.

"If we don't make it this time, I recommend we discontinue." This from control. The voice was flat.

"Hit west of the chopper and north of the smoke. Jolly Green's getting fire." The tension was building in everyone's voice now.

"Hits, hits, hits. I'm hit. Im hit.' ' This from Jolly Green 37 who was being raked by automatic weapons fire as he lowered the rescue seat into the jungle for Buzze. Despite the fire he stayed put over the colonel.

"Come on, baby," someone radioed in encouragement.

"Put some fire on the north side of the chopper. I saw some rifle flashes there."

Then the triumphant shout, "We got the boy!"

The airwaves were jammed immediately with "Yipees!" "Yahoos!" and cries of "Good work!"

"This is control. Thanks a lot and your buddies too. Without it we never would have gotten him." This to the leader of a flighter bomber flight.

Buzze recalled later that as the rescue seat was being winched up to the chopper, "I took off on a wild ride before I knew it, I was at the chopper's door and whisked inside safe, happy and relieved.

"But most of all, I was humble over the self sacrifice, raw courage and determination demonstrated by all those who fought to rescue me."

Buzze was offered the big shot of whiskey reserved for all rescued airmen. It was 4 hours and 20 minutes since all those red lights had flashed on in Buzze's cockpit.

New Immediate Print Camera Is Developed

By IRVING DESFOR
AP NEWSFEATURES

The new self - developing camera is priced under $15, a new low for that type of camera. It uses a special plastic L-shape film cartridge — cost: $1.79 — which produces eight pictures, 2¼ x 3¼ inches.

The Insta - Camera has a two tone plastic body and roughly resembles a movie camera in looks. Its economy is due to its box - camera simplicity with a fixed focus lens and one-stroke shutter operation. It has a single dial pointer for basic light conditions or for flash operation from 4 to 12 feet. A separate flash unit for AGI bulbs, which attaches to the camera by two pins, is included with the camera.

It has taken engineer George Linder Jr. more than six years to perfect his invention of a different way to produce "instant" pictures into a camera ready for public reaction. With a group of "believers," the Camera Corporation of American was organized at Hicksville, N.Y., to develop the idea into the finished product.

CURTAIN CALL

By CURTIS RAPE

Our Theatre is indeed fortunate to have the honor of being one of the very first off-broadway groups to secure the release of "Barefoot in the Park."

The success of this or any show in part depends on audience attendance and audience reaction. This is very important, but let us not forget the main ingredient of any successful show, whether it be amateur, professional, on Broadway or off Broadway.

This element is support. If "Batefoot . . . " gets the support it needs, this can be a major milestone in local theatre history. Many people have responded to our pleas for help, but still much, much more help and assistance is needed on this show.

BEHIND THE SCENES

A play could never get on the boards if it were strictly dependent on director, cast, and audiences. People to work behind the scenes are one of the most valuable assets of this or any other show.

Remember this show can be a success only if you give it your support—not just as a member of the audience, but as an active worker, whether it be painting sets, gathering properties, working crew, or lending properties. We have a highly successful community theatre —your theatre —please come out to work and lets keep it that way.

NEEDED

Needed mainly are bodies to work on painting and decorating the set. Next week is time to put the set together as the actors go into final rehearsals for that exciting opening night. If you have only an hour, that valuable time is needed by your theatre. Come on out and lend us a hand, whether during the day or at night. We'll be more than happy to have you.

Two persons with cars are desperatley needed to help gather properties Monday and Tuesday, May 15 and 16. It'll only take one or two hours and you'll be doing your theatre a great service.

Along the properties line, we are still in great need of a few items. Needed are Drapes, wrought iron furniture, empty one-gallon and five-gallon paint cans, old mirrors, sheets, blankets, pillows, and pillow cases. If you have any of these items, please call Bill at the theatre.

BOX OFFICE

Evening performances of "Barefoot in the Park" will be May 22-27, 29, and 30. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. One matinee only will be played May 28 with curtain time at 2:30 p.m.

The box office will be open to receive telephone reservations beginning May 20 and will remain open through May 30. Hours of operation will be from 2 - 8 p.m. On May 21 & 28 the hours will be 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. If you desire to make telephone reservations or pick up your tickets at the box office, please do so only during the hours of operation.

Also be sure to pick up your tickets by 4:30 p.m. on the reservation date or they may be sold to someone else.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE

Wednesday, May 17, at 4 p.m. one of the creative dramatics classes of the Theatre School will have a demonstration for which 1st and 2nd graders of the school will be both audience and participants. The class members are the 5th and 6th graders who recently produced the "Spoofy Doof's Funnybone," which was such a delight as one of the regular plays of the children's theatre season.

The current play, "The Magic Toymaker," is one which the children developed in their class. They have invented the plot, composed the dialogue, and created the characterizations.

On Thursday, the 3rd and 4th grade class will also do a demonstration of creative works for their families and friends.

MEMBERSHIP MEETING

A large crowd attended the annual membership meeting held recently at the playhouse. Various items of business were voted on as well as the selection of some new board members.

New members included Lallage Wall, Eula Davenport, Ed Ellison, Wilbur Keko, and Gay Ulrich. We want to congratulate these people as well as thank those members retiring from the board.

Those whose terms expire include Sherck Bogen, Thomas R. Henry, Jr., Mrs. Carl H. McHenry, Jack Mabray, and Mrs. Felix Willey.

Following the business meeting members were treated to a program by stars of past LT musicals. Under the direction of Velma Willey, the program was a great success and brought back many pleasant memories to patrons.

Two persons with cars are desperatley needed to help gather properties Monday and Tuesday, May 15 and 16. It'll only take one or two hours and you'll be doing your theatre a great service.

Along the properties line, we are still in great need of a few items. Needed are Drapes, wrought iron furniture, empty one-gallon and five-gallon paint cans, old mirrors, sheets, blankets, pillows, and pillow cases. If you have any of these items, please call Bill at the theatre.

BOX OFFICE

Also be sure to pick up your tickets by 4:30 p.m. on the reservation date or they may be sold to someone else.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE

Wednesday, May 17, at 4 p.m. one of the creative dramatics classes of the Theatre School will have a demonstration for which 1st and 2nd graders of the school will be both audience and participants. The class members are the 5th and 6th graders who recently produced the "Spoofy Doof's Funnybone," which was such a delight as one of the regular plays of the children's theatre season.

Well-Known Twin Cities Homes

Pargoud Built 2 Houses For Sons

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth in a series on well-known Twin Cities and area homes.)

By MARILLYN TAYLOR

Newcomers to Monroe are frequently puzzled at the nomenclature of streets. For instance, why should there be a "Pargoud Drive" and a "Pargoud Boulevard," both obstensibly named for Pargoud Plantation, and separated by several miles of city?

The answer is that there were two plantations belonging to Hippolyte Pargoud, designated as "Upper Pargoud Plantation" and "Lower Pargoud Plantation." For his two sons, Jean Francois and Joseph, Pargoud built twin houses, one on each of his plantations. These buildings, which were completed over 150 years ago, are still standing, two of Monroe's most interesting homes.

Lower Pargoud plantation house, located at 2111 S. Grand Street is now occupied by Mrs. J. R. Wooten and her daughter, Mrs. Elmer Slagle. Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McSherry and their family live in Upper Pargoud house, at 2500 Island Drive.

LANE OF CATALPAS

Both houses were once approached by a lane bordered with catalpa trees which grew from a unique fence. Pargoud used young trees, with four holes drilled through each to hold rails of split cypress. The trees grew, thrived, and clutched the cypress. In the early days of the twentieth century, the shady road provided a romantic trysting place and came to be known as "Lovers' Lane." Today, many of the trees still survive on South Grand Street.

The trees on Upper Pargoud have not survived in a lane, though several are still found in gardens. Four are found in the yard of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Breard at 3612 Pargoud Boulevard; and two between the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Corbin Turpin and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Biedenharn, Jr., on Point Drive.

The two original houses were built of hand hewn cypress held together with pegs and resting on cypress stumps. Each was originally three square rooms with a full length front and back gallery. Each is a story and a half high with fireplaces in identical location. Kitchen, guest rooms, servant quarters, and carriage house were located in the traditional outhouses surrounding the main house. Mrs. Wooten created several patio areas in her garden, utilizing old brick dug from the sites of these small surrounding houses.

As houses will, these grew and changed with desires of successive owners. Differences in the Pargoud houses are those which come of later additions and remodellings.

LOWER PARGOUD

At Lower Pargoud, the front gallery still faces South Grand Street. Original shutters close on windows with handblown glasspanes. The ceiling is of an unusual panelling, and in the panelling are large iron hooks. These supported earthenware jars which were filled with water and swung back and forth by slaves for cooling.

The center room of the original three is used today as a sitting room. A chimney in the wall to the left serves a fireplace in this room and in the library adjoining. To the right is a bedroom, one of the original three rooms. The chimney here was knocked down and the fireplace walled up to provide a space for the beautiful old carved French bed which is the focal point of the room.

Mrs. Wooten and her late husband purchased the house about 50 years ago. At that time, it had been empty for a number of years and a good deal of work was needed to make the home into the charming and hospitable place it is today.

The back gallery was raised from ground level and additions made at the rear of the house to enlarge the dining room and add a kitchen. A stair leads from the back porch to the original batten door opening onto the second story. Pargoud used only a small office on this floor, but Mrs. Wooten finished a large bed-sitting room here.

Empire furniture is used throughout the house. A number of pieces came from Georgia where they belonged to Mr. Wooten's family. His great-grandfather, Judge Taylor, travelled from Sparta, Georgia to New York by stagecoach on his honeymoon. There he and his bride bought much of their household equipment, which was shipped by boat to Savannah and thence overland to their home. Judge Taylor's portrait hangs above the mantel in the living room at Lower Pargoud today.

UPPER PARGOUD

With a 50-foot beam of hand-hewn cypress girding the framework, Upper Pargoud has survived even the rigors of being moved from its original location. The house was hauled by mule teams and a truck, after the floods of 1927. It was moved back several hundred yards from a site overlooking the river, and not even a brick in the chimney was disturbed.

Like Lower Pargoud, this house was three square rooms with front and back galleries. Here the stairway to the half story leads from the middle room, rather than the back porch. And in this house, dormer windows face the front rather than back gardens. Three rooms still contain the flooring laid over a century and a half ago.

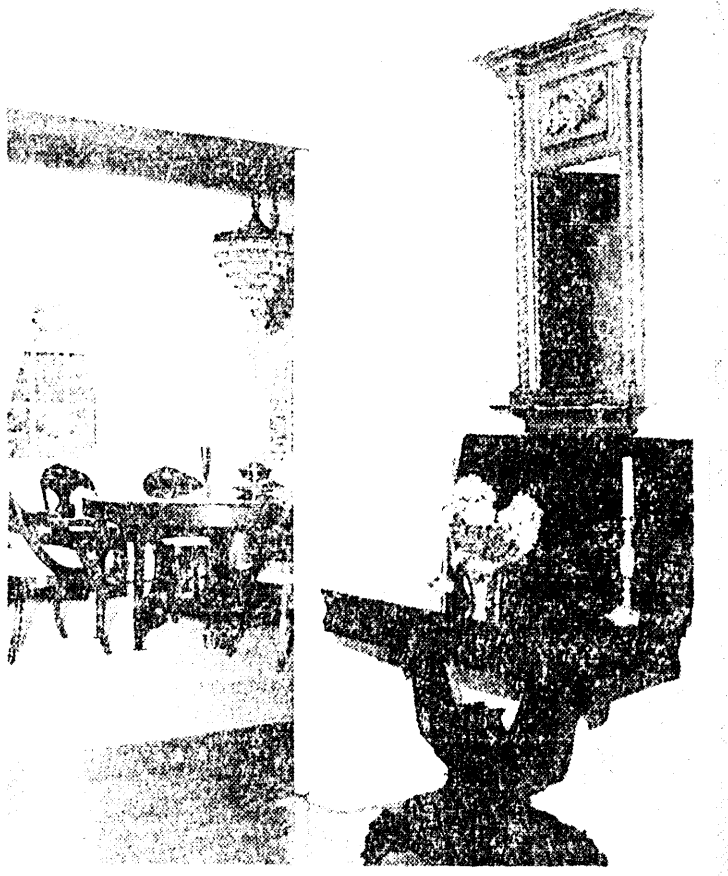
EARLY PURCHASE

Upper Pargoud was purchased by Mrs. McSherry's grandfather, John T. Cole, about 70 years ago. Mr. and Mrs. Cole came to this area in the 1870's and purchased their first plantation, Glendora, near Sterlington, at about that time. In later years they acquired Woodlawn, and Cuba as well as Upper Pargoud. Cole was the first president of Ouachita Parish school board.

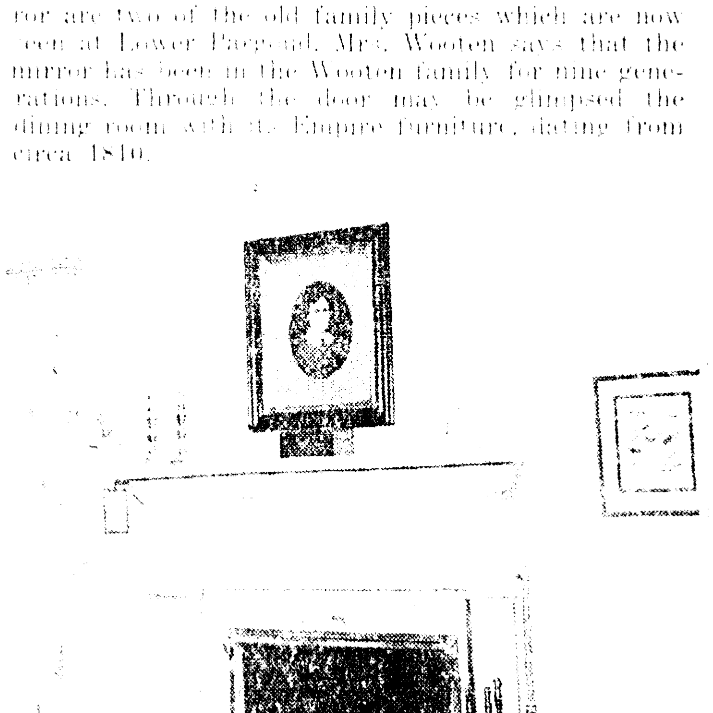
One of the most interesting pieces of furniture in the home is a 200-year-old "wig dresser," with a special compartment for storing wigs. Matching the dresser in looks and age is a four-poster bed with tester. Other antiques in the house include a revolving card table and a bookcase and secretary which are over 100 years old.

About 400 yards north of the house is the Pargoud Indian Mound, traditionally the burial place of the daughter of Chief Ucita, the beautiful Wichita.

According to legend, Wichita saved the life of Juan Ortego, a member of Narvaez's expedition. The Spaniard married her in gratitude and later left her. She died of a broken heart, and was buried at the spot where Bayou DeSiard flows into the Ouachita.



FLIP TOP cardtable and gold-framed Venetian mirror are two of the old family pieces which are now seen at Lower Pargoud. Mrs. Wooten says that the mirror has been in the Wooten family for nine generations. Through the door may be glimpsed the dining room with its Empire furniture, dating from circa 1810.



ORIGINAL CYPRESS mantels and old brick are undisturbed in the chimneys at Upper Pargoud plantation. These sturdily built fireplaces survived with not a brick out of place when the house was moved back from the river after the flood of 1927. The portrait is an oil of Katherine Stuart Childress, great-grandmother of Mrs. McSherry.

Gallup Poll Report

One In Four Takes On 'Superhawk' Position

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — If one were to travel across the country to talk to people about the Vietnam war, he would soon discover that it is impossible to fit citizens into neat categories such as "hawks" and "doves."

Many shades of opinion are found about Vietnam, as Gallup Poll interviewers in 350 localities from coast to coast have discovered in recent days.

However, when all the different views of the public are collected and analyzed, some fairly definite groupings begin to appear, especially at the extreme positions of the spectrum — the "superhawks" and the "superdoves."

"Some people say we should go all-out to win a military victory in Vietnam, using atom bombs and weapons. Do you agree or disagree with this view?"

One person in four answers in the affirmative. This may come as a surprise since no U.S. military leaders has yet proposed such an extreme measure.

Following are the findings. Since the sample was drawn according to scientific sampling principles, percentages can be translated into millions of adults with a high degree of accuracy.

Use Atom Bombs?

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Agree	26	30
Disagree	64	72
No opinion	10	11

Men are more inclined to take this "superhawk" position than are women. Southerners are the most hawkish. Little difference is revealed by an analysis of party affiliation, age, education, or occupation.

"We've got to push harder over there. We ought to bomb the daylights out of them and get the war over with. If the army wants to use atom bombs, I say go ahead."

The Superdoves

To identify the other extreme ,a question was asked to find out how many persons think we should withdraw immediately from Vietnam.

A total of 14 per cent or 16 million adults fall into this category, slightly more than half the number who say we should go all-out and use atomic bombs and weapons.

A sharp difference is found between the views of men and women, with the latter being far more inclined to favor immediate withdrawal. Easterners are the most "doveish" of the nation, but again little difference is to be found on the basis of party affiliation and age. The "doves" are distributed rather equally in all levels of society.

"This war will go on forever and ever and nothing will be accomplished. Let's get out of there now. Why did we ever go there in the first place?"

The Middle Way

Persons taking extreme positions on the war in Vietnam account for 40 per cent of the total, leaving about 60 per cent with views in between. Some say they are satisfied with present efforts. Others want us to try harder to find a peace formula. Still others want to escalate the war but do not want to go all out and use atom bombs.

To shed further light on current attitudes about the war in Vietnam, this question was put to all persons in the survey:

"In view of the developments since we entered the fighting in Vietnam, do you think the U.S. made a mistake sending troops to fight in Vietnam?"

The results show an increase in the number saying we made a mistake, from 32 per cent in January of this year, to 37 per cent today. The current figure, however, is still well below the figure recorded near the end of the Korean War, 49 per cent.

We Make Mistake?

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Yes, mistake	37	42
No	50	56
No opinion	13	15

Since the moral justification of the Vietnam war has been widely discussed, this question was asked:

"Do you think our part in the war in Vietnam is morally justified?"

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Yes	59	67
No	26	29
No opinion	15	17

Among those who say our part in the war is morally justified, the President wins an approval vote of 60 per cent. But among those who think the war is not justified on moral grounds his handling of the Vietnam situation is approved by only 15 per cent.

This latter group — those who think the war is not morally justified — could, therefore, represent an important roadblock to President Johnson's hopes for re-election in 1968.

Solon Asks U.S. Increase Shipbuilding

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., Saturday called for a building program of 40 to 50 ships a year to overcome the United States maritime deficiencies.

Speaking at the launching of a cargo ship, he said he was opposed to recent recommendations to build American merchant ships abroad.

"I wouldn't appropriate 15 cents to build an American ship in a foreign shipyard. Such a program is not one of maritime growth, but rather a blueprint maritime disaster," he said.

ooney, chairman of a House ommittee on commerce, the main address at the hing of the President Taft, 572-foot, $13 million vessel of five being constructed Ingalls Shipbuilding Division of Litton Industries. The ships are being built for American President Lines of San Francisco.

Rooney, in his call for immediate action to reestablish America's position as a maritime leader, said the United States must reaffirm the "valid and time - tested concept that a strong Merchant Marine is essential to the commercial well-being and security of the nation."

He urged the development of "constructive means" for transporting a substantial portion of the nation's export-import commerce in United States flagships.

"Our ships now carry only 8 per cent of our commerce," Rooney noted. He suggested that the United States should at least match the Russians who now transport 75 per cent of their commerce in Soviet vessels.

Pony Returns Child Happy

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (AP) — Dawn Stanbro, 11, whose Shetland pony was feared stolen Friday, had it back again Saturday and she's happy.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stanbro, called police when they found the yard gate open and the chestnut-colored stallion missing.

A neighbor called the Stanbros and told them the pony had wandered into her yard, along with another neighbor's pony. They apparently had been turned loose by vandals.

Dawn is an ill child, the victim of cancer. She would not eat recently because of pain in her throat caused by radiation treatment. She promised to eat after her father agreed to get her the pony.

Gallup Poll Report

One In Four Takes On 'Superhawk' Position

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — If one were to travel across the country to talk to people about the Vietnam war, he would soon discover that it is impossible to fit citizens into neat categories such as "hawks" and "doves."

Many shades of opinion are found about Vietnam, as Gallup Poll interviewers in 350 localities from coast to coast have discovered in recent days.

However, when all the different views of the public are collected and analyzed, some fairly definite groupings begin to appear, especially at the extreme positions of the spectrum — the "superhawks" and the "superdoves."

"Some people say we should go all-out to win a military victory in Vietnam, using atom bombs and weapons. Do you agree or disagree with this view?"

One person in four answers in the affirmative. This may come as a surprise since no U.S. military leaders has yet proposed such an extreme measure.

Following are the findings. Since the sample was drawn according to scientific sampling principles, percentages can be translated into millions of adults with a high degree of accuracy.

Use Atom Bombs?

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Agree	26	30
Disagree	64	72
No opinion	10	11

Men are more inclined to take this "superhawk" position than are women. Southerners are the most hawkish. Little difference is revealed by an analysis of party affiliation, age, education, or occupation.

"We've got to push harder over there. We ought to bomb the daylights out of them and get the war over with. If the army wants to use atom bombs, I say go ahead."

The Superdoves

To identify the other extreme ,a question was asked to find out how many persons think we should withdraw immediately from Vietnam.

A total of 14 per cent or 16 million adults fall into this category, slightly more than half the number who say we should go all-out and use atomic bombs and weapons.

A sharp difference is found between the views of men and women, with the latter being far more inclined to favor immediate withdrawal. Easterners are the most "doveish" of the nation, but again little difference is to be found on the basis of party affiliation and age. The "doves" are distributed rather equally in all levels of society.

"This war will go on forever and ever and nothing will be accomplished. Let's get out of there now. Why did we ever go there in the first place?"

The Middle Way

Persons taking extreme positions on the war in Vietnam account for 40 per cent of the total, leaving about 60 per cent with views in between. Some say they are satisfied with present efforts. Others want us to try harder to find a peace formula. Still others want to escalate the war but do not want to go all out and use atom bombs.

To shed further light on current attitudes about the war in Vietnam, this question was put to all persons in the survey:

"In view of the developments since we entered the fighting in Vietnam, do you think the U.S. made a mistake sending troops to fight in Vietnam?"

The results show an increase in the number saying we made a mistake, from 32 per cent in January of this year, to 37 per cent today. The current figure, however, is still well below the figure recorded near the end of the Korean War, 49 per cent.

We Make Mistake?

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Yes, mistake	37	42
No	50	56
No opinion	13	15

Since the moral justification of the Vietnam war has been widely discussed, this question was asked:

"Do you think our part in the war in Vietnam is morally justified?"

	Per cent	Millions of Adults
Yes	59	67
No	26	29
No opinion	15	17

Among those who say our part in the war is morally justified, the President wins an approval vote of 60 per cent. But among those who think the war is not justified on moral grounds his handling of the Vietnam situation is approved by only 15 per cent.

This latter group — those who think the war is not morally justified — could, therefore, represent an important roadblock to President Johnson's hopes for re-election in 1968.

Solon Asks U.S. Increase Shipbuilding

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP)— John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., Saturday called for a building program of 40 to 50 ships a year to overcome the United States maritime deficiencies..

Speaking at the launching of a cargo ship, he said he was opposed to recent recommendations to build American merchant ships abroad.

"I wouldn't appropriate 15 cents to build an American ship n a foreign shipyard. Such a program is not one of maritime owth, but rather a blueprint maritime disaster," he said.

ooney, chairman of a House ommittee on commerce, the main address at the hing of the President Taft, 572-foot, $13 million vessel of five being constructed Ingalls Shipbuilding Division of Litton Industries. The ships are being built for American President Lines of San Francisco.

Rooney, in his call for immediate action to reestablish America's position as a maritime leader, said the United States must reaffirm the "valid and time - tested concept that a strong Merchant Marine is essential to the commercial well-being and security of the nation."

He urged the development of "constructive means" for transporting a substantial portion of the nation's export-import commerce in United States flagships.

"Our ships now carry only 8 per cent of our commerce," Rooney noted. He suggested that the United States should at least match the Russians who now transport 75 per cent of their commerce in Soviet vessels.

Guide To Good Reading

Large Number Of New Books Added

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

In the past week a large number of new books have been added to the Library collection. Many of our patrons are devoted readers of mystery stories and for them we have 15 new titles, extra copies of these titles bring the number of new mystery books to 50. Copies of some of them are found in each branch and at least one copy of each title is found in the main library. These are the new mystery stories: "A New Lease of Death" by Ruth Rendell, "Villainous Company" by Ruth Fenisong, "Killer Dolphin" by Nagio Marsh, "Return to Aylforth" by Anne Eliot, "Murder in Our Midst" by Agatha Christie, "A Fragment of Fear" by John Bingham, "The Old Man Dies" by Georges Simenon, "Midsummer Lokki" written by Eva-Lis Wuorio, "Wanted for Killing" by John Welcome, "The Crystallized Carbon Pig" by John Wainwright, "The Legacy Lenders" by Harold Masur, "Why Did They Kill Charley?" by Carter Young, "Follow the Toff" another in the series by John Creasey, "Snow on the High Ground" by Raymond Sawkins. There are also some interesting books of fiction available. "One Dozen and One" is a perfectly delightful book of short stories by Gladys Taber. "That Old College Try" by Willard Temple is a story of present day college life which should appeal to many young people. "Digging Out" by Anne Richardson is a sensitive and impressive novel about Jewish family life and will interest many readers. "The Adventures of Dolphin Green" by Herbert Lieberman is concerned with the experiences of a young man appointed to watch over an old man by his family. It is well-written and will have an appeal to many readers. "A Spring of Love" by Celia Dale is a very well-written novel concerned with the experiences of every day folk. "Path of the Storm" by Douglas Reeman is an exciting story of an American submarine engaged in the war in Southeast Asia. It will interest those who enjoy naval stories and also those who are interested in the conflict in Vietnam. "Rosemary's Baby" is an exciting suspense story by Ira Levin. Don't miss it.

In the field of non-fiction there are some very interesting titles. "E.S.P." by C. E. Hansel is a scientific evaluation of the phenonoma of extra sensory perception. "Beyond Success and Failure" by Willard Beecher is an excellent guide to self-reliance and maturity. "Mothers and Daughters" by Edith G. Neisser is a most interesting study of this aspect of family relationships. "The Swiss Banks" by T. R. Fehrenbach is a very fine explanation of this phase of international banking. "Practice for Clerical, Typing and Steno Tests" is a very popular civil service manual and the Library has recently acquired new copies of this title, which may be found in every branch of the library.

"The Grizzley Bear" by Bessie Haynes is a most interesting book about this great Ameican mamal. "Martinis and Whipped Cream" by Sidney Petrie is another crash diet book. Two new garden books will interest many patrons of the Library. "The Fragrant Year" by Helen Van Pelt Wilson is a discussion of scented plants which add to the pleasure of a garden. "Growing Bulbs in the House" by Zenia Field also contains much excellent material. There are several new books in the literature collection. "The Best Short Stories by Negro Writers" is a collection edited by Langston Hughes. "The Mind and Art of Henry Miller" is an excellent book of critical evaluation. "If Strangers Meet" is a book of essays by Gladys Brooks.

For the traveler there are several useful new books "Maiden Voyages" by Rochelle Girson is a very valuable book of advice for women travelling alone. Karl Baedeker's guide to "Great Britain, Southern England" is a very detailed guide to that section of that country. "Storied Cities of Japan" by Kazuo Nishida is a most useful and interesting book. "European Civic Coats of Arms" by Jiro Louda is the only book which we have on that subject and will be very interesting to those who enjoy the study of heraldry. Do not forget that the Main Library will not be open today, because it is Mother's Day, but we will be open next Sunday afternoon from 2:00 to 5:00 p.m.

Pony Returns Child Happy

PASS CHRISTIAN, Miss. (AP — Dawn Stanbro, 11, whose Shetland pony was feared stolen Friday, had it back again Saturday and she's happy.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Stanbro, called police when they found the yard gate open and the chestnut-colored stallion missing.

A neighbor called the Stanbros and told them the pony had wandered into her yard, along with another neighbor's pony. They apparently had been turned loose by vandals.

Dawn is an ill child, the victim of cancer. She would not eat recently because of pain in her throat caused by radiation treatment. She promised to eat after her father agreed to get her the pony.

Cradled in her loving arms
I learned to love her too.
Each day brought more affection
And I learned to love anew.
I love her as I older grew
There really was no other
Who would compare with her, I knew
My own dear darling mother.
I give her gifts of love today—
I love her silvery hair—
I know when I reach heaven
I'll surely find her there.

MOTHER
by Ann McKenzie

Cradled in her loving arms
I learned to love her too.
Each day brought more affection
And I learned to love anew.
I love her as I older grew
There really was no other
Who would compare with her, I knew
My own dear darling mother.
I give her gifts of love today—
I love her silvery hair—
I know when I reach heaven

Bucs Shade Tigers In AAA Semifinals

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — West Jefferson put together a big inning and steady pitching by Barry Delger to down Neville, 4-2, in the third game of their best of three series with the district 1 - AAA runnerups here Saturday morning on the Bucs field.

The Bucs had to get the job done the hard way as they lost the opener 6-5 in Monroe Thursday, but bounced back to cop both games at home. The victory in the semi - finals put West Jefferson in the finals against another District 1-AAA team, Ruston, the winners of the district.

The series begins early in the week at West Jefferson since Ruston, which dropped Glen Oaks, the defending state champs from the race, is the host team. Ruston defeated Glen Oaks in a doubleheader in Baton Rouge Friday after losing 7-1 in the opening game at home.

A four - run outburst was all Delger needed to work with as he allowed only five hits and one walk while whiffing six. The big right hander had his fast ball really hopping on the hot morning.

The second inning was the beginning of the end for the Tigers as West Jefferson sent four runs across the plate. Bob Bourque opened the inning with a line single to center. Jim Barbier, attempting to sacrifice, had his roller delude pitcher Tom Brown and all hands were safe.

Cal Galiano moved both into scoring position with a bunt down the third base line. Shelly Waites, at this point, went in to run for Bourque. Rocky Paternostro worked a free pass to load the bases with Bucs.

Mike Bourdreaux, under the free substition rule, batted for Delger, walker and forced Waites home for the first run of the game. Frank Romano followed with a line drive, just out of reach of the second baseman, Art LaGrange, and Barbier with Paternostro close behind, scored.

Richie Wilson went safe as LaGrange dropped a double play ball. And this permitted Bourdreaux to cross the plate with the fourth run of the frame. For Delger this was more than enough.

The Tigers growled in the second as Mike Kilcoyne and Ryan Rogers put together back-to-back singles to center. Delger put a halt to this however, as he retired the next three hitters. From this point, Neville posed no threat to the big righthander until the seventh.

Again Kilcoyne and Rogers singled to open the inning. However, this time Delger surrendered two runs before ending the frame and the game. With Kilcoyne and Rogers on base, the Tigers loaded them up when shortstop Wilson fumbled Keith Moncrief's ground ball.

Kilcoyne raced home when Tim Allen forced Moncrief at second. The Tigers got their second run as Allen was attempting to steal second and Romano let Barbier's throw get away, allowing Rogers to score. Delger put an end to this tight spot by striking out Osborne and forcing Don Smith to hit back to him for the final out.

Tigers Erupt In 9th To Drop BoSox, 10-8

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Freehan's three-run homer off John Wyatt powered a six-run ninth inning that sent the Detroit Tigers to their seventh straight victory, a 10-8 decision over Boston Saturday.

Wyatt, who hadn't allowed an earned run in nine previous relief appearances, got the Red Sox out of a jam in the seventh when the Tigers closed to within 5-4. But the ninth was a different story.

Wyatt started the inning by hitting Willie Horton with a pitch. Mickey Stanley ran for Horton and raced to third as Jim Northrup doubled. Freehan then lofted his sixth homer into the rightcenter field bullpen, putting Detroit ahead 7-5.

One out later, Dick Tracewski doubled and trotted home on a pinch-hit homer by pitcher Earl Wilson. Wyatt got the second out but then hit Dick McAuliffe, who scored on Al Kaline's double.

The Red Sox tried a rally of their own in the bottom of the ninth, but Dave Wickersham ended the threat after Tony Conigliaro tripled across two runs and scored on Rico Petrocelli's double.

Athletes' Emotions Mixed After End Of Conference Meet

By TOMMY POINDEXTER
World Sports Writer

"Ronnie Fountain is a tremendous competitor," said Southeastern speedster Andy Thiel, who ran a blistering 9.3 in the 100 yard dash of the Gulf States Conference meet here Saturday night.

Thiel said, "I knew it would take a fast time to beat Ronnie but I was surprised with my time even though it won't count as a record since it was wind aided."

"I hated that my career at Northeast had to end like this but my leg just wouldn't make it. It starting pulling in the 100 and finished ripping out in 220," Fountain said. Northeast coach Bob Groseclose added, "Ronnie did a remarkable job even with the injury and he's a guy with a lot of guts."

"I was disappointed that Southwestern's John McDonnell couldn't run. I think if he had been here to push me I might have ran 4:08 or better" was what Northwestern's Paul Trueman had to say after his mile victory.

Trueman came back to win the three mile in record time and became one of three double winners in the meet.

Tribe long jumper Don Warren, who made a record leap of 24-8 on his second jump said "I had a jump of 24-9 which I barely scratched on, but when I landed in the pit I ripped my pants."

After winning the 120 high hurdles, in a record setting 13.7 time the first of two events he would win, Roger Mann of Northeast said, "I wasn't satisfied with my time although I did get a good start. I hurdled badly for the first six hurdles before getting into a good pace."

Mann, a senior, said he was, "very proud," of freshman hurdler Richard Polk, who clocked a 14.0 for second place in the race. His time is the best in the nation so far this year for a frosh.

After stepping off a 52.2 to win the 440-yard intermediates and set a record in the process, Mann said, "I just tried to keep a 15 stride pace between each hurdle so I wouldn't have to alternate legs." He added that changing legs on alternate jumps tends to throw him off balance as he goes to clear a hurdle.

Big Bill Jongbloed of McNeese said, "I was disappointed with my preformance here last week at the invitational meet and I wanted to win the race more than anything else in my life. I set a fast pace from the start and hoped that I could hold it."

Stewart Blue, last year's 440 winner who finished fourth in the conference meet said, "I just didn't have enough energy to keep up with the pack."

"I had a terrible night but that is just the way it goes sometime," were the words of Big Tim Hall of Louisiana Tech, who broke the discus record with a 169-2 spin.

Tribe Coach Bob Groseclose said, "The team performed very well and I am proud of everyone of them, they did their best."

Southwestern which copped the title for the third straight year, garnered only two first places to runnerup Northeast five. The Bulldogs copped the crown with shear team depth.

GIANTS EDGE ASTROS 4-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays and Tom Haller clouted home runs for the second straight game Saturday as the San Francisco Giants downed the Houston Astros 4-3.

Haller's home run opened the bottom of the sixth and broke a tie created by a three-run Houston rally in the top of the inning.

Mays belted his fourth home run of the season and 546th of his career in the first inning, giving the Giants a 1-0 lead. Mays singled and scored one of two unearned runs for a 3-0 lead in the fourth.

The Astros chased starter Mike McCormick in the sixth as Ron Davis' home run, walks to Jim Landis and Jim Wynn and Chuck Harrison's single made it 3-2. Bob Aspromonte's single off reliever Frank Lanzy tied the game.

Lanzy, now 2-1, was the winner in relief, while Barry Latman, 1-1 took the loss after replacing Mike Cuellar, who struck out eight Giants in the first three innings and finished with nine in five innings.

Ineligibility Ruling Prevents Runaway

By STUART HILL
World Sports Editor

The University of Southwestern Louisiana won two events — the first and last of the day—and sacked up 26 other places Saturday night to win its third Gulf States Conference track meet and second straight All-Sports Trophy.

USL received a jolt in its quest for the All-Sports award earlier in the day when the league's president's council affirmed the ineligibility of the Bulldogs' distance ace John McDonnell. The decision called for a forfeit of USL's cross country championship and made it possible for Northeast to won the All-Sports Trophy, if it won the track meet.

A total of eight records were set and one was tied in the 18th annual event as USL amassed a total of 92 points ot outdistance second-running Northeast, which collected 75. Southeastern, which had one of the meet's three double winners, totaled 45 points, followed by Louisiana Tech with 42, McNeese with 18 and Northwestern with 12.

The Cajuns finished the All-Sports race with 35 points followed by Northeast with 33½, Tech with 33, NSC with 29½, McNeese with 26½, SLC with 22½ and Nicholls with 11.

Louis Lenfant of USL won the first event of the day, the javelin, with a toss of 225-11½ and the Canine mile relay team reeled off a winning 3:13.6 clocking to shade Northeast in an exciting final event.

The march by the USL track army to the title included 6 second places and one tie for second, 9 third places, 5 fourth places and 5 fifth places.

Despite the few firsts of the Lafayette Bulldogs, they placed in all events except the 120-yard high hurdles — which they didn't enter.

Northeast's Roger Mann, a senior, produced a double record-setting effort. The former Fair Park flash whizzed to a 13-7 clocking in the high sticks, shading the old mark of 13.9 which he held jointly with Don Styron of Northeast, and returned to win the grueling 440-yard intermediate hurdles in 52.2.

Northwestern's Paul Trueman who finishes distance races like he is running the quarter mile, took wins in the mile and three-mile. Tureman's two-mile time of 14:46.8 went down as a new mark because it was the first running of the event in the conference. Trueman took the lead at the halfway point in a time of 7:23.9 and lost the lead briefly to Howard Trahan of USL in the 10th lap. Trueman blasted off with the sound on the gun lap and the real race developed for second place. Brendan Minihan of Tech broke into a sprint going in the final curve to overcome Trahan and grab second.

Trueman whipped around the mile in 4:10.0, using a blistering 59.4 final lap.

Andy Thiel of Southeastern was the other double winner. Thiel's blistering 9.3 century dash will not go into the record books because of assisting wind, and he missed 220 curve record of 21.1 by one-tenth of a second.

The 220 dash proved to be costly to Northeast. Ronnie Fountain, who finished second in the 100 and furlong pulled up lame at the finish of the 220 and was taken to the dressing rooms, unable to run on the mile relay team. Fountain, a senior, had been bothered by a hamstring muscle in his right leg most of the season.

Other records were set by Don Warren of Northeast with a 24-8 broad jump Mike Shepherd of Northeast with a 54-6¼ shot put, Tim Hall of Tech with a 169-2 platter spin and Bill Jongbloed of McNeese with a 47.3 time in the 440 dash.

Northeast won the opening running event of the meet, the quarter relay, with a record equalling time of 40.8 on the strength of the last of many final anchor legs by Fountain.

Southeastern's fine middle distance runner, Jim Camphout, strained to break the 880 record but missed his goal and finished in a winning time of 1:52.7.

It seems ironic that Northeast won five first places and set new records and tied another in each of its wins — and still lost the meet. However, Northeast kept its pride intact by finishing second. The Tribe has not finished lower than second in the GSC meet since 1958.

McDonnell, the Irishman who was favored in the mile and three - mile, was declared ineligible because Southwestern has not received proper records from Emporia State in Kansas, the school he formerly attended. USL had 35 points in the trophy race prior to the removal of the cross country title, but still finished with 35 points after winning track. McDonnell won the individual cross country title.

Jongblood won the quarter by about five yards over Charles Beazley of USL after blasting well in front of the pack before reaching the 220 mark. His

USL WINS TRACK, ALL-SPORTS AGAIN

Bucs Shade Tigers In AAA Semifinals

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — West Jefferson put together a big inning and steady pitching by Barry Delger to down Neville, 4-2, in the third game of their best of three series with the district 1 - AAA runnerups here Saturday morning on the Bucs field.

The Bucs had to get the job done the hard way as they lost the opener 6-5 in Monroe Thursday, but bounced back to cop both games at home. The victory in the semi - finals put West Jefferson in the finals against another District 1-AAA team, Ruston, the winners of the district.

The series begins early in the week at West Jefferson since Ruston, which dropped Glen Oaks, the defending state champs from the race, is the host team. Ruston defeated Glen Oaks in a doubleheader in Baton Rouge Friday after losing 7-1 in the opening game at home.

A four - run outburst was all Delger needed to work with as he allowed only five hits and one walk while whiffing six. The big right hander had his fast ball really hopping on the hot morning.

The second inning was the beginning of the end for the Tigers as West Jefferson sent four runs across the plate. Bob Bourque opened the inning with a line single to center. Jim Barbier, attempting to sacrifice, had his roller delude pitcher Tom Brown and all hands were safe.

Cal Galiano moved both into scoring position with a bunt down the third base line. Shelly Waites, at this point, went in to run for Bourque. Rocky Paternostro worked a free pass to load the bases with Bucs.

Mike Bourdreaux, under the free substition rule, batted for Delger, walker and forced Waites home for the first run of the game. Frank Romano followed with a line drive, just out of reach of the second baseman, Art LaGrange, and Barbier with Paternostro close behind, scored.

Richie Wilson went safe as LaGrange dropped a double play ball. And this permitted Bourdreaux to cross the plate with the fourth run of the frame. For Delger this was more than enough.

The Tigers growled in the second as Mike Kilcoyne and Ryan Rogers put together back-to - back singles to center. Delger put a halt to this however, as he retired the next three hitters. From this point, Neville posed no threat to the big right-hander until the seventh.

Again Kilcoyne and Rogers singled to open the inning. However, this time Delger surrendered two runs before ending the frame and the game. With Kilcoyne and Rogers on base, the Tigers loaded them up when shortstop Wilson fumbled Keith Moncrief's ground ball.

Kilcoyne raced home when Tim Allen forced Moncrief at second. The Tigers got their second run as Allen was attempting to steal second and Romano let Barbier's throw get away, allowing Rogers to score. Delger put an end to this tight spot by striking out Osborne and forcing Don Smith to hit back to him for the final out.

Tigers Erupt In 9th To Drop BoSox, 10-8

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Freehan's three-run homer off John Wyatt powered a six-run ninth inning that sent the Detroit Tigers to their seventh straight victory, a 10-8 decision over Boston Saturday.

Wyatt, who hadn't allowed an earned run in nine previous relief appearances, got the Red Sox out of a jam in the seventh when the Tigers closed to within 5-4. But the ninth was a different story.

Wyatt started the inning by hitting Willie Horton with a pitch. Mickey Stanley ran for Horton and raced to third as Jim Northrup doubled. Freehan then lofted his sixth homer into the rightcenter field bullpen, putting Detroit ahead 7-5.

One out later, Dick Tracewski doubled and trotted home on a pinch-hit homer by pitcher Earl Wilson. Wyatt got the second out but then hit Dick McAuliffe, who scored on Al Kaline's double.

The Red Sox tried a rally of their own in the bottom of the ninth, but Dave Wickersham ended the threat after Tony Conigliaro tripled across two runs and scored on Rico Petrocelli's double.

Athletes' Emotions Mixed After End Of Conference Meet

By TOMMY POINDEXTER
World Sports Writer

"Ronnie Fountain is a tremendous competitor," said Southeastern speedster Andy Thiel, who ran a blistering 9.3 in the 100 yard dash of the Gulf States Conference meet here Saturday night.

Thiel said, "I knew it would take a fast time to beat Ronnie but I was surprised with my time even though it won't count as a record since it was wind aided."

"I hated that my career at Northeast had to end like this but my leg just wouldn't make it. It starting pulling in the 100 and finished ripping out in 220," Fountain said. Northeast coach Bob Groseclose added, "Ronnie did a remarkable job even with the injury and he's a guy with a lot of guts."

"I was disappointed that Southwestern's John McDonnell couldn't run. I think if he had been here to push me I might have ran 4:08 or better" was what Northwestern's Paul Trueman had to say after his mile victory.

Trueman came back to win the three - mile in record time and became one of three double winners in the meet.

Tribe long jumper Don Warren, who made a record leap of 24-8 on his second jump said, "I had a jump of 24-9 which I barely scratched on, but when I landed in the pit I ripped my pants."

After winning the 120 - high hurdles, in a record - setting 13.7 time the first of two events he would win, Roger Mann of Northeast said, "I wasn't satisfied with my time although I did get a good start. I hurdled badly for the first six hurdles before getting into a good pace."

Mann, a senior, said he was, "very proud," of freshman hurdler Richard Polk, who clocked a 14.0 for second place in the race. His time is the best in the nation so far this year for a frosh.

After stepping off a 52.2 to win the 440-yard intermediates and set arecord in the process, Mann said. "I just tried to keep a 15 stride pace between each hurdle so I wouldn't have to alternate legs." He added that changing legs on alternate jumps tends to throw him off balance as he goes to clear a hurdle.

Big Bill Jongbloed of McNeese said, "I was disappointed with my preformance here last week at the invitational meet and I wanted to win the race more than anything else in my life. I set a fast pace from the start and hoped that I could hold it."

Stewart Blue, last year's 440 winner who finished fourth in the conference meet said, "I just didn't have enough energy to keep up with the pack."

"I had a terrible night but that is just the way it goes sometime," were the words of Big Tim Hall of Louisiana Tech, who broke the discus record with a 169-2 spin.

Tribe Coach Bob Groseclose said, "The team performed very well and I am proud of everyone of them, they did their best."

Southwestern which copped the title for the third straight year, garnered only two first places to runnerup Northeast five. The Bulldogs copped the crown with shear team depth.

GIANTS EDGE ASTROS 4-3

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Willie Mays and Tom Haller clouted home runs for the second straight game Saturday as the San Francisco Giants downed the Houston Astros 4-3.

Haller's home run opened the bottom of the sixth and broke a tie created by a three-run Houston rally in the top of the inning.

Mays belted his fourth home run of the season and 546th of his career in the first inning, giving the Giants a 1-0 lead. Mays singled and scored one of two unearned runs for a 3-0 lead in the fourth.

The Astros chased starter Mike McCormick in the sixth as Ron Davis' home run, walks to Jim Landis and Jim Wynn and Chuck Harrison's single made it 3-2. Bob Aspromonte's single off reliever Frank Lanzy tied the game.

Lanzy, now 2-1, was the winner in relief, while Barry Latman, 1-1 took the loss after replacing Mike Cuellar, who struck out eight Giants in the first three innings and finished with nine in five innings.

Andretti Hikes Indy Records

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Marvelous Mario Andretti led a five-man assault on Indianapolis Motor Speedway's sprint records Saturday and for the second straight and for the second straight year earned the pole position for the 500-mile race May 30.

Mario and his Brawner-Ford will share the front row in the 33-car Memorial Day field with international racer Dan Gurney of Santa Ana, Calif., who averaged 167.224 in his own American Eagle-Ford, and Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., who did 166.559 in a Gerhardt-Ford.

Foyt, two-time Indianapolis winner who last year had a miserable season that included two wrecks, came back strongly with the fourth best speed of 166.289 in a Coyote from his Houston garage.

The Speedway never reveals attendance, but veteran observers said the crowd appeared to be the biggest ever for time trials and probably exceeded 200,000.

Parnelli Jones, another former 500 winner from Torrence, Calif., set an automatic record with the first qualification of a turbine car. He gave the big STP-Pratt & Whitney car a magnificent ride at 166.075.

Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., qualified an Indianapolis-built Mongoose with supercharged Offenhauser engine at 165.229 but was disappointed. He said the track was oily when he ran.

Graham Hill of England, the 1966 Indianapolis winner, did not attempt to qualify in Saturday's runs. He had been having handling troubles with his new Lotus-Ford and he came in after three warmup laps without signaling for a qualification attempt.

He still will have three chances to qualify in later sessions.

Jimmy Clark of Scotland, winner in 1965 and runner-up last year, qualified but was far back in 15th place at 163.213.

Four wrecks delayed the show, which will be followed by additiona, qualifications today and the following weekend, but nobody was hurt.

Bob Wente of St. Louis also got out of control but spun into the infield without hitting anything.

Most of the 25 qualifiers, who averaged 169.173 m.p.h., appeared to be safe from being dislodged in the remaining time trials. After the field of 33 is filled, a car can get in only by bettering the speed of the slowest in the lineup.

Jim O'Toole Pitches Chicago By Angels

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim O'Toole pitched a two-hitter Saturday as the Chicago White Sox edged California 1-0 on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Smoky Burgess in the 10th inning.

O'Toole, making his first appearance since April 30, gave up a second-inning single to Bill Skowron and didn't allow another hit until Rick Reichardt singled with one out in the 10th. O'Toole, 1-0, struck out 11 and walked only one.

Pete Ward led off the 10th with a double and Walt Williams ran for him. Minnie Rojas walked Ken Berry intentionally, and the White Sox loaded the bases when Skowron's throw to third on Jerry Adair's bunt was wide.

Rojas got Tom McCraw on a short fly, but Burgess batted for Ron Hansen and drove a fly deep to left field. Williams scored easily on the play, giving the White Sox their eight straight victory.

Skowron's single in the second inning came after Reichardt reached first on McCraw's error. O'Toole, however, struck out John Werhas and induced Orlando McFarlane to hit into a double play.

Cubs Trounce Dodgers, 6-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Adolfo Phillips drilled a double and a two-run homer, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Bob Hendley relieved Cub starter Ferguson Jenkins in the third inning and went on to gain the victory, though he needed help from Dick Radatz in the eighth.

Wes Parker doubled off Hendley in the fifth and scored on a single by Ron Hunt. Hundley gave up another run in the sixth on a pinch homer by Jim Campanis.

Phillips' doubled a triple by Don Kessinger and a double by Billy Williams produced two more runs in the fifth.

Griese Set For Coaches Game

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Purdue's Bob Griese has accepted an invitation to play for the East in the Coaches All-America Football Game July 8—giving the team the two most celebrated college quarterbacks of the 1966 season.

Previously, Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier of Florida accepted an invitation to play for the East.

Griese, runner-up to Spurrier in Heisman balloting, holds a dozen school and Big Ten conference records, mostly the result of his passing. In addition, last season he led the conference in scoring with 81 points.

During the 1966 season he averaged 619 yards a play, threw 12 touchdown passes. In his collegiate career he threw 28 touchdown passes.

Kansas City Trips Twins

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rookies Ramon Webster and Rick Monday provided the power and relief pitcher Paul Landblad choked off an eighth-inning Minnesota rally, pacing Kansas City to a 5-2 victory over the Twins Saturday.

Webster ripped a two-run double in the third inning, giving the A's a 4-1 lead.

Monday socked his fourth home run, with the bases empty in the first inning. Kansas City scored another run in the first on Jim Gosger's single.

The A's added an insurance run in the eighth on three singles and a force out.

Lindblad got Tony Oliva on a foul pop up for the second out, walked Harmon Killebrew intentionally to load the bases and then struck out rookie Rich Reese.

Kansas City starter Lew Krausse recorded his second victory against four defeats, holding the Twins to four hits in six innings. Killebrew's single in the fourth and sacrifice fly in the sixth scored Minnesota's runs.

Westminister Presbyterian romped to a 16-6 decision over Stone Avenue Methodist in a Church E League game Saturday night. Jack Kennedy hit a home run for the winners and Nappier and Wilhite homered for the losers. Stepherson and Tiggleman were the winning battery while Gerald and Clampit took the loss.

Tiant Sparks Cleveland, 3-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pitcher Luis Tiant rapped a double and run-scoring single but needed relief from Orlando Pena in the ninth inning as the Cleveland Indians trimmed Washington 3-1 Saturday.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Senators, who have dropped three in a row to Cleveland.

Tiant struck out nine and scattered four hits until the ninth, when Dick Nen led off with a homer. When Fred Valentine followed with a single, Pena replaced Tiant and checked the rally after filling the bases on Paul Casanova's single and a walk.

Tiant's single in the second inning scored Pedro Gonzalez, who had doubled off loser Pete Richert. Larry Brown hit his second homer in the fifth and Tiant followed with a double, but was stranded.

With Fountain resting in an ice pack, Northeast's chances of winning the mile relay looked slim. However, the Indian team of Fred Vogel, Bill Haley, Greg Falk and Jeff Rowden threw a score into the winning USL team. Stewart Blue led off for the Bulldogs with a 48.6 leg to put USL 10 - yards in front on the first exchange and they managed to keep that edge through the final exchange.

Rowden pulled even with USL anchor Ed Domingues on the backstrech of the final lap and attempted to pass him going into the curve, but couldn't.

Bobby Brown of Southeastern won the pole vault at 15 - feet. He missed three attempts at 15 - 6, flicking off the bar with his chest on his second leap and knocking it off going up on his first and third jumps.

In pre - meet ceremonies, Frank Rolufs of McNeese was introduced as the new president of the league with Gerald Blakeman of Nicholls as vice president of the league and Dr. Drayton Lewis of USL as secretary-treasurer.

He was picked by his peers for coaching both football and baseball teams to conference titles. Scotty Robinson of Tech was presented with the basketball Coach of the year award and Jimmy Mize of Tech and Bob Cole of Southwestern were named co - coach of the year in track.

Andretti Hikes Indy Records

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Marvelous Mario Andretti led a five-man assault on Indianapolis Motor Speedway's sprint records Saturday and for the second straight and for the second straight year earned the pole position for the 500-mile race May 30.

Mario and his Brawner-Ford will share the front row in the 33-car Memorial Day field with international racer Dan Gurney of Santa Ana, Calif., who averaged 167.224 in his own American Eagle-Ford, and Gordon Johncock, Hastings, Mich., who did 166.559 in a Gerhardt-Ford.

Foyt, two-time Indianapolis winner who last year had a miserable season that included two wrecks, came back strongly with the fourth best speed of 166.289 in a Coyote from his Houston garage.

The Speedway never reveals attendance, but veteran observers said the crowd appeared to be the biggest ever for time trials and probably exceeded 200,000.

Parnelli Jones, another former 500 winner from Torrence, Calif., set an automatic record with the first qualification of a turbine car. He gave the big STP-Pratt & Whitney car a magnificent ride at 166.075.

Lloyd Ruby, Wichita Falls, Tex., qualified an Indianapolis-built Mongoose with supercharged Offenhauser engine at 165.229 but was disappointed. He said the track was oily when he ran.

Graham Hill of England, the 1966 Indianapolis winner, did not attempt to qualify in Saturday's runs. He had been having handling troubles with his new Lotus-Ford and he came in after three warmup laps without signaling for a qualification attempt.

He still will have three chances to qualify in later sessions.

Jimmy Clark of Scotland, winner in 1965 and runner-up last year, qualified but was far back in 15th place at 163.213.

Four wrecks delayed the show, which will be followed by additional qualifications today and the following weekend, but nobody was hurt.

Bob Wente of St. Louis also got out of control but spun into the infield without hitting anything.

Most of the 25 qualifiers, who averaged 169.173 m.p.h., appeared to be safe from being dislodged in the remaining time trials. After the field of 33 is filled, a car can get in only by bettering the speed of the slowest in the lineup.

Kansas City Trips Twins

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Rookies Ramon Webster and Rick Monday provided the power and relief pitcher Paul Lindblad choked off an eighth-inning Minnesota rally, pacing Kansas City to a 5-2 victory over the Twins Saturday.

Webster ripped a two-run double in the third inning, giving the A's a 4-1 lead.

Monday socked his fourth home run, with the bases empty in the first inning. Kansas City scored another run in the first on Jim Gosger's single.

The A's added an insurance run in the eighth on three singles and a force out.

Lindblad got Tony Oliva on a foul pop up for the second out, walked Harmon Killebrew intentionally to load the bases and then struck out rookie Rich Reese.

Kansas City starter Lew Krausse recorded his second victory against four defeats, holding the Twins to four hits in six innings. Killebrew's single in the fourth and sacrifice fly in the sixth scored Minnesota's runs.

Jim O'Toole Pitches Chicago By Angels

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim O'Toole pitched a two-hitter Saturday as the Chicago White Sox edged California 1-0 on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Smoky Burgess in the 10th inning.

O'Toole, making his first appearance since April 30, gave up a second-inning single to Bill Skowron and didn't allow another hit until Rick Reichardt singled with one out in the 10th. O'Toole, 1-0, struck out 11 and walked only one.

Pete Ward led off the 10th with a double and Walt Williams ran for him. Minnie Rojas walked Ken Berry intentionally, and the White Sox loaded the bases when Skowron's throw to third on Jerry Adair's bunt was wide.

Rojas got Tom McCraw on a short fly, but Burgess batted for Ron Hansen and drove a fly deep to left field. Williams scored easily on the play, giving the White Sox their eight straight victory.

Skowron's single in the second inning came after Reichardt reached first on McCraw's error. O'Toole, however, struck out John Werhas and induced Orlando McFarlane to hit into a double play.

Cubs Trounce Dodgers, 6-3

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Adolfo Phillips drilled a double and a two-run homer, leading the Chicago Cubs to a 6-3 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

Bob Hendley relieved Cub starter Ferguson Jenkins in the third inning and went on to gain the victory, though he needed help from Dick Radatz in the eighth.

Wes Parker doubled off Hendley in the fifth and scored on a single by Ron Hunt. Hundley gave up another run in the sixth on a pinch homer by Jim Campanis.

Phillips' doubled a triple by Don Kessinger and a double by Billy Williams produced two more runs in the fifth.

Griese Set For Coaches Game

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Purdur's Bob Griese has accepted an invitation to play for the East in the Coaches All-America Football Game July 8—giving the team the two most celebrated college quarterbacks of the 1966 season.

Previously, Heisman Trophy winner Steve Spurrier of Florida accepted an invitation to play for the East.

Griese, runner-up to Spurrier in Heisman balloting, holds a dozen school and Big Ten conference records, mostly the result of his passing. In addition, last season he led the conference in scoring with 81 points.

During the 1966 season he averaged 619 yards a play, threw 12 touchdown passes. In his collegiate career he threw 28 touchdown passes.

It was the fourth straight loss for the Senators, who have dropped three in a row to Cleveland.

Tiant struck out nine and scattered four hits until the ninth, when Dick Nen led off with a homer. When Fred Valentine followed with a single, Pena replaced Tiant and checked the rally after filling the bases on Paul Casanova's single and a walk.

Tiant's single in the second inning scored Pedro Gonzalez, who had doubled off loser Pete Richert. Larry Brown hit his second homer in the fifth and Tiant followed with a double, but was stranded.

Callison Leads Phils Past Cincinnati, 3-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Callison's two-out, run-scoring single following an unsuccessful squeeze attempt in the eighth inning gave Philadelphia a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday. Callison's single, off reliever Ted Abernathy, drove in Tony Gonzalez after Gary Sutherland was cut down at the plate on Cookie Rojas' bunt.

Sutherland had led off the eighth with a double, moved to third on a ground out and remained there as pinch hitter Bill White walked. Pinch Runner Gonzalez reached second on the bunt and came around on Callison's single to left field.

The Phillies tied the game 2-2 in the seventh inning on a single by Callison and Jack Brandt's double. Don Lock accounted for the Phillies' first run in the sixth with a homer.

Pittsburgh Edges Atlanta In 10th, 6-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, kept alive in the ninth inning by Joe Toore's third-strike passed ball, edged Atlanta 6-5 Saturday on a run-scoring double by Donn Clendenon in the 10th.

Roberto Clemente led off the 10th with a single off Braves' reliever Phil Nickro and moved to second on a ground out before racing home on Clendenon's double off the left-center field wall.

Torre's passed ball on a third ninth and tie the score 5-5. Spriggs reached first on the misplay, then stole second and scored on Manny Mota's two-out single.

Felipe Alou's fifth straight hit — a one-out homer in the top of the ninth — had given the Braves a 5-4 edge.

The Pirates tied the score 4-4 in the eighth when Gene Alley, who had doubled, scored as Niekro threw wild to first after fielding Clendenon's infield hit.

The Braves took a 4-2 lead in the fifth when Rico Carty slapped a bases-loaded single for two runs.

Pittsburgh's Maury Wills narrowed the gap in the seventh by hammering an inside-the-park homer.

Callison Leads Phils Past Cincinnati, 3-2

CINCINNATI (AP) — Johnny Callison's two-out, run-scoring single following an unsuccessful squeeze attempt in the eighth inning gave Philadelphia a 3-2 victory over Cincinnati Saturday. Callison's single, off reliever Ted Abernathy, drove in Tony Gonzalez after Gary Sutherland was cut down at the plate on Cookie Rojas' bunt.

Sutherland had led off the eighth with a double, moved to third on a ground out and remained there as pinch hitter Bill White walked. Pinch Runner Gonzalez reached second on the bunt and came around on Callison's single to left field.

The Phillies tied the game 2-2 in the seventh inning on a single by Callison and Jack Brandt's double. Don Lock accounted for the Phillies' first run in the sixth with a homer.

Pittsburgh Edges Atlanta In 10th, 6-5

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates, kept alive in the ninth inning by Joe Toore's third-strike passed ball, edged Atlanta 6-5 Saturday on a run-scoring double by Donn Clendenon in the 10th.

Roberto Clemente led off the 10th with a single off Braves' reliever Phil Niekro and moved to second on a ground out before racing home on Clendenon's double off the left-center field wall.

Torre's passed ball on a third ninth and tie the score 5-5. Spriggs reached first on the misplay, then stole second and scored on Manny Mota's two-out single.

Felipe Alou's fifth straight hit — a one-out homer in the top of the ninth — had given the Braves a 5-4 edge.

The Pirates tied the score 4-4 in the eighth when Gene Alley, who had doubled, scored as Niekro threw wild to first after fielding Clendenon's infield hit.

The Braves took a 4-2 lead in the fifth when Rico Carty slapped a bases-loaded single for two runs.

Pittsburgh's Maury Wills narrowed the gap in the seventh by hammering an inside-the-park homer.

Flowers Paces Tennessee To SEC Crown

FLORIDA AND Tennessee got off to an even start in the second leg of the mile relay at the Southeastern Conference track meet in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday. The Volunteers, who won the event with a time of 3:14.0, went on to capture the league title for the fourth year in a row. (AP Wirephoto)

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee rode the winged feet of Richmond Flowers Jr. to its fourth straight Southeastern Conference track title Saturday, with the fleet sophomore winning two races and anchoring the Vols' record-cracking 440-yard relay team. Flowers, who had his sites set on the 1968 Olympics, took the 100-yard dash crown in 9.7 seconds and won the 120-yard high hurdles in 13.8 seconds, one-tenth slower than the record he set in the preliminaries.

Heavy rain and a head wind hampered the sprinters but the Vols' Carroll Thrift, Chick McGeehan and Gary Wagner teamed with Flowers to lower the 440-yard relay mark to 40.1 seconds, nine-tenths under the old standard.

Tennessee also got a record run from Larry Kelly, who claimed the 880-yard run crown in 1:48.5, almost three seconds under the old record.

Depth paid off for Tennessee, however, which easily turned back the Florida Gators, who went into the meet with ambitions to snap the Vols' string.

Flowers led a 1-2-3 finish in the high hurdles and 1-2 finish in the 100 and Norm Witek backed up Kelly's record run in the 880 with a second place berth for the Vols.

Tennessee, showing surprising strength in the springs and getting a 15-6 pole vault victory from Steve Owens, rolled up 74 points. Florida finished second with 57 and Louisiana State was third with 36. Auburn had 34½, Alabama 31, Mississippi State 11, Mississippi 9½ and Georgia 2. Vanderbilt and Kentucky did not score.

Mississippi State's little Don Hunt uncorked the fastest 2-mile run in the 35-year history of the league championships, pulling away from the field in a record 9:00.4, and the stubby junior also took the mile in 4:06.8, turning back a challenge from Frank Lagotic. David Adkins of Alabama repeated as champion in the 440-yard dash, winning in 47 seconds, and Florida's Scott Hager took the 440-yard hurdles crown in 52.2.

The 220-yard dash title went to Carl Hight of Louisiana State in 21.4, and the mile relay crown was captured by Tennessee in a slow 3:14.

Nicklaus Misses Birdie On 18 But Manages To Tie Knudson

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus scrambled in with a three-under-par 69 Saturday and tied George Knudson for the third round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus missed a five-foot birdie putt on No. 18 which would have given him sole possession of first place.

The Golden Bear had bogey trouble on the front nine and at one point was three strokes behind Knudson.

Knudson, the second round leader, carded a 70 over the wind-swept Lakewood Country Club.

Knudson, a 29-year-old Canadian, and Nicklaus had 54 hole scores of 207 — nine under par.

A stroke behind them at 208 was Bob Charles, the reed-slim former British Open Champion from New Zealand. The southpaw shotmaker had a third round 70.

Another stroke back was Frank Beard, the defending champion at 209. Tommy Bolt, who laughingly told writers he really never was terrible tempered, stood at 210 after a 68.

Also in contention were Earl Stewart, a 45-year-old club pro from Dallas, Tex., who won the national collegiate title in 1941 while attending Lousiana State and Gardner Dickinson, also a former LSU golf team member.

Stewart and Dickinson both were in at 211.

Stewart blazed in with a 67 while Dicknison, who shared the first round lead with Beard only to fall back Friday with a 74, had a third round 68.

Nicklaus, the Ohio strongboy, winner of only $14,000 in official money on the PGA national tour this year despite a victory in the Bing Crosby tourney — which doesn't count — boomed his drives far ahead of Knudson and Mason Rudolph his playing partners.

"I was so charged up today I flew the green on 15 with an eight iron from the same place I hit yesterday and was almost short," said Nicklaus.

Knudson took a double bogey six on the first hold, temporarily surrendering the lead to Nicklaus and Charles. Knudson put his drive on No. 1 in a fairway bunker, then blasted out to a trap beside the green. He was short coming out and then three-putted.

Beard, the defending champion here and winner of two rich tournaments in the past month, pointed out that his first three rounds — 68, 71, 70 — were the same as last year.

"But it's an omen, not a prediction," he quickly said, adding that "a 67 tomorrow could win it again."

Final Doubles Match Puts Maroons By Vols

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mississippi State climaxed a courageous comeback Saturday to nose out Tennessee for the Southeastern Conference tennis title by winning a head-to-head duel in the final doubles match of the event.

The State team of John Edmond and Rob Cadwallader outlasted the Vol duo of Leonard Scheuerman and Richard Dow 11-13, 6-4, 8-6 in a match that took almost three and a half hours to complete.

State, by winning, finished with 28 points to 26 for the defending champion Vols, who could have tied with a victory.

The team triumph was especially noteworthy for State. Edmond, top-seeded in No. 3 singles, was bumped out in a quarter finals match Thursday by Bob Ecuyer of LSU and Robert Brien, top-seeded in No. 1 singles, was upset Friday by Tennessee's Lenny Schloss.

State overcame a Vol lead of 24-23 after Friday's session by winning three singles finals and the key doubles match as well as a No. 2 doubles finals. LSU Rallies To Get SEC Golf Crown

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Lousiana State wiped out a five-stroke deficit and coasted to a 20-stroke victory over Florida in the 54-hole Southeastern Conference golf turnament Saturday.

The Tigers' four-man team picked up 13 strokes on Florida during the middle nine, then padded an eight-stroke lead going into the final nine by gaining another 12 on the Gators.

Two of LSU's pace setters, B. R. McLendon and Jimmy Day, tied for the individual championship with 4-under-par 212s at the end of 54 holes. McLendon then won his third straight title by defeating Day on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Tied for third in the individual competition was still another Tiger, Randy Wolff, who shared that spot with Georgia's Allen Miller, both with 1-over-par 217s.

The Tigers finished with a team total of 872, compared to 892 for Florida. Mississippi was third, five strokes behind the Gators, with Tennessee fourth at 914.

Alabama and Georgia tied for fifth at 916, followed by Auburn at 926, Mississippi State at 940, Kentucky at 941, and Vanderbilt at 1,005.

Cloninger To Be Out Sunday

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Atlanta Braves' pitcher Tony Cloninger, who has been under treatment for blurred vision, will be released from an Atlanta hospital Sunday and is expected to be back in uniform in two weeks.

A Braves' spokesman said Cloninger, hospitalized Wednesday, apparently will be completely recovered in a short time. Doctors now consider him out of danger, the spokesman said.

Although the difficulty with vision in the left eye never was diagnosed completely, the spokesman said, doctors think it was related to a virus which hit Cloninger two weeks ago.

Flowers Paces Tennessee To SEC Crown

FLORIDA AND Tennessee got off to an even start in the second leg of the mile relay at the Southeastern Conference track meet in Knoxville, Tenn., Saturday. The Volunteers, who won the event with a time of 3:14.0, went on to capture the league title for the fourth year in a row. (AP Wirephoto)

Nicklaus Misses Birdie On 18 But Manages To Tie Knudson

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Big Jack Nicklaus scrambled in with a three-under-par 69 Saturday and tied George Knudson for the third round lead in the $100,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus missed a five-foot birdie putt on No. 18 which would have given him sole possession of first place.

The Golden Bear had bogey trouble on the front nine and at one point was three strokes behind Knudson.

Knudson, the second round leader, carded a 70 over the wind-swept Lakewood Country Club.

Knudson, a 29-year-old Canadian, and Nicklaus had 54 hole scores of 207 — nine under par.

A stroke behind them at 208 was Bob Charles, the reed-slim former British Open Champion from New Zealand. The southpaw shotmaker had a third round 70.

Another stroke back was Frank Beard, the defending champion at 209. Tommy Bolt, who laughingly told writers he really never was terrible tempered, stood at 210 after a 68..

Also in contention were Earl Stewart, a 45-year-old club pro from Dallas, Tex., who won the national collegiate title in 1941 while attending Louisiana State and Gardner Dickinson, also a former LSU golf team member.

Stewart and Dickinson both were in at 211.

Stewart blazed in with a 67 while Dicknison, who shared the first round lead with Beard only to fall back Friday with a 74, had a third round 68.

Nicklaus, the Ohio strongboy, winner of only $14,000 in official money on the PGA national tour this year despite a victory in the Bing Crosby tourney — which doesn't count — boomed his drives far ahead of Knudson and Mason Rudolph his playing partners.

"I was so charged up today I flew the green on 15 with an eight iron from the same place I hit yesterday and was almost short," said Nicklaus.

Knudson took a double bogey six on the first hold, temporarily surrendering the lead to Nicklaus and Charles Knudson put his drive on No. 1 in a fairway bunker, then blasted out to a trap beside the green. He was short coming out and then three-putted.

Beard, the defending champion here and winner of two rich tournaments in the past month, pointed out that his first three rounds — 68, 71, 70 — were the same as last year.

"But it's an omen, not a prediction," he quickly said, adding that "a 67 tomorrow could win it again."

Final Doubles Match Puts Maroons By Vols

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Mississippi State climaxed a courageous comeback Saturday to nose out Tennessee for the Southeastern Conference tennis title by winning a head-to-head duel in the final doubles match of the event.

Tennessee picked up its points by winning No. 1 doubles as Schloss and Tom Mozur downed Florida's Armistead Neely and Steve Beeland, 6-2, 6-3, and Mozur won from Ecuyer in No. 3 singles.

LSU Rallies To Get SEC Golf Crown

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Defending champion Louisiana State wiped out a five - stroke deficit and coasted to a 20-stroke victory over Florida in the 54-hole Southeastern Conference golf turnament Saturday.

The Tigers' four - man team picked up 13 strokes on Florida during the middle nine, then padded an eight - stroke lead going into the final nine by gaining another 12 on the Gators.

Two of LSU's pace setters, B. R. McLendon and Jimmy Day, tied for the individual championship with 4-under-par 212s at the end of 54 holes. McLendon then won his third straight title by defeating Day on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Tied for third in the individual competition was still another Tiger, Randy Wolff, who shared that spot with Georgia's Allen Miller, both with 1-over-par 217s.

The Tigers finished with a team total of 872, compared to 892 for Florida. Mississippi was third, five strokes behind the Gators, with Tennessee fourth at 914.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Tennessee rode the winged feet of Richmond Flowers Jr. to its fourth straight Southeastern Conference track title Saturday, with the fleet sophomore winning two races and anchoring the Vols' record-cracking 440-yard relay team. Flowers, who had his sites set on the 1968 Olympics, took the 100-yard dash crown in 9.7 seconds and won the 120-yard high hurdles in 13.8 seconds, one-tenth slower than the record he set in the preliminaries.

Heavy rain and a head wind hampered the sprinters but the Vols' Carroll Thrift, Chick McGeehan and Gary Wagner teamed with Flowers to lower the 440-yard relay mark to 40.1 seconds, nine-tenths under the old standard.

Tennessee also got a record run from Larry Kelly, who claimed the 880-yard run crown in 1:48.5, almost three seconds under the old record.

Depth paid off for Tennessee, however, which easily turned back the Florida Gators, who went into the meet with ambitions to snap the Vols' string.

Flowers led a 1-2-3 finish in the high hurdles and 1-2 finish in the 100 and Norm Witek backed up Kelly's record run in the 880 with a second place berth for the Vols.

Tennessee, showing surprising strength in the springs and getting a 15-6 pole vault victory from Steve Owens, rolled up 74 points. Florida finished second with 57 and Louisiana State was third with 36. Auburn had 34½, Alabama 31, Mississippi State 11, Mississippi 9½ and Georgia 2. Vanderbilt and Kentucky did not score.

Mississippi State's little Don Hunt uncorked the fastest 2-mile run in the 35-year history of the league championships, pulling away from the field in a record 9:00.4, and the stubby junior also took the mile in 4:06.8, turning back a challenge from Frank Lagotic. David Adkins of Alabama repeated as champion in the 440-yard dash, winning in 47 seconds, and Florida's Scott Hager took the 440-yard hurdles crown in 52.2.

The 220-yard dash title went to Carl Hight of Louisiana State in 21.4, and the mile relay crown was captured by Tennessee in a slow 3:14.

Cloninger To Be Out Sunday

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Atlanta Braves' pitcher Tony Cloninger, who has been under treatment for blurred vision, will be released from an Atlanta hospital Sunday and is expected to be back in uniform in two weeks.

A Braves' spokesman said Cloninger, hospitalized Wednesday, apparently will be completely recovered in a short time. Doctors now consider him out of danger, the spokesman said.

Although the difficulty with vision in the left eye never was diagnosed completely, the spokesman said, doctors think it was related to a virus which hit Cloninger two weeks ago.

Warning On Boats

With Paul Martin

It's the season of the year when outdoor action gathers steam, particularly for boat owners engaged in any type of water sports. So, a warning needs to be made that the boating sportsman be able to comply with state boating laws before making his appearance on the water.

One hundred and eighty-seven cases were filed in April by state wildlife agents against violators of provisions of the boating act. This figure is enough to indicate the need for fair warning to boat operators that they measure up to required rules.

"The provisions of the boating act are being vigorously enforced," Dr. Leslie L. Glasgow, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, announced in urging motorboat operators to comply with the Louisiana boating laws.

"Overloading of boats is one of the major cases of accicents," Glasgow pointed out. "Sixty-six deaths resulted from boating accidents in Louisiana in 1966. Property damage amounted to nearly $300,000. The public is urged to use com- while afloat."

Each passenger in a boat is required to have a coast guard- mon sense and courtesy approved life preserver.

Boats powered by motors in excess of ten horsepower are required to be registered with the LWLFC. The registration is valid for three years, and the certificate must be kept aboard at all times. Assigned numbers are to be permanently attached to the boat and plainly visible on each side of the bow.

Any marine dealer can supply registration applications.

Boaters may obtain complete safety rquirements and boat regulations free of charge upon request to the U.S. Coast Guard, Custom House, New Orleans, La., or from any office of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission.

God's Great Outdoors

B. H. "Red" Fisher, member of the Fisherman's Hall of Fame and the Canadian Outdoor Writers' Association, has penned the poem, "God's Great Outdoors," being presented, suitable for framing (8x10), free of charge to any persons who will write to Bob Brewster, Public Relations Department, Kiekhaefer Corporation, Fun Du Lac, Wisconsin.

The poem reads:

There is a place on earth for us,
Where sparkling water pours
O'er rocks and sands of wilderness.
It's called God's great outdoors.
Here is the home of fighting fish,
Dens where the bruin snores,
Huge mountain crests where eagles seek
To share God's great outdoors.
Yes, here is where the wild game roam,
Where gypsy birdlife soars,
Where the sun, the wind, rain and snow
Meet in God's great outdoors.
Here's where the din of raging storms
Is hushed by tranquil shores,
Where life and death are next of kin
Mixed with God's great outdoors.
Here then, is where the ages passed
To open wide the doors,
Through which a growing horde of men
Seek out God's great outdoors.
Some come to play, some come to stay,
Escaping harried chores
Just living in the world we live,
Outside God's great great outdoors.
For here all men find peace of mind,
A refuge from the wars,
Equal place in the charts of life
Kept in God's great outdoors.
Now let us ponder here awhile
The wonder of all scores,
Kept by the mighty referee
Who runs God's great outdoors.
Man made the means to hasten time.
Man made polluted sores.
Man made the dust that seals the doom
Of this, God's great outdoors.
Man hewed away the wilderness.
Man raped it's wonderous stores.
Man stole the clearness of it's streams.
Man damned God's great outdoors.
Yet man is still bequeathed with time
To heed what he abhors,
So that his children yet to come
May grace God's great outdoors.

Step Ahead For Lake Providence

The East Carroll Parish Police Jury has taken a forward step in planning for the future of Lake Providence —the "lake" that is, with the town of the same name to reap benefits as well as the parish.

At a meeting the past week, the jury passed a resolution asking the Department of Public Works to construct a control structure on Baxter Bayou in order to regulate a pool of 90 feet (above sea level) for the lake.

The resolution asks the removal of the old dam and "cause the new dam to encompass as much additional watershed as possible."

The Outdoor Scoreboard

Rising waters and high winds were blamed for a lot of fruitless fishing trips the past few days. Here's some who knew the right time and places for payoffs:

Black Bayou Lake— ART and DORIS REID, 25 bass, largest 5½ pounds; ROBERT and MRS. DECELLE, speckled perch limits two straight days; "PUG" MILLS, 40 specks; W. A. and MRS. STEWART, Jonesboro, speck limits; STEVE JOINER, bream limits two days; bass limits for JOHNNY DANNA, largest 5½ pounds, JOHN KELLER, biggest 6 pounds; JOHN HAND, largest 6¼ pounds; HUGH MCPHERSON, largest 7½ pounds; BILL WATKINS, Springfield, Va., and T. R. TAYLOR, Sterlington, 176 specks in two trips, one by WATKINS hit two pounds, six ounces; W. L. HUSTED, 81 bream; ANDREW LOGWOOD, bream limit; HERBERT BREARD and WARREN VAUGHAN, 19 bass, one of 6 pounds.

Cheniere Lake — J. P. GOLSON, 90 bream.

Bussey Brake — JAMES and MRS. STANFIELD, Bastrop, 100 bream; O. W. STOVER, Crossett, Ark., 20 crappie; TOMMY and MRS. MILLER, El Dorado, combined limit of 30 bass; RUSSELL WHITE, West Monroe, six bass; JOHN JACKSON, Bastrop, 70 bream; LARRY NOLA, Monroe, 10 bass; MRS. JOE PATE and MRS. VERA CROWE, Bastrop, 20 crappie; W. R. FULLER and JAMES STEIN, El Dorado, bass limits.

Lake D'Arbonne — Bream catches included TEX TAYLOR and BEN FORD, Arcadia, 114; EARL and SAMMY MCGUIRE, Simsboro, 125; ROBERT ROAN, West Monroe, 96; DON QUINN, Arcadia, 76; J. V. SPENCER, Arcadia, 92; JOE FORNIA, Minden, 78;TOMMY whitlock, minden, 84; WARREN MCCULLOUGH and A. D. CATHEY, El Dorado, 80, with guide R. C. MOORE: MELVIN and MRS. V. STRETCH and TOMMY REEDER, Bernice, 45; DAN SMITH and son, Ilico, 80; ODELL THOMAS and son, Ruston, 50; HUEY PATE and JAMES TAYLOR, Tillie, 75; L. F. CLINE and F. M. BRANCH, Haynesville, 80; J. D. KELLY, Homer, and J. L. KELLY, Sherevport, 100; W. F. WELDON and son, Shreveport, 80; DERRELL EVERETT, Tyler, Tex., and NORRIS TRANTON, Commerce, Tex., 100. DR. S. A. TATUM, Homer, broke the bream monopoly, taking 11 bass and one walleye with R. C. MOORE, guide.

MRS. MORRIS COLEMAN, Lake Providence, and MRS. W. R. STEVENS, Monticello, reported big daily catches of white perch and catfish during several days' fishing at Chopard out of the Coleman Camp on Henderson Island. FREDDY FORTENBERRY and HOMER MILSTEAD JR., Lake Providence may not have caught a lot of fish with things rather slow in Lake Providence, but they're getting lots of experience, fishing nearly every evening after school. Soon they'll have all day with school so near "out."

Cheniere Lake — J. P. GOLSON, 90 bream; GEORGE TARLETON and B. D. STREET took 300 bream fly-fishing Saturday and Sunday. Tarleton returned with VICTOR ZAGONE JR. Wednesday and sacked 67 more in 2½ hours.

Preakness Race Next On Proud Clarion's Triple Crown Menu

BALTIMORE (AP) — The second round in the main bout for champion aspirants in the 3-year-old thoroughbred racing division next Saturday, the Preakness at Pimlico, will bring out doubting Thomases of the sneak punch thrown by Proud Clarion in the Kentucky Derby.

The Maryland fried chicken and crab cakes stop on the Triple Crown circuit is marked this time by more uncertainty than usual over the probable winner.

When Proud Clarion zoomed out of the mist to cop the Kentucky classic a week ago, the bettors at Churchill Downs had him only the 10th most likely to win in a field of 14. His $62.20 payoff was the third highest in the 93-year-old race.

Looking back, the upset by the bay colt from John Galbreath's Darby Dan Farm should not have been as shocking as it appeared. Reviewing a dozen preliminary races for the glamor class this year, only one colt has been in the winner's circle more than once when the stakes were high.

That was Frances A. Genter's In Reality winner of the Fountain of Youth and Florida Derby and second in the Flamingo. The Florida born son of Intentionally was held out of the Kentucky race.

So was Dr. Fager, another Florida native from the Tartan Stables, who beat Damascus in the Gotham at Aqueduct a month ago. The Derby favorite, Mrs. Edith W. Bancroft's Damascus, finished third at Louisville.

Trainer John Whiteley plans to give Damascus another chance in the Preakness, hoping to duplicate a performance by Tom Rolfe in 1965. In Reality has been at Pimlico awaiting the Preakness for a week.

The status of Dr. Fager will depend on his condition after racing Saturday in the Withers Mile. The same applies to G.E. Robb's Tumiga.

In addition to Damascus, Derby starters headed for the Preakness are Patrice Jacobs' fourth place Reason to Hail and Holiday Stables' fifth place Ask The Fare.

The syndicate which owns Barb's Delight, runner-up in the Derby after leading until only yards remained, will not try again in the Preakness. It would have been a $10,000 gamble to make the Maryland bred colt a supplementary eligible.

Trainer Eddie Neloy was convinced by Successor's sixth place finish at Louisville that the 2-year-old champ of 1966 is not up to repeating. Instead, he will challenge with Great Power from the same Wheatley string. Great Power won the Delaware Valley Stakes in New Jersey the same day as the Derby.

There is always a possibility that some other trainers encouraged by Proud Clarion's sudden rise to fame, and attracted by the gold and glory of the Preakness, will show up at the entry box Thursday morning.

But the starting field probably will not reach 10.

There are 140 eligibles for the 92nd running. It will cost $1,000 each to enter and start, but the rewards are great. First place will be worth in the neighborhood of $125,000 while second will receive $30,000, third $15,000 and fourth $7,500.

It will take less than two minutes for the winner to travel the 1 3-16 miles, starting at about 5:30 p.m., EDT. Columbia Broadcasting System will transmit on television in color and radio from 5 to 5:45 p.m. EDT.

Proud Clarion faces big odds getting a second leg up on the Triple Crown. There have been 83 times since 1877 that a 3-year-old could have swept the Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes. Only eight have succeeded.

Only 25 others have been able to win two of the three. The last was Kauai King who faltered in the 1966 Belmont after taking the Derby and Preakness.

Proud Clarion has been one of the most lightly raced 3-year-olds. He went to the races only three times last year, winning none. Before the Derby, he had won three of five starts, but the caliber is indicated by total earnings of $14,060.

But the son of Hail to Reason charged around the Derby course of 1¼ miles in 2:00 3-5 to collect $119,700. Only two other winners ever traveled faster.

Ouachita Honors Spring Athletes

Basketballer Mark Leath and pitcher Van Pardue were named most valuable players in basketball and baseball Saturday night at the annual Ouachita Parish High School spring sports banquet.

Basketball coach L. J. Fontenot also presented awards to Mike Calloway, free throw award; Phil Hill, defensive award; Mark Nelson, most improved; Pardue, captain award; Doyle Jinks, scholastic award and Robert Spicer, most unselfish award.

Northeast coach Bill Dotson was guest speaker for the banquet with Ouachita Parish Rep. Lawrence Gibbs serving as master of ceremonies.

Huge Crowd At Funeral

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Lorenzo Bandini, Italian racing driver who died Tuesday of injuries suffered last Sunday in the Grand Prix of Monte Carlo, was buried Saturday in a little cemetery on the outskirts of Milan.

More than 100,000 persons were in the funeral procession.

Mart Dips To First Loss In Five Weeks

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market stumbled last week to its first loss in five weeks after reaching a peak for the current recovery movement.

The averages reached their high point Monday after an almost uninterrupted advance since early April.

Then the momentum fizzled and brokers concluded the market was in a corrective reaction that was to be expected after its long climb.

The week's most significant economic developments came Friday, when the market fell to a sharp loss.

The Federal Reserve Board reported output of the nation's mines, mills and factories dropped slightly in April to its lowest level in 11 months. The board's index declined to 155.9 per cent of the 1957-59 average from 156.4 in March.

Consulting economists of the Business Council, made up of leading industrialists, forecast the federal deficit may soar to $18 billion in fiscal 1968 instead of the $8.1 billion foreseen by President Johnson.

In that case, they said, a tax surcharge would be desirable for both budgetary and antiinflationary reasons.

For the week the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 15.93 points to 890.03. The Associated Press 60-stock average last week declined 2.8 points to 327.8. Of 1,605 issues traded last week, 664 advanced and 827 declined.

Volume last week contracted to 52,382,110 shares from 54,714,380 the previous week.

The market reached its recovery peak Monday when the Dow Jones industrials rose to 909.63 and The Associated Press 60-stock average reached 331.8.

Long-term bond prices and short-term interest rates declined. New lows for the year were posted for all government securities due in 1980 or later.

Yields on new corporate issues rose, advancing from 5.72 to 5.78 per cent for some utilities.

'New Theory' Is Lashed By Sen. Ellender

World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Saturday said the restoration of the investment tax credit is an example of the "new economics" approach to the national economy by shifting policies to meet the changing economic demands.

Ellender said he did not subscribe to the new theory.

"In the first place," said Ellender in a prepared radio speech, "under this idea the national budget is a form of economic discipline is done away with almost entirely."

Under the new idea, he said, little attention is given to balancing the budget by requiring that income should match, or approach, expenditures.

Those who like to tinker with the economy almost on a month to month basis give this principle little importance, regardless of the fact that as we go deeper into the red every year, the cost of carrying the national debt becomes greater and greater," Ellender pointed out.

When policies get away from trying to make ends meet, he said, "We leave ourselves open to all sorts of economic theories which may not prove correct

"Economists of national reputation are usually found to be in disagreement about what action should be taken to solve any particular problem. When agreement can be obtained as to what should be done, another argument usually develops about when to do it."

He pointed to the investment tax credit for business as an example, which has been enacted, repealed and enacted again.

Ellender also said he hoped for some further legislation concerning the 1966 Presidential Campaign Fund Act, which was pigeon-holed for 1968 by an amendment to the investment credit bill.

Ellender supported fellow Louisianan Sen. Rusell B. Long in the six-week battle to save the election subsidy bill from repeal, but said he wouldn't wish to see the question opened up for further senate debate right now.

"The investment credit bill is an important piece of legislation for improving the national economy and individual firms and businessmen," he said. "It should be sent to the President as quickly as possible."

Another New Wilcox Field Is Expected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another new Wilcox oil sand field find may be near in Wilkinson County with production casing cemented at Woolf and Magee and Murphy Oil.

Ogden wildcat well located in the extreme southwestern part of the county has a depth of 8,910 feet with reports that casing will be set near bottom to evaluate commercial worth of several oil shows.

The area is fast developing into one of the most active wildcat areas in the state.

In the Goshen Springs area of Rankin, production tests are expected to get under way at a deep wildcat well with very little information being released.

Chevron has cemented five inch liner in its No. 1 Cox with the well at 17,044 feet. Numerous high pressure gas shows have been reported logged in the well while drilling was in progress with the nature of the gas not definitely known. The shows have all been in the Smackover Lime section that carried carbon dioxide gas in an abandoned wildcat in the vicinity of the current well.

Also in Rankin in the Pelahatchie Field, electrical log is reported to have been run in Shell and Love No. 1 Rhodes with details not available.

High pressure gas shows were reported at 17,017 feet with total depth about 17,179. The well has a string of seven-inch protection limits of the Tallahala Creek field.

In the Tallahala Creek field, two wells are drilling. Shell is below 16,500 feet in Cotton Valley at 15,500 feet. Shell is below 11,000 feet at the James No. 1 A 17,400 foot test.

In Clarke, Placid Oil is reported to be coring below 13,400 in its No. 1 Arledge, the third well in the recently found Nancy field. Pacid's No. 1 Menasco may be near official completion with the well flowing an unestimated amount of oil after perforations in the Smackover lime were made at 13,390 feet.

'New Theory' Is Lashed By Sen. Ellender

World Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., Saturday said the restoration of the investment tax credit is an example of the "new economics" approach to the national economy by shifting policies to meet the changing economic demands.

Ellender said he did not subscribe to the new theory.

"In the first place," said Ellender in a prepared radio speech, "under this idea the national budget is a form of economic discipline is done away with almost entirely."

Under the new idea, he said, little attention is given to balancing the budget by requiring that income should match, or approach, expenditures.

Those who like to tinker with the economy almost on a month to month basis give this principle little importance, regardless of the fact that as we go deeper into the red every year, the cost of carrying the national debt becomes greater and greater," Ellender pointed out.

When policies get away from trying to make ends meet, he said, "We leave ourselves open to all sorts of economic theories which may not prove correct.

"Economists of national reputation are usually found to be in disagreement about what action should be taken to solve any particular problem. When agreement can be obtained as to what should be done, another argument usually develops about when to do it."

He pointed to the investment tax credit for business as an example, which has been enacted, repealed and enacted again.

Ellender also said he hoped for some further legislation concerning the 1966 Presidential Campaign Fund Act, which was pigeon-holed for 1968 by an amendment to the investment credit bill.

Ellender supported fellow Louisianan Sen. Rusell B. Long in the six-week battle to save the election subsidy bill from repeal, but said he wouldn't wish to see the question opened up for further senate debate right now.

"The investment credit bill is an important piece of legislation for improving the national economy and individual firms and businessmen," he said. "It should be sent to the President as quickly as possible."

Another New Wilcox Field Is Expected

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Another new Wilcox oil sand field find may be near in Wilinson County with production casing cemented at Woolf and Magee and Murphy Oil.

Ogden wildcat well located in the extreme southwestern part of the county has a depth of 8,910 feet with reports that casing will be set near bottom to evaluate commercial worth of several oil shows.

The area is fast developing into one of the most active wildcat areas in the state.

In the Goshen Springs area of Rankin, production tests are expected to get under way at a deep wildcat well with very little information being released.

Chevron has cemented five inch liner in its No. 1 Cox with the well at 17,044 feet. Numerous high pressure gas shows have been reported logged in the well while drilling was in progress with the nature of the gas not definitely known. The shows have all been in the Smackover Lime section that carried carbon dioxide gas in an abandoned wildcat in the vicinity of the current well.

Also in Rankin in the Pelahatchie Field, electrical log is reported to have been run in Shell and Love No. 1 Rhodes with details not available.

High pressure gas shows were reported at 17,017 feet with total depth about 17,179. The well has a string of seven-inch protection limits of the Tallahala Creek field.

In the Tallahala Creek field, two wells are drilling. Shell is below 16,500 feet in Cotton Valley at 15,500 feet. Shell is below 11,000 feet at the James No. 1 A 17,400 foot test.

In Clarke, Placid Oil is reported to be coring below 13,400 in its No. 1 Arledge, the third well in the recently found Nancy field. Pacid's No. 1 Menasco may be near official completion with the well flowing an unestimated amount of oil after perforations in the Smackover lime were made at 13,390 feet.

MONROE'S "CLEANEST CITY" drive received a boost Saturday when 60 Northeast Louisiana State College students teamed up in a major effort to clean up litter. Over 30 members of the Kappa Alpha fraternity manned city trash trucks and, during a four-hour patrol, picked up trash throughout the city in preparation for the judging next Thursday to choose the "Cleanest City" in the Fifth District. Cooperating in this effort were girls of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, who served a "dinner on the ground" to hungry members of the "anti-litter patrol" after their return from the mission. The Zeta girls also recently aided the beautification campaign by distributing over 1,500 litter bags to automobiles throughout the NLSC campus. Weary Guard Quits Watch

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The National Guard pulled out its weary troops from Jackson State College Saturday after a peaceful night cooled off a riot atmosphere on the all-Negro campus.

"The situation at Jackson State has stabilized itself to a point where it is felt that local law enforcement agencies are able to control it," said State Adj. Gen. Walter Johnson.

Nearly 400 guardsmen had been called to the campus after student rioting Wednesday and Thursday, but the guard force dwindled considerably as peace was restored.

Calm prevailed on the campus Friday night and early Saturday as police and guardsmen stood by to prevent a recurrence of rioting that rocked the two previous nights.

Six persons were arrested for violating the 10 p.m. curfew Friday night. But when guardsmen moved in to enforce the curfew, there was no resistance.

Authorities had another factor working in their favor: Final examinations begin at Jackson State Monday. The semester will end in two weeks.

Brown was among the group of students. He was hit after the first volley had been fired and students had begun retreating.

The violence was touched off when a Negro policeman attempted to arrest a student motorist of speeding on Lynch street, the main thoroughfare through the campus. s

Charles Evers, Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, led a march to downtown Jackson Friday night to protest Brown's death.

Although a representative of the militant student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee had called for retaliation Friday, Evers urged the Negroes to "be sensible" as he spoke on the city hall steps.

He called for winning the battle by unifying and registering to vote rather than throwing rocks and sticks.

Jackson State officials and student leaders blamed the trouble on outsiders. Non - students were barred from the campus Friday.

Mrs. America From Kansas

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A brown-haired, 34-year-old mother of two from Shawnee Mission, Kan., was chosen Saturday night as Mrs. America, 1967.

Mrs. Marlene Davis Cochran, an amateur artist who also restores antique furniture, was crowned before 4,000 spectators in the 29th Annual Pageant at the Community Concourse Theater.

Runensup in order were Mrs. Maryland, Mrs. Charles Stephens; Mrs. Utah, Mrs. Dean W. Payne; Mrs. Oregon, Mrs. Dale Greene, and Mrs. New Hampshire, Mrs. Pauline Kendall.

The final judging climaxed 10 days of homemaking contests. The 1966 Mrs. America was Mrs. Charles Nouffer of Houston, Tex.

The new Mrs. America attended Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., and later majored in fashion illustration for three years at Kansas City Art Institute.

She and her husband, John, a self-employed attorney, were married June 12, 1955, in a Kansas church they had attended since childhood.

Her victory won her $20,000 in prizes and a one-month trip to South America, in addition to personal appearance fees.

New Orleans Stockholders' Meeting Site

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Stockholders and representatives will gather here May 19 for the opening session of the Middle South Utilities, Inc. stockholders meeting.

Gerald L. Andrus, president of the company, said a great percentage of the company's 34,000 stockholders are expected to be represented at the meeting.

Middle South Utilities, Inc., is the parent company of Arkansas Power & Light Co., Louisiana Power & Light Co., and Mississippi Power & Light Co., and New Orleans Public Service Inc.

The system companies provide electric service to more than one million customers in an 89,000-square-mile area within the three states. In addition, gas and transit services are provided in the City of New Orleans.

The company's 1966 annual report revealed the system plans to expend approximately $627 million for new equipment and facilities in the next four years. Included in the construction program are three major generating stations in New Orleans and the immediate vicinity, one in Mississippi and two in Arkansas.

The company also announced in April it plans to construct a nuclear-fired generating unit for operation in 1972.

MONROE'S "CLEANEST CITY" drive received a boost Saturday when 60 Northeast Louisiana State College students teamed up in a major effort to clean up litter. Over 30 members of the Kappa Alpha fraternity manned city trash trucks and, during a four-hour patrol, picked up trash throughout the city in preparation for the judging next Thursday to choose the "Cleanest City" in the Fifth District. Cooperating in this effort were girls of the Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, who served a "dinner on the ground" to hungry members of the "anti-litter patrol" after their return from the mission. The Zeta girls also recently aided the beautification campaign by distributing over 1,500 litter bags to automobiles throughout the NLSC campus. Weary Guard Quits Watch

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)— The National Guard pulled out its weary troops from Jackson State College Saturday after a peaceful night cooled off a riot atmosphere on the all-Negro campus.

"The situation at Jackson State has stabilized itself to a point where it is felt that local law enforcement agencies are able to control it," said State Adj. Gen. Walter Johnson.

Nearly 400 guardsmen had been called to the campus after student rioting Wednesday and Thursday, but the guard force dwindled considerably as peace was restored.

Calm prevailed on the campus Friday night and early Saturday as police and guardsmen stood by to prevent a recurrence of rioting that rocked the two previous nights.

Six persons were arrested for violating the 10 p.m. curfew Friday night. But when guardsmen moved in to enforce the curfew, there was no resistance.

Authorities had another factor working in their favor: Final examinations begin at Jackson State Monday. The semester will end in two weeks.

Brown was among the group of students. He was hit after the first volley had been fired and students had begun retreating.

The violence was touched off when a Negro policeman attempted to arrest a student motorist of speeding on Lynch street, the main thoroughfare through the campus. s

Charles Evers, Mississippi field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, led a march to downtown Jackson Friday night to protest Brown's death.

Although a representative of the militant student Non-Violent Coordinating Committee had called for retaliation Friday, Evers urged the Negroes to "be sensible" as he spoke on the city hall steps.

He called for winning the battle by unifying and registering to vote rather than throwing rocks and sticks.

Jackson State officials and student leaders blamed the trouble on outsiders. Non - students were barred from the campus Friday.

Recital Set By Faculty Trio Here

The Faculty Trio of Northeast Louisiana State College will present a recital Monday at 8 p.m. in Biedenharn Hall on campus.

Members of the trio are Daniel T. Fletcher, assistant professor of music, and Milton A. Ryan and Patrick L. Simpson, both instructors in music.

Fletcher joined the NLSC faculty in the fall of 1965. His bachelor's degree is from Stetson University in Floriday and his master's is from Indiana University, Bloomington. He has also done further advanced study at Indiana.

Ryan, who joined the faculty last fall, his bachelor's degrees from both Trinity University, San Antonio, Tex., and Julliard School of Music, New York, N.Y. His master's is from the University of Texas, Austin.

Simpson also came to Northeast last fall. He has both his bachelor's and master's degrees from North Texas State University, Denton, and has done further study at Indiana Univeristy and at the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis.

Mrs. America From Kansas

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—A brown-haired, 34-year-old mother of two from Shawnee Mission, Kan., was chosen Saturday night as Mrs. America, 1967.

Mrs. Marlene Davis Cochran, an amateur artist who also restores antique furniture, was crowned before 4,000 spectators in the 29th Annual Pageant at the Community Concourse Theater.

Runensup in order were Mrs. Maryland, Mrs. Charles Stephens; Mrs. Utah, Mrs. Dean W. Payne; Mrs. Oregon, Mrs. Dale Greene, and Mrs. New Hampshire, Mrs. Pauline Kendall.

The final judging climaxed 10 days of homemaking contests. The 1966 Mrs. America was Mrs. Charles Nouffer of Houston, Tex.

The new Mrs. America attended Bob Jones University in Greenville, S.C., and later majored in fashion illustration for three years at Kansas City Art Institute.

She and her husband, John, a self-employed attorney, were married June 12, 1955, in a Kansas church they had attended since childhood.

Her victory won her $20,000 in prizes and a one-month trip to South America, in addition to personal appearance fees.

New Orleans Stockholders' Meeting Site

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Stockholders and representatives will gather here May 19 for the opening session of the Middle South Utilities, Inc. stockholders meeting.

Gerald L. Andrus, president of the company, said a great percentage of the company's 34,000 stockholders are expected to be represented at the meeting.

Middle South Utilities, Inc., is the parent company of Arkansas Power & Light Co., Louisiana Power & Light Co., and Mississippi Power & Light Co., and New Orleans Public Service Inc.

The system companies provide electric service to more than one million customers in an 89,000-square-mile area within the three states. In addition, gas and transit services are provided in the City of New Orleans.

The company's 1966 annual report revealed the system plans to expend approximately $627 million for new equipment and facilities in the next four years. Included in the construction program are three major generating stations in New Orleans and the immediate vicinity, one in Mississippi and two in Arkansas.

The company also announced in April it plans to construct a nuclear-fired generating unit for operation in 1972.

Fast Track

In August it is hot on the south expressway, and the stream of cars starts at the interchange, winding bumper to bumper past the airport connector, the Carling plant, toward the raceway. During the season Atlanta International Raceway is a flag - streamed track filled with great activity. Advertisements in support of tires, petroleum products, and accessories are much in evidence and form a colorful backdrop for cars and people. The track, said to be one of the best on the NASCAR circuit, is well banked and drivable in almost any kind of weather. The big race, "Dixie 500," comes in August, and the miles long line of cars heading to the track gets off to an early start. By noon the new stands are packed.

Nowdays, everything is completely 1967. Modern conveniences — automatic timers, high fidelity sounding public address systems, the latest in safety equipment — a long way from the old days of the dirt jobs, are Fords, Mercurys, Plymouths, Dodges, a smattering of Chevrolets, and once in awhile, a Pontiac or Oldsmobile. But the track is dominated by Ford and Chrysler. Some of the racing teams are "factory backed." If not, they are "set up" by an owner or organization. Racing is big business, and what counts now is teamwork in the pits and quick action which might shave off a second here, a minute there. Drivers are very professional and look up a five hundred mile race as something involving considerably less hazard than a trip back to Peachtree street on the expressway. The driving fraternity is closely knit. Outsiders are accepted only after careful apprenticeship, a proven detemination to be a careful driver, and tremendous ability behind the wheel.

Just after noon, the starting line-up is announced. For several days prior to the race, drivers run time trial races to determine the all important starting positions. In the old days, you could have counted on Fast Freddy Lorenzen, Fireball Roberts, Junior Johnson, or A. J. Foyt in their Fords. Later on, Chrysler worked with the Petty Brothers, and young Richard would lead off in a powder blue Plymouth. Paul Goldsmith, Darrell Darringer, Little Joe Weatherly, Jim Hurtubise, Dan Gurney and Tiny Lund would be in the front ranks. Those were the times.

Now there is a whole new generation. Gone forever is Fireball, dead of burns received when he crashed into a North Carolina wall, and Little Joe Weatherly, a gentlemen driver, killed at Riverside, California. Others have retired and now own cars.

But some of the old ones are still around for the new season. Curtis Turner, Rex White, Richard Petty — the ones who remember dirt tracks on broiling summer afternoons, and cars held together by hope and desperation. A good mechanic-driver could "set up" his own car, and if he did a good job, and the car held together, he could drive it to several hundred dollars. Today, the talk deals in thousands, and the cars are polished, precision vehicles. Even though they are stock, they receive the same care, work and maintenance as the Formula One's you'd expect to see at Monza or Monte Carlo.

The cars swarm around the track in August, racing out the miles, hour after hour. Pit stops, tire changes, and unfortunates going behind the wall, part of the races, and soon, only a few of the starters are left. The checkered flag drops, and a bedraggled, tired and dusty car moves to winner's circle. There is always a pretty girl to kiss the oil stained, grease-grimed driver, almost like at Cannes, the Dutch Grand Prix, or Sebring.

There's a thrill in watching a stock race which somehow doesn't come at Indianapolis, on the Grand Prix circuit, or at Watkin's Glen. Perhaps it's because the stockers are brothers to old faithful in your garage or on a trip to the supermarket, the family car. There is a strange connection between you and the cars now headed into the far turn. One of the fleeing racers could be yours — you behind the wheel. It could be old faithful victorious, basking in the light of winner's glory! Whatever it is, it can be found this summer at Darlington, Atlanta, Daytona, Greensboro-High Point, Charlotte — on the fast track of the NASCAR circuit south.

WAC Notes Its Silver Anniversary

"You have a debt and a date — a debt to democracy, a date with destiny."

These words were heard on July 20, 1942 by the newly arrived members of the First Officer Candidate Class at Fort Des Moines, Iowa. They were spoken by Oveta Culp Hobby, the first Women's Army Corps Director.

She had earlier said: "May 14 is a date already written into the history books of tomorrow. Long established precedents of military tradition have given way to the pressing need. You are the first women to serve. Never forget it."

They never did, and neither did the 150,000 women who followed them into the wartime Corps. When finally the guns were silent, these women had served the cause of freedom all over the world.

Today marks the Silver Anniversary of the service and accomplishment of the U.S. Women's Army Corps.

The job of the WAC is to provide volunteer women in the U.S. Army. It consists of the Director, whose office is in the Pentagon, the WAC Center at Fort McClellan, Ala., and units and individuals assigned for duty within continental and overseas commands.

According to law, WAC strength may not exceed two per cent of the regular Army. Today there are nearly 10,000 WACS, about 850 officers and 9,000 enlisted members.

Today the director of WAC is Colonel Elizabeth P. Hoisington. The seventh director of WAC, she is the daughter and sister of Army colonels.

Colonel Hoisington has said, "Our enlisted women are not substitutes for male soldiers. They perform duties that support the mission of the organization to which they are assigned for duty. A WAC typist sits shoulder to shoulder with a male typist in the Pentagon, Vietnam or Fort Dix. They are members of the same Army team."

Yemeni Charge Poison Gas Raid

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — The royalist government in Yemen claimed Saturday that 75 persons died in a poison gas raid by Egyptian bombers Thursday.

A statement by Information Minister Mohammed Ben Ali Ibrahim, read over Mecca radio, said scores were injured and the death toll among the victims was rising.

The statement said the raid was carried out by eight Russian-built Ilyushin bombers on the town of Wahran. It said Wahran is 40 miles northeast of San'a, the capital. No such town appears on standard maps or in gazetteers.

Film Scheduled

A feature length motion picture, "In His Steps," based on a novel of the same name, will be shown 7 p.m. Saturday at the Free Methodist Church, corner of Lincoln and McGuire, West Monroe.

The film presentation, under the sponsorship of the Louisiana Conference of the Free Methodist Youth, will be a feature of a state - wide youth rally at the church. The event will be open to the public.

University Kicks Out 21 After Protest

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Twenty-one University of Southern Mississippi students have been expelled as a result of demonstrations Wednesday and Thursday night.

Dr. John Allen, university dean, said machinery is in motion "to take positive action" on student complaints.

The complaints included lack of adequate teachers, food and campus rules.

Allen said a student - faculty committee would discuss the complaints Sunday and subcommittees would work on problem areas next week.

"It is an urgent situation," Allen said.

Campus life was normal Friday night and Saturday with the only incident a fire on the back of a trash truck across from the campus.

Eight students remained in jail Saturday, including five who pleaded guilty to breach of peace charges and were sentenced to 22 days in jail and fined $50 each.

Thirteen others failed to enter a plea and bond was set at $1,000. Two of those arrested were non-students. Charges ranged from inciting a riot to destroying property.

HUD Advance

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Department and House and Urban Development announced Friday approval of a $27,000 advance to St. John the Baptist Parish, La., for planning recreational facilities.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

What Price Beauty?

Skin deep or not, beauty is precious to most people. Both men and women, as a rule, are acutely conscious of their physical attractiveness, or lack of it.

So it is not surprising that people hurt in accidents often seek damages not just for injury to their limbs but also for injury to their looks.

Should that kind of compensation be awarded at all? The law's answer is yes. Even though a scar is not disabling in the same way as a limp or an ache, disfigurement can be a real and serious handicap.

The biggest problem lies in deciding how much the damages should be. How do you put a price on the harm done by a scar?

The courts generally take into account both the characteristics of the victim and the characteristics of the scar itself. Thus, in particular cases, the following facts have lent weight to a damage claim:

1) that the victim was a girl ("scars on the face of a female are ordinarily regarded as more objectionable than on the face of a male");

2) that the victim had a job (as an actor) in which appearance mattered a great deal;

3) that the scar had an unpleasant side effect (distorted a young man's smile).

On the other hand, damages will be less if the scar can be mended by simple plastic surgery — or if it is in a place where it would not ordinarily be seen.

What if the mere display of a scar to the jury would be shocking or indecent? That could improperly inflame the emotions of the jury. Such a display may be forbidden, usually at the discretion of the trial judge.

However, in most cases, the judge will rely on the jurors to draw fair conclusions from what they see.

In one case, involving an injury to a young woman's knee, the defense attorney objected to an inspection by the jury. He noted that the plaintiff was young, charming, and beautiful — and that the jurors were all men.

But the court overruled his objection, commenting:

"She is entitled to resort to the same proofs that she might have resorted to if she had been aged, ugly, and repulsive."

Some 74 billion glass bottles and jars - more than any other type of rigid container - "go to market" each year.

U.S. Closes Ship Protest After Reject

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union quickly rejected Saturday a U.S. protest on the U.S.-Soviet destroyer collisions in the Sea of Japan.

The State Department then pronounced the incident closed.

The U.S. ambassador in Moscow, Llewellyn E. Thompson, gave the American protest to Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister V. S. Semenov.

A State Department spokesman said Semenov had given a reply blaming the collisions on the United States.

According to the American version, Soviet destroyers collided with the U.S. destroyer Walker on Wednesday and again Thursday because of dangerously close maneuvering despite warnings from the US. craft.

"We have made our position clear and consider the incident closed," the State Department spokesman said.

Friday, the State Department had sought to put the affair in a low key. It said then it had no evidence that the Kremlin was deliberately trying to worsen U.S.-Soviet relations by the naval encounters, nor were they related to the Vietnam war.

Moscow radio said on May 1 that the Walker and the other U.S. ships on naval exercises in the Sea of Japan had been carrying out provocative maneuvers which were dangerously close to Soviet ships.

Queen for a day

Today is Mother's Day

Pants Suit Threat To Hosiery Makers

By FLORENCE DE SANTIS

Just as the hosiery industry has been rejoicing in the fashion trend which has made stockings the biggest thing in years, a new threat looms to reduce hosiery to its old depressed state — the pants suit.

Pants suits are coming on strong in spring collections, and you don't wear tights for extra warmth, but these will not be needed in spring.

Only hope is that top designers are doing a number of knee-length pants suits and dresses for spring. These, of course, are worn with fancy hosiery. Stocking makers are crossing their fingers.

SHRIMP SAUCE

Ever add cooked shrimp to a garlic-butter sauce to serve over hot cooked spaghetti? If you use medium - size shrimp, cut them in half lengthwise so each half retains the shrimp shape.

MISS JO ANN GARNER'S engagement to Marshall Franklin Peacock, son of Mrs. Sadie Peacock of Forest and Baynon Peacock of Delhi, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Bradford Garner of Kilbourne. The wedding will be an event of June 24 at 4 p.m. in Kilbourne Baptist Church. Miss Garner was graduated from Kilbourne high school and attended Northeast Louisiana State College. Mr. Peacock was graduated from Forest high school and Northeast and is presently a member of the faculty at Forest high school.

MRS. JAMES MILTON POTEET

Candlelight Ceremony Unites Victoria Hair, James Poteet

First Methodist Church in Lake Providence, was scene of the ceremony which united in marriage Miss Victoria Wells Hair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Henry Hair and James Milton Poteet, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Hulin Poteet, all of Lake Providence, on Saturday, May 6.

On the altar was a mass arrangement of white gladioli and Fuji chrysanthemums, flanked by branched candelabra holding white tapers. Southern smilax garlanded the chancel rail and pews were marked by white satin bows.

Rev. Ned Stout performed the double ring ceremony following an organ prelude by David Tschabold, who also accompanied the vocalist, Lee S. Myers Jr.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore an original design gown of delustered satin fashioned on empire lines with boat neckline and long tapered sleeves, and highlighted by medallions of Chantilly lace. A Watteau train extended chapel length from the shoulders over the A-line skirt which was caught up in back with added fullness and was also embellished with lace. A coronet of seed pearls and lace held her full length veil of silk illusion. She carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis orchids.

Attending the bride were her sisters, Miss Laura Elizabeth Hair, maid of honor and Mrs. Bobby Joe Tullos, matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Mrs. Larry Bergman, sister of the groom and junior bridesmaid was Miss Caron Tullos, niece of the bride. Their dresses featured empire bodices of lace joined to sheath skirts of chiffon with watteau trains attached at the neckline by tiny fabric roses. Matching bows and veils formed their headdresses and their bouquets were of yellow cymbidium orchids.

Flower girl was Miss Pamela Glynn Tullos, niece of the bride, who wore a tent dress of white Chantilly lace and carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

Mr. Poteet served his son as best man. Groomsmen ushers were Emmit Kenney, Jonesville, Bobby Joe Tullos, Lake Providence, Shelby Kenny, Pasadena, Texas and Clifton Bunch Haygood, Vidalia. Ring bearer was Thomas Jeffrey Tullos.

For the occasion the bride's mother wore turquoise silk sheath and jacket ensemble and a pink orchid corsage. The groom's mother wore a green bonded lace sheath with white accessories and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony the bride's parents entertained with a reception at Lake Providence Country Club. Central decor for the bride's table was of yellow [illegible] chrysanthemums and gladioli. Mrs. Ernest Parra and Mrs. W. H. Parker served the tiered wedding cake which was embossed with yellow roses and presiding at the punch bowl was Mrs. N. J. Goat Jr., Ruston. Groom's cake was served by Mrs. Clyde Turner Jr., Baton Rouge and Mrs. Kendell Hearn, Ruston.

For travel when the couple left on a short wedding trip the bride was wearing a three piece [illegible] linen suit. They will be at home in Monroe where Mr. Poteet will continue his studies at Northeast Louisiana State College.

MRS. JERRY GLENN GATES

Jerry Glenn Gates, Bride To Make Home In England

A candlelight ceremony in the Chapel of First Methodist Church in West Monroe, on Saturday, May 6 at 7 p.m. united in marriage Miss Barbara Jean Sharp and Jerry Glenn Gates of West Monroe. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel F. Sharp, 113 Madison, and Mr. Gates is the son of Mrs. James E. Johnson, 103 School St., West Monroe and W. N. Gates, of Winnfield.

Wrought iron candelabra on either side of the altar held lighted tapers for a background setting for the double ring vows read by Rev. Kenneth McDowell. Miss Diane Hargrove was organist for the wedding.

Mr. Sharp gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor length sheath of white lace featuring long tapered sleeves and scoop neck, topped with a full length sleeveless cloak of white crepe which terminated in a chapel train. The bride carried a bouquet of a cymbidium orchid surrounded with white chrysanthemums with green centers, illusion and greenery.

A reception following the ceremony was held in the First National Bank of West Monroe. White stock and yellow pompons centered the reception table flanked by crystal candelabra. Mrs. Ed Justice was hostess and serving cake was Mrs. H. Michael Martin. Mrs. Richard Tullos presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Bill Green was at the guest book. Tea girls were Mrs. Ernie Hilton and Miss Roselyn Golson and assisting with the reception was Mrs. Joseph McElroy.

Bags of rose petal confetti were presented guests by Miss Diana Putch, Miss Elizabeth Putch and Philip Putch, nieces and nephew of the groom.

When the couple left for a wedding trip to Dauphine Island, Ala., the bride was wearing an aquamarine blue ensemble with feather hat, lizard accessories and the orchid from her bouquet. They are temporarily at home in West Monroe until their departure in the very near future for England to reside while Mr. Gates is employed there for an oil company.

THERE IS NOTHING startling or spectacular about the exterior design of this three-bedroom ranch, but it has a warm, gentle look, enhanced by the matching gables over the bedroom windows and garage, and the window boxes and planter.

Kitchen-Family Room-Dining Arrangement Highlights Plan

By ANDY LANG

An interesting kitchen-family room-dining arrangement highlights this comfortable, livable ranch. This area is two steps down from the center hall and the living room and is in a world of its own -- a world of housekeeping, informality and spacious living at the rear of the house.

A full study of this architect-designed House of the Week may be obtained by writing THE HOUSE OF THE WEEK, c/o the Monroe Morning World, Monroe, La., and enclosing 50 cents to cover cost of handling and mailing. Please specify House Plan G 88.

Especially striking is the peaked ceiling, with beams showing, and a long window wall at the back. Additional glamour is added by the greenhouse at the side of the kitchen and by the porch at the side of the dining room, the latter providing a place for outdoor dining in privacy. Sliding glass doors lead from the dining room to this side porch, with similar doors giving access to the rear planked deck from the family room and the kitchen.

CHEERFUL PLACE

This floor layout gives the lady of the house a cheerful place to work and a step-saving complex of appliances and counters. The dinette area at the window wall can be used for coffee - time comfort and still keep her in touch with the cooking zone. And she can check the progress of the flowers and plants in the adjacent greenhouse. Youngsters at study or play can use the family room and be out from under her feet while still under her eye. Even the outside deck becomes part of her domain, with all those windows and the glass doors. Architect Lester Cohen has designated one corner of the family room for the TV set and hi fi equipment.

The living room is at the front of the house, in an area all by itself and conducive to a more formal and sedate atmosphere than the sunken area behind it. It is well-proportioned for furniture placement and is unlikely to get messed up by ordinary household routine, since the center hall permits movement to the rear and to the bedroom wing at the right without crossing the living room. The planter outside the bay window lends an air of country charm when viewed from within. Down the two wide steps, the dining room can be glimpsed. While blending decor can bring these two rooms together somewhat, this arrangement caters to those who favor separate identities for each.

BATH, VANITORY

The master bedroom has its own bath, with a dressing room vanitory and stall shower. The second bathroom has the compact compartmentalized features of a wide vanitory at the front, and tub and toilet facilities behind a pocket door.

Including the two-car garage, but not the rear deck, the houses measures 71' 1' by 41'' 8'', with a livable area of 1600 square feet. Stone and vertical board is used for the exterior --wide-boarded at the living side and V - jointed at the garage side. The gables over the bedroom windows echo the gabled garage look and suggest the rear gable effect formed by the A - frame kitchen. It's a well-integrated traditional home, with modern overtones and that effective room arrangement at the rear.

FULL BASEMENT

Plans call for a full basement, with a railed stairway just off the kitchen. But a family wishing to build this house on a concrete slab could use a number of alternate ideas to provide additional space on the ground floor. One possibility, for example, would be to shorten the greenhouse at the far end to provide space for a door leading to a laundry-utility room behind the dining room. This extra room could thus have access to the outside without adding to the over - all dimensions of the house.

GRIMY NAILS

Ideally, gloves give hands and nails the best protection. However, some home improvement tasks require fingertip touch. If you can't wear gloves for certain chores, apply hand cream under fingernails before you tackle a task. You'll find that an emollient-action cream keeps out grease and wipes away after the job is done. To bleach away nail stains, apply crystal cream cuticle remover under nail tips and around cuticles, leave on for three minutes, then wash off. Stains will disappear quickly.

SECOND SKIN

There's nothing sissy about hand cream. It can help prevent roughness, chapping and irritation caused by commercial solvents, turpentine and paint removers. Before you begin a painting or refinishing job, give hands a soothing rubdown with a specialized hand cream. Three formulas are available — one for extra dry skin, one that's anti-detergent and one that's medicated. Used on the hands before a job, these creams not only protect, but also leave skin smooth and soothed.

Garden Center Notes

Seven Motifs Are Displayed

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center program was presented by The West Oak Garden Club of Monroe. The president of the club, Mrs. Norman Perry and five of the club's members made the seven lovely designs that would be excellent for today's home.

Mrs. Perry used bold materials for her design, modern in feeling, combining aspidestra foliage, for the vertical line, with two variegated red and white amaryllis in the lower part for basic interest. The container was a low, round ceramic fruit bowl, light tan in color. Water in the bowl made this a refreshing design. A crocheted green mat served as a base.

Mrs. Margaret Taichman made two designs. Her first one was created in a tall pale green bottle. Pedalanthus was used for the swirling diagonal line. Several cape jasmine, with foliage, were placed in the focal area accented with a few freesia blooms. The base was a water lily leaf, made from green plastic. The combination of materials were all pleasing, and lovely for the long, low coffee table.

LOQUAT BRANCHES

For her second design, Mrs. Taichman used loquat branches to create the overall massed design in a green compote container. The fruit of the loquat, orange in color, added interest and color to the design. For further color a grouping of orange straw flowers were used on the opposite side of the large design. One cerise colored bottle brush bloom was placed within the design as an eye catcher. The arrangement would be suitable for the large dining buffet.

Mrs. Linton Hughes made a very refreshing design using the pedalanthus for the oval pattern in a clear glass bowl with ruffled edges. Gardenias with foliage were placed low for focal balance. Water showing in the bowl added to the cooling effect. Lovely for the dining table.

Mrs. Dale Cronk made a design stressing rhythm. The musical cleft was made from glycernized eucalyptus, sprayed black, then placed in a tall stemmed glass, also sprayed with the black paint. This was a basic framework that could, be used with fresh or dried flowers whenever desired. Bright orange roses (floradora) were placed within the line creating a dramatic effect. Mrs. Cronk said she used this design on her piano.

Oriental influence was noted in the next design, morabana style, by Mrs. August Danti. The water-reflecting scene was made in a low black rectangular bowl. Nandina formed the little "tree" in the left, back side of the bowl. African violet blooms in shades of purple with a low cluster of the nandina foliage formed the secondary placement in the design. Rocks covered the holder. In the opposite corner a similar grouping of the plant material formed the earth line, smaller in size, with a hand-carved wooden frog perching low as an accessory. A woven straw mat served as a base.

The last design, made by Mrs. Leslie Clark, also oriental in feeling, featured crape myrtle as the main line in the nageire style, "thrown-in", or "over the cliff". The container was a bambo section placed on a small teakwood base. Colorful begonia foliage with the orange - red blooms formed the fillers, adding color to this lovely graceful design, placed on a woven straw mat. This design was made as "A Tribute to Myrtle Monroe".

Are you aware that Monroe is becoming a very clean and beautiful city? Thanks to all who are taking part in our "Keep Monroe Beautiful" drive. Have you planted crape myrtles yet? Remember it's meaning, as a symbol, "Make Your Region The Loveliest Ever". We do hope that our city will become known as a "City of Crape Myrtles". Also, we are all very anxious to have our city win the Louisiana Cleanest City Contest. It is up to each of us to make this a reality — Remember the goals:

(1) Uncover and develop Monroe's natural beauty by entering and working to win Louisiana's Cleanest City Contest.

(2) Clean and beautify the public and private property of Monroe.

(3) Make every city block a garden.

(4) Promote crape myrtles plantings and spread information on their proper selection, care and pruning.

(5) Educate the public to the existence of litter ordinances and stress their enforcement.

(6) Distribute and encourage the use of litter bags for cars and boats.

(7) Stress the ideals of civic beauty and the character building qualities of cleanliness to the youth of Monroe.

(8) Erect bird sanctuary markers at the entrances of the city.

(9) Interest all organizations and citizens in the development and winning of the contest to make Moroe Louisiana's Cleanest City.

Plant Now For Summer

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to plant summer flowering bulbs. Crinums, montbretias, galtonias, antholyza, calla-lilies, elephant's ear, crino-donnas, eucomis, habranthus, several kinds of lilies, Peruvian daffodils . . . all these and several more can be planted now for summer bloom.

Seed stores carry the big crinum bulbs these days, and you may find the tiny montbretia corms and the hyacinth like bulbs of galtonias there with those of Peruvian daffodils. Formosa lilies, planted now, will bloom before the summer is done. So will regal lilies. You may have to look in the catalogues of bulbs to find the others mentioned above, but they are well worth the trouble.

Remember that crinums are enormous for the most part and that they need a hole big enough for a shrub with one or two bushels of rich dirt for their occupancy. If such a thing as old manure can be secured to go a foot below the bulb, the results will amaze you. Crinum foliage is as effective as the flowers. As a contrast to shrubs and in front of them, crinums will brighten up the landscape of shrubbery in summer. Some crinums are a bit messy and will need the dead flowers snipped off occasionally, but a big mass of these sub-tropical flowers is stunning to say the least.

Just the opposite of crinums are the little gladiolus like montbretias. They have wiry stems and flat flowers in shades of yellow, orange and even brownish red. They are effective for their light green foliage alone in the summer garden. This shade of green is something not to be found in any other summer flowering plants that I know of. When the graceful spikes of flowers are in bloom, they seem to combine well with all the summer annuals and perennials.

DEEP PLANTING

Be sure to plant montbretias four to six inches deep in spite of their small size. Some kinds make runners from the corms and soon establish a patch in the garden, but 10 or a dozen together will make a beautiful clump. The Earlham hybrids are works of art and fine for cutting because they face one way and last long in water.

Peruvian daffodils need to be taken in and stored or mulched very deeply in winter. They must not get much below 60 in storage or the flowering bud will die, and you will have foliage but no flowers in summer. Soak the bulbs overnight before you plant them in rich soil.

Plant galtonias in groups of a dozen at the back of borders, and they will brighten the garden with tall spikes of white in July and August. Like the interesting green-and-brown pineapple lily (Eucomis), the galtonias are from South Africa. So is anthelyza, a graceful spike of flame with gladiolus foliage.

Special Day For Mothers

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Today is Mother's Day and the following is dedicated to all Mothers who read my column.

Though another may have more money, beauty, brains than you - yet when it comes to the rarer spiritual values such as charity, self - sacrifice, honor, nobility of heart, you have an equal chance with everyone to be the most beloved and honored of all mothers.

GARDENING

Spray cape jasmine with summer Oil Emulsion, Malathion or Cygon to control white fly.

There are ever so many annuals that may be used in containers on the patio and terrace to give just that right color. Some you may consider are: Dusty Miller, Periwinkle, Geranium, Sweet Alyssum, dwarf Magnolia and Petunia.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have not received a copy of the Monthly Calendar of Landscape Gardening in Ouachita Parish, call your Agricultural Extension Service office at 704 Cypress for a copy.

OVERWEIGHT

If you, Mrs. Overweight, budget your calorie expense account, you will be in the pink as far as health. Check your daily meals to see if you have the basic four food groups included, especially protein rich foods, milk, cheese, meat, poultry, fish and eggs.

If you "nibble" between meals, be cautious in choosing foods for snacktime. Crisp raw vegetables, like celery, radishes and carrots are wise choices because they are low in calories. Strips of lean meat are good, too. Remember to keep a record of those "extra nibbles" as they add up in total number of calories eaten. Before you go to market, if you are hungry, drink a glass of milk or fruit juice. This will help you to leave those "extras" loaded with calories on the shelf.

You recall last week I gave reasons for backing or underlining garments. Now, let's apply the backing or underlining. After cutting out a garment, remove pattern pieces from sections to be backed before transferring any markings. Cut backing or underlining from same pattern pieces and transfer all pattern markings to the right side of the backing or underlining sections.

Place the unmarked side of backing sections to wrong side of corresponding outer sections, matching edges, smoothing fabric out flat and pin together. Place on machine and staystitch together one - half inch from all edges except neck. Use 5/8 - inch seam at neck. If there are darts, machine baste backing and fashion fabric together along center. Then stitch darts. The basting holds fabric grainline perfect. Construct garment as usual, handling backing and outer fabric as one throughout the construction process.

In hemming catch to backing only, except at seams — then catch to seams as this helps to hold hem in place. Hemming only to backing gives better appearance at hemline.

DID YOU KNOW

Fermentation, that took fifteen hours with bacterial cultures to produce buttermilk, now can be accomplished minutes by simply adding chemical materials. Sauer cottage cheese, and v owe their existence to f tation.

One possibility, for example, would be to shorten the greenhouse at the far end to provide space for a door leading to a laundry-utility room behind the dining room. This extra room could thus have access to the outside without adding to the over - all dimensions of the house.

GRIMY NAILS

Ideally, gloves give hands and nails the best protection. However, some home improvement tasks require fingertip touch. If you can't wear gloves for certain chores, apply hand cream under fingernails before you tackle a task. You'll find that an emollient-action cream keeps out grease and wipes away after the job is done. To bleach away nail stains, apply crystal cream cuticle remover under nail tips and around cuticles, leave on for three minutes, then wash off. Stains will disappear quickly.

SECOND SKIN

There's nothing sissy about hand cream. It can help prevent roughness, chapping and irritation caused by commercial solvents, turpentine and paint removers. Before you begin a painting or refinishing job, give hands a soothing rubdown with a specialized hand cream. Three formulas are available — one for extra dry skin, one that's anti-detergent and one that's medicated. Used on the hands before a job, these creams not only protect, but also leave skin smooth and soothed.

Seven Motifs Are Displayed

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Fifth District Garden Center program was presented by The West Oak Garden Club of Monroe. The president of the club, Mrs. Norman Perry and five of the club's members made the seven lovely designs that would be excellent for today's home.

Mrs. Perry used bold materials for her design, modern in feeling, combining aspidestra foliage, for the vertical line, with two variegated red and white amaryllis in the lower part for basic interest. The container was a low, round ceramic fruit bowl, light tan in color. Water in the bowl made this a refreshing design. A crocheted green mat served as a base.

Mrs. Margaret Taichman made two designs. Her first one was created in a tall pale green bottle. Pedalanthus was used for the swirling diagonal line. Several cape jasmine, with foliage, were placed in the focal area accented with a few freesia blooms. The base was a water lily leaf, made from green plastic. The combination of materials were all pleasing, and lovely for the long, low coffee table.

LOQUAT BRANCHES

For her second design, Mrs. Taichman used loquat branches to create the overall massed design in a green compote container. The fruit of the loquat, orange in color, added interest and color to the design. For further color a grouping of orange straw flowers were used on the opposite side of the large design. One cerise colored bottle brush bloom was placed within the design as an eye catcher. The arrangement would be suitable for the large dining buffet.

Mrs. Linton Hughes made a very refreshing design using the pedalanthus for the oval pattern in a clear glass bowl with ruffled edges. Gardenias with foliage were placed low for focal balance. Water showing in the bowl added to the cooling effect. Lovely for the dining table.

Mrs. Dale Cronk made a design stressing rhythm. The musical cleft was made from glycernized eucalyptus, sprayed black, then placed in a tall stemmed glass, also sprayed with the black paint. This was a basic framework that could, be used with fresh or dried flowers whenever desired. Bright orange roses (floradora) were placed within the line creating a dramatic effect. Mrs. Cronk said she used this design on her piano.

Oriental influence was noted in the next design, morabana style, by Mrs. August Danti. The water-reflecting scene was made in a low black rectangular bowl. Nandina formed the little "tree" in the left, back side of the bowl. African violet blooms in shades of purple with a low cluster of the nandina foliage formed the secondary placement in the design. Rocks covered the holder. In the opposite corner a similar grouping of the plant material formed the earth line, smaller in size, with a hand-carved wooden frog perching low as an accessory. A woven straw mat served as a base.

The last design, made by Mrs. Leslie Clark, also oriental in feeling, featured crape myrtle as the main line in the nageire style, "thrown-in", or "over the cliff". The container was a bambo section placed on a small teakwood base. Colorful begonia foliage with the orange - red blooms formed the fillers, adding color to this lovely graceful design, placed on a woven straw mat. This design was made as "A Tribute to Myrtle Monroe".

Are you aware that Monroe is becoming a very clean and beautiful city? Thanks to all who are taking part in our "Keep Monroe Beautiful" drive. Have you planted crape myrtles yet? Remember it's meaning, as a symbol, "Make Your Region The Loveliest Ever". We do hope that our city will become known as a "City of Crape Myrtles". Also, we are all very anxious to have our city win the Louisiana Cleanest City Contest. It is up to each of us to make this a reality — Remember the goals:

(1) Uncover and develop Monroe's natural beauty by entering and working to win Louisiana's Cleanest City Contest.

(2) Clean and beautify the public and private property of Monroe.

(3) Make every city block a garden.

(4) Promote crape myrtles plantings and spread information on their proper selection, care and pruning.

(5) Educate the public to the existence of litter ordinances and stress their enforcement.

(6) Distribute and encourage the use of litter bags for cars and boats.

(7) Stress the ideals of civic beauty and the character building qualities of cleanliness to the youth of Monroe.

(9) Interest all organizations and citizens in the development and winning of the contest to make Moroe Louisiana's Cleanest City

Plant Now For Summer

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Now is the time to plant summer flowering bulbs. Crinums, montbretias, galtonias, antholyza, calla-lilies, elephant's ear, crino-donnas, eucomis, habranthus, several kinds of lilies, Peruvian daffodils . . . all these and several more can be planted now for summer bloom.

Seed stores carry the big crinum bulbs these days, and you may find the tiny montbretia corms and the hyacinth like bulbs of galtonias there with those of Peruvian daffodils. Formosa lilies, planted now, will bloom before the summer is done. So will regal lilies. You may have to look in the catalogues of bulbs to find the others mentioned above, but they are well worth the trouble.

Remember that crinums are enormous for the most part and that they need a hole big enough for a shrub with one or two bushels of rich dirt for their occupancy. If such a thing as old manure can be secured to go a foot below the bulb, the results will amaze you. Crinum foliage is as effective as the flowers. As a contrast to shrubs and in front of them, crinums will brighten up the landscape of shrubbery in summer. Some crinums are a bit messy and will need the dead flowers snipped off occasionally, but a big mass of these sub-tropical flowers is stunning to say the least.

Just the opposite of crinums are the little gladiolus like montbretias. They have wiry stems and flat flowers in shades of yellow, orange and even brownish red. They are effective for their light green foliage alone in the summer garden. This shade of green is something not to be found in any other summer flowering plants that I know of. When the graceful spikes of flowers are in bloom, they seem to combine well with all the summer annuals and perennials.

DEEP PLANTING

Be sure to plant montbretias four to six inches deep in spite of their small size. Some kinds make runners from the corms and soon establish a patch in the garden, but 10 or a dozen together will make a beautiful clump. The Earlham hybrids are works of art and fine for cutting because they face one way and last long in water.

Peruvian daffodils need to be taken in and stored or mulched very deeply in winter. They must not get much below 60 in storage or the flowering bud will die, and you will have foliage but no flowers in summer. Soak the bulbs overnight before you plant them in rich soil.

Plant galtonias in groups of a dozen at the back of borders, and they will brighten the garden with tall spikes of white in July and August. Like the interesting green-and-brown pineapple-lily (Eucomis), the galtonias are from South Africa. So is antholyza, a graceful spike of flame with gladiolus foliage.

Special Day For Mothers

By AUDREY H. DAWSON

Today is Mother's Day and the following is dedicated to all Mothers who read my column.

Though another may have more money, beauty, brains than you - yet when it comes to the rarer spiritual values such as charity, self - sacrifice, honor, nobility of heart, you have an equal chance with everyone to be the most beloved and honored of all mothers.

GARDENING

Spray cape jasmine with summer Oil Emulsion, Malathion or Cygon to control white fly.

One of the most common pests of daylillies are plant lice — so to control these, Mrs. Gardener, use Cygon, Malathion or Disyston.

There are ever so many annuals that may be used in containers on the patio and terrace to give just that right color. Some you may consider are: Dusty Miller, Periwinkle, Geranium, Sweet Alyssum, dwarf Magnolia and Petunia.

After Violets have bloomed it's time to separate them.

Remember annuals will bloom longer if old flowers are removed.

If you, Mrs. Gardener, have not received a copy of the Monthly Calendar of Landscape Gardening in Ouachita Parish, call your Agricultural Extension Service office at 704 Cypress for a copy.

OVERWEIGHT

If you, Mrs. Overweight, budget your calorie expense account, you will be in the pink as far as health. Check your daily meals to see if you have the basic four food groups included, especially protein rich foods, milk, cheese, meat, poultry, fish and eggs.

If you "nibble" between meals, be cautious in choosing foods for snacktime. Crisp raw vegetables, like celery, radishes and carrots are wise choices because they are low in calories. Strips of lean meat are good, too. Remember to keep a record of those "extra nibbles" as they add up in total number of calories eaten. Before you go to market, if you are hungry, drink a glass of milk or fruit juice. This will help you to leave those "extras" loaded with calories on the shelf.

You recall last week I gave reasons for backing or underlining garments. Now, let's apply the backing or underlining. After cutting out a garment, remove pattern pieces from sections to be backed before transferring any markings. Cut backing or underlining from same pattern pieces and transfer all pattern markings to the right side of the backing or underlining sections.

Place the unmarked side of backing sections to wrong side of corresponding outer sections, matching edges, smoothing fabric out flat and pin together. Place on machine and staystitch together one - half inch from all edges except neck. Use 5/8 - inch seam at neck If there are darts, machine baste backing and fashion fabric together along center. Then stitch darts. The basting holds fabric grainline perfect. Construct garment as usual, handling backing and outer fabric as one throughout the construction process.

In hemming catch to backing only, except at seams — then catch to seams as this helps to hold hem in place. Hemming only to backing gives better appearance at hemline.

DID YOU KNOW

Fermentation, that took fifteen hours with bacterial cultures to produce buttermilk, now can be accomplished in 30 minutes by simply adding edible chemical materials. Sauerkraut, cottage cheese, and vinegar owe their existence to fermentation.

Radio Voice Of America Stamp Topic

By SYD KRONISH

There is an old adage that says "actions speak louder than words." This theory has been modified by the Voice of America beamed via radio around the world. Its words reach remote places where actions cannot be seen.

To honor the 25th anniversary of the United States Information Agency's radio branch, a new 5-cent commemorative stamp will be issued Aug. 1. This date also marks the 14th anniversary of the establishment of USIA as a separate government agency.

Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien said: "During the past 25 years, who can count the millions whose lives were altered, whose views of America were revised, by these constant waves of truth reaching them through the Voice of America."

VOA broadcasts some 800 hours a week, about half of these programs being beamed to Communist nations. John W. Chancellor directs the VOA.

The new vertical stamp is printed in red, blue and black on white paper. It depicts sound waves coming from a radio transmission tower.

There's A Church Home For You in the Twin Cities...

Anyone desiring to know the location of a church of any denomination in the Twin Cities and the time of its Sunday services may call The Morning World at 323-2070, 323-3660, 323-0501 and ask for the church service directory. We'll be glad to supply you the information.

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Millions of Christians throughout the world will celebrate today the Festival of Pentecost, otherwise known as "the Birthday of the Church."

Pentecost commemorates the event described in the 2nd chapter of the book of Acts, when the disciples were filled with "power from on high" to go forth boldly and proclaim the Gospel.

The invisible but powerfully-felt presence which came into their midst that day has ever since been known in the church as "the Holy Spirit."

In a message that will be read today from thousands of pulpits, the seven presidents of the World Council of Churches affirm that the Holy Spirit is still at work in the church.

"We are very sure that we can discern the prompting and power of the Holy Spirit in the present searching of mind and conscience among God's people," their joint statement says.

"More churches are asking themselves more of the hard questions. More are alert to the times. More are uncomfortable with the facts about rich and poor nations. More are learning to distinguish between national interests and God's will for the whole world."

The United Church of Christ, which has been waging a campaign for fair treatment of Negroes in radio-tv news broadcasts and public affairs programs, is now tackling job discrimination in broadcasting.

In a petition filed with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the big Protestant denomination has proposed that "all broadcast licensees be required to furnish satisfactory evidence at least annually that they do not discriminate in employment practices on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin."

"Discrimination in the employment of personnel who appear before television cameras or who otherwise participate in radio and television programming, sets a conspicuous public example of unfairness," the petition asserts. "Such discrimination therefore tends to defeat national policy."

Major protestant, Catholic and Jewish organizations have thrown interfaith support behind legislation, pending in the U.S. House of Representatives, to give farm workers the same collective bargaining rights accorded to industrial workers by the national labor relations act.

Rabbi Richard G. Hirsch, director of the Religious Action Center of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, told a House Labor Subcommittee that the plight of migrant and domestic farm laborers has long been a concern of religious groups. They are the Americans "least able to protect themselves," he said, and they "have been afforded the least protection by society."

The fate of a proposed merger between two major Protestant denominations will be decided within the next six weeks.

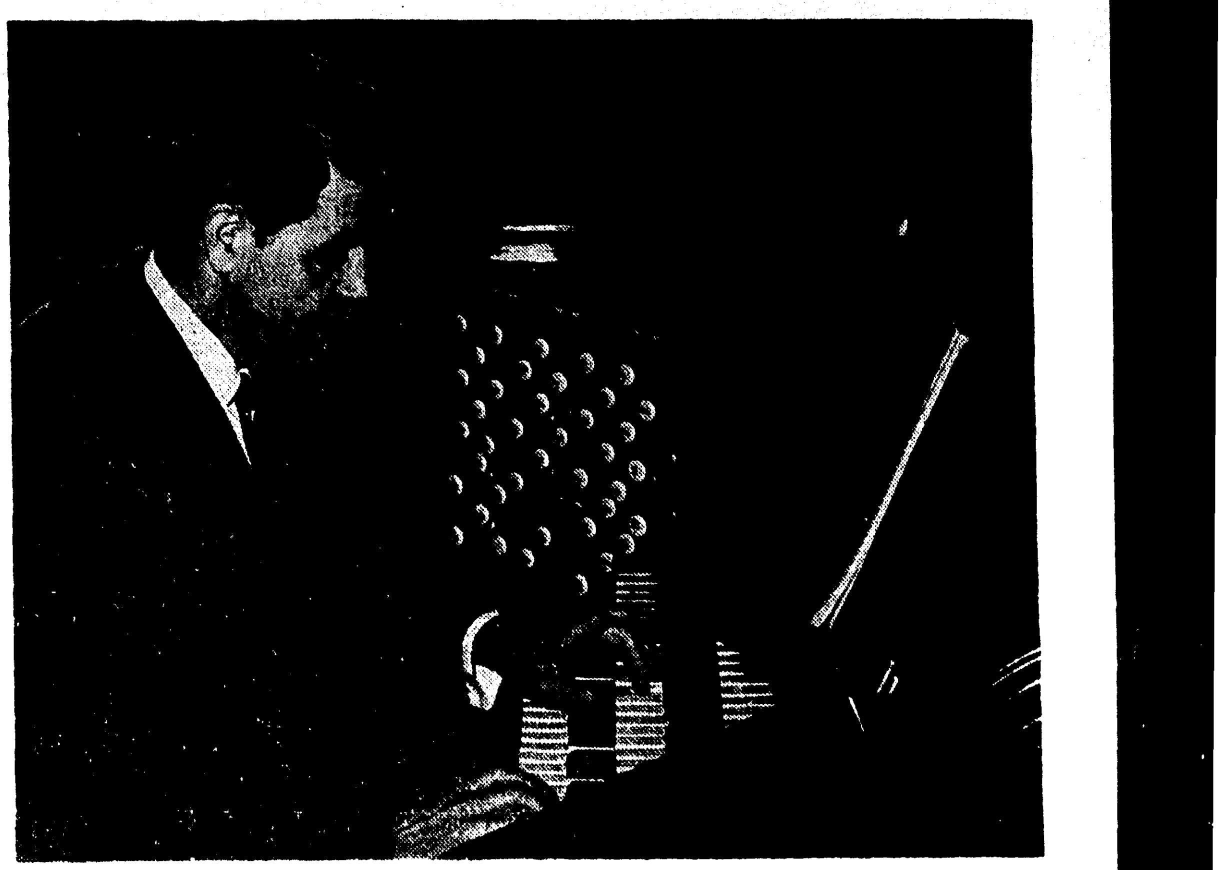
The merger, which has been years under negotiation, would unite the 10 million members of the Methodist Church with the 800,000 members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

It must be approved by two-thirds of the delegates to the annual conferences (regional governing bodies) of both denominations. Most of the conferences will meet during the latter part of May or in June.

The first two conferences to vote approved the merger. A white conference in Wyoming voted 223 to 2 in favor. A Negro conference in Georgia cast 101 yes and 37 no votes. The greater degree of opposition in the Georgia conference reflects uncertainty among Negroes about the workability of the merger plan's provisions for eliminating segregated structures which have long existed in the Methodist church.

Agnelo Cardinal Rossi of Sao Paulo, Brazil, will arrive in the United States next week to plead for more missionary priests to help him minister to the world's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese.

Cardinal Rossi's archdiocese contains 10 million baptized Catholics. Many of them are only nominally attached to the church, however, and an acute shortage of priests makes it difficult to care even for those who are eager to practice their faith. Brazil has one priest to every 6,300 Catholics, compared to 1 for every 775 communicants in the United States.



JOSEPH RUNNING from the University of the South, will be featured in organ recitals today at Grace Episcopal Church.

J. Running In Recital Here Today

The organist, choirmaster and head of the music department at the University of the South, in Sewanee, Tenn., Joseph Running, will give organ recitals at 9:30 a.m. and 11:15 a.m. today at Grace Episcopal Church here, as part of a two-week recital tour.

He was head of the School of Music of Centenary College in Shreveport from 1958 until 1963, when he came to the University of the South. He has taught at San Jose State College, Stanford Univerity, the University of Minnesota, St. Olaf College, Florida State University, and Western Kentucky State College.

IN MANY RECITALS

He has appeared throughout the country as recitalist on both the piano and organ, and as accompanist to several major artists.

Running was educated at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., where he was a member of the famed St. Olaf Choir. He was graduated cum laude. He did graduate study in music at the Philadelphia Conservatory, Standford University and Florida State University. He has completed most of the work for a doctorate in music at Florida State.

A primary function of the organist and choirmaster at the University of the South is to provide liturgical music each Sunday for the services in All Saints' Chapel. He also teaches classes in church music, music history and theory, piano and organ.

Under Running's direction the 34-voice touring unit of the choir also makes an annual spring tour. In appreciation for the support the University receives from the 21 southern dioceses of the Episcopal Church which share ownership in the University, the choir normally tours within these dioceses.

In exchange concerts with women's colleges, the choir also performs classic and modern works, both sacred and secular.

Once Staid Old Church Works With Outcasts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There's a Methodist church on the edge of downtown San Francisco's Tenderloin District that welcomes hippies, Hell's Angels and homosexuals.

The unusual setting for unchurchlike "happenings" is the result of a decision taken six years ago at Glide Memorial Church, formerly a staid old-line house of worship.

Glide's decision was to work with outcasts of all kinds in an attempt to stir up community action.

"We take the hot issues," says the Rev. Lewis Durham, executive director of the Glide Foundation, "the problems too controversial for other church orgainzations to handle."

In his view, big cities are stagnating. They are fragmented into groups cut off from each other, and the church itself is one of the alienated fragments.

The five staff ministers of Glide, aided by interns, set up "dialogues" with the city's isolated segments. The message to them is that they, too, are important members of the community.

"Then we tell them to get up and walk," says Durham, "and be responsible members of the community."

But being responsible, for Durham, doesn't necessarily mean conforming to all the behavior patterns of the San Francisco establishment.

Once the alienated become convinced, Durham says, "they can mobilize tremendous power to do things." In the eye of conservative Methodists, it's a tremendous power for small revolutions.

The result has been a long list of unique organizations in which Glide has been an important factor.

To name a few, there's Vanguard, a group of male prostitutes; Intersection, a center for artists; Citizens Alert, an organization accusing police of brutality; Gateway, a center for orientation of young adults just arrived in the city; Baker House, a half-way house for ex-convicts and addicts, and the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, an effort founded on the notion that homosexuals, too, need religion.

UNUSUAL SERVICES

There was the time John Handy, an avant garde jazz band, provided the music for the Christmas morning service. And the time tourists from Mississippi found Negro comedian Dick Gregory giving the Sunday sermon and walked out.

A recent flap was over a 72-hour "happening" for hippies called "the invisible circus" and planned for 500, with members of the Hell's Angels motorcycle gang scheduled as ushers for the Sabbath morning service.

Five thousand people shouldered into the church, its halls and office. The hippies unexpectedly were joined by neighborhood prostitutes and dope peddlers.

The air was heavy with marijuana. Hippies thumped away on drums, sleepers filled the corners and at 2 a.m., the jammed sanctuary was jumping as never before.

"The situation was explosive, and we got scared," says Durham. The out-of-control crowd was "cooled" by hasty improvisation of some activities far away—at the ocean beach.

"The Gospel doesn't say a thing about getting them to be members," he says. "What we are concerned about is what happens in the lives of those people. We want them to become responsible people, and then if they want to become members, fine."

Ordination To Ministry Is Conducted

JONESBORO (Special) —The Rev. Royce Sylvest, assistant pastor and song director of Jonesboro First Baptist Church was ordained into the Gospel Ministry at the evening worship hour last Sunday.

The Mr. Rev. Sylvest has held his present position for approximately 5½ years. He is a graduate of Louisiana College at Pineville and of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

He served six churches in Louisiana prior to coming to Jonesboro.

The Rev. Mr. Sylvest and his wife, the former Martha Andress of New Orleans, have two sons, David and Danny.

Special guests included Chaplain Captain Glen Evans, Ft. Polk, La., the Rev. S. J. Sylvest, pastor First Baptist Church, Montgomery, the Rev. C. B. (Lum)Ellis, former pastor, and present pastor of Oak Grove Baptist Church, Prairie Ville.

Bible Scholar Refutes 'New Theology' Claims

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

He was old, sick and lonely. But it was not for those reasons that he found it impossible to go on living. He was pushed over the line by a sense of despair which afflicts many other humble Christians in the world today.

He had been reading about the "new theology" and watching its exponents rattle off their glib denials on television. He concluded that men with such impressive degrees and titles must know more than he did. And if they were right—if Jesus did not really rise from the dead and the New Testament was only a bundle of myths—then his life's work as a minister of the Gospel had been founded upon a lie.

His suicide would have attracted little attention outside his own village but for one fact. He had a friend named J. B. Phillips.

He has written a new book called "Ring of Truth" (Macmillan). It was written, he says, in anger—anger at "some of the intellectuals who write so cleverly and devastatingly about the Christian faith" but who "appear to have no personal knowledge of the living God."

"Ring of Truth" is the kind of book that might have saved the old English clergyman from his act of ultimate despair. It is a personal testimony of faith so strong, so confident, so well-informed, so devoid of superstition of obscurantism, that the reader can only find it contagious.

ENLIGHTENING

It will be particularly enlightening to anyone who has gained the impression that all contemporary theologians and Biblical scholars subscribe to the radical skepticism of the Rudolf Bultmanns and John Robinsons. Canon Phillips can match intellectual credentials with any scholar. But 25 years of studying the text of the New Testament have not left him skeptical of its reliability.

On the contrary.

"As the years have passed," he writes, "my conviction has grown that the New Testament is in a quite special sense inspired. It is not magical, nor is it faultless: Human beings wrote it. But by something which I would not hesitate to describe as a miracle, there is a concentration upon that area of inner truth which is fundamental and ageless. That, I believe, is the reason why millions of people have heard the voice of God speaking to them through these seemingly artless pages."

Canon Phillips says he "could not possibly hold the extreme 'fundamentalist' position" which looks upon the very words of the bible has having been infallibly inspired by God.

But he is equally emphatic in rejecting the other extreme of interpretation, which treats New Testament stories as myths rather than accounts of actual, historical events.

"I have read in Greek and Latin, scores of myths. But I did not find the slightest flavor of myth here (in the Greek text of the New Testament).

"There is no hysteria, no careful working for effect, and no attempt at collusion. These are not embroidered tales: the material is cut to the bone. One sensed again and again that understatement which we have been taught to think is more 'British' than oriental. There is an almost childlike candor and simplicity, and the total effect is tremendous.

"No man could ever have invented such a character as Jesus. No man could have set down such artless and vulnerable accounts as these unless some real event lay behind them."

FULLY CONVINCED

There is no doubt in Canon Phillips' mind about the nature of the event.

Generation Gap Bridging Prayer Goal

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In every age since the dawn of history, young people and their elders have had difficulty understanding each other.

This normal and inevitable "generation gap" seems to have grown in recent years even wider than usual. Many parents today find it virtually impossible to communicate with their children—and vice-versa.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Price has good reason to know about the generation gap. He's chaplain of Harvard University and pastor of the famous Memorial Church in Harvard Yard.

SPECIAL PRAYER

"Let us pray that the generation gap may be bridged," he said.

Here is the prayer that he offered:

"If we're on the older side, help us to see what it's like to come of age in an attractive, dangerous, rapidly changing world.

"Help us to remember what it is like to learn what you can do and come to terms with disappointment over what you can't.

"Help us to understand the unwillingness of young people to accept their places in a world they weren't consulted about, how great the challenge is to do better, how near the impulse is to be critical.

"Help us to feel again that fine desire to enjoy the most of every good thing and to sense what it is like when the sky and the future are open.

"If we're on the younger side help us to understand what it's like to be responsible, to invest yourself in a way of life which isn't perfect and hasn't turned out as you had hoped.

"Help us to know what it is like to live with bad mistakes and dirty hands, to live within limits, to settle for some evil in order to accomplish some good.

"Help us to know what it's like to have been surprised and betrayed; to hang one's life on a slender thread, to love a family and do a job, to seek and find—fulfillments on a less than-cosmic scale.

"Turn the hearts of parents to children, and children to parents, and let love flourish among us all.

"For Jesus' sake. Amen."

FLAW OF FAITHFUL

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"The world has no respect for Christians today because it knows we are simply faking it," says the Rev. Dr. Malcolm O. Tolbert of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

He told a student missions conference: "Jesus identified Himself fully with those He came to reach, in their anguish, agony, dirt and disease. We say that we believe in Him, and yet we raise barriers that keep the world from coming in contact with us.

"We must point people to God by our willingness to relate to them. ... God does accept the sinner, and as long as we Christians do not the world will know we're faking."

United Press International

He was old, sick and lonely. But it was not for those reasons that he found it impossible to go on living. He was pushed over the line by a sense of despair which afflicts many other humble Christians in the world today.

He had been reading about the "new theology" and watching its exponents rattle off their glib denials on television. He concluded that men with such impressive degrees and titles must know more than he did. And if they were right—if Jesus did not really rise from the dead and the New Testament was only a bundle of myths—then his life's work as a minister of the Gospel had been founded upon a lie.

His suicide would have attracted little attention outside his own village but for one fact. He had a friend named J. B. Phillips.

Canon Phillips is the great Anglican scholar whose "New Testament in Modern English" is widely regarded as one of the finest Bible translations ever made.

He has written a new book called "Ring of Truth" (Macmillan). It was written, he says, in anger—anger at "some of the intellectuals who write so cleverly and devastatingly about the Christian faith" but who "appear to have no personal knowledge of the living God."

"Ring of Truth" is the kind of book that might have saved the old English clergyman from his act of ultimate despair. It is a personal testimony of faith so strong, so confident, so well-informed, so devoid of superstition of obscurantism, that the reader can only find it contagious.

ENLIGHTENING

It will be particularly enlightening to anyone who has gained the impression that all contemporary theologians and Biblical scholars subscribe to the radical skepticism of the Rudolf Bultmanns and John Robinsons. Canon Phillips can match intellectual credentials with any scholar. But 25 years of studying the text of the New Testament have not left him skeptical of its reliability.

On the contrary.

"As the years have passed," he writes, "my conviction has grown that the New Testament is in a quite special sense inspired. It is not magical, nor is it faultless: Human beings wrote it. But by something which I would not hesitate to describe as a miracle, there is a concentration upon that area of inner truth which is fundamental and ageless. That, I believe, is the reason why millions of people have heard the voice of God speaking to them through these seemingly artless pages."

Canon Phillips says he "could not possibly hold the extreme 'fundamentalist' position" which looks upon the very words of the bible has having been infallibly inspired by God.

But he is equally emphatic in rejecting the other extreme of interpretation, which treats New Testament stories as myths rather than accounts of actual, historical events.

"There is no hysteria, no careful working for effect, and no attempt at collusion. These are not embroidered tales: the material is cut to the bone. One sensed again and again that understatement which we have been taught to think is more 'British' than oriental. There is an almost childlike candor and simplicity, and the total effect is tremendous.

"No man could ever have invented such a character as Jesus. No man could have set down such artless and vulnerable accounts as these unless some real event lay behind them."

FULLY CONVINCED

There is no doubt in Canon Phillips' mind about the nature of the event.

Generation Gap Bridging Prayer Goal

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

In every age since the dawn of history, young people and their elders have had difficulty understanding each other.

This normal and inevitable "generation gap" seems to have grown in recent years even wider than usual. Many parents today find it virtually impossible to communicate with their children—and vice-versa.

The Rev. Dr. Charles Price has good reason to know about the generation gap. He's chaplain of Harvard University and pastor of the famous Memorial Church in Harvard Yard.

SPECIAL PRAYER

"Let us pray that the generation gap may be bridged," he said.

Here is the prayer that he offered:

"Look upon us with mercy, O Lord, and heal the divisions among us caused by our years.

"Those who are young mistrust their elders, and the old can't understand the younger generation.

"If we're on the older side, help us to see what it's like to come of age in an attractive, dangerous, rapidly changing world.

"Help us to remember what it is like to learn what you can do and come to terms with disappointment over what you can't.

"Help us to understand the unwillingness of young people to accept their places in a world they weren't consulted about, how great the challenge is to do better, how near the impulse is to be critical.

"Help us to feel again that fine desire to enjoy the most of every good thing and to sense what it is like when the sky and the future are open.

"If we're on the younger side, help us to understand what it's like to be responsible, to invest yourself in a way of life which isn't perfect and hasn't turned out as you had hoped.

"Help us to know what it is like to live with bad mistakes and dirty hands, to live within limits, to settle for some evil in order to accomplish some good.

"Help us to know what it's like to have been surprised and betrayed; to hang one's life on a slender thread, to love a family and do a job, to seek—and find—fulfillments on a less-than-cosmic scale.

"Turn the hearts of parents to children, and children to parents, and let love flourish among us all.

"For Jesus' sake. Amen."

Festival Of Pentecost Observed By Christians

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Millions of Christians throughout the world will celebrate today the Festival of Pentecost, otherwise known as "the Birthday of the Church."

Pentecost commemorates the event described in the 2nd chapter of the book of Acts, when the disciples were filled with "power from on high" to go forth boldly and proclaim the Gospel.

The invisible but powerfully-felt presence which came into their midst that day has ever since been known in the church as "the Holy Spirit."

In a message that will be read today from thousands of pulpits, the seven presidents of the World Council of Churches affirm that the Holy Spirit is still at work in the church.

"We are very sure that we can discern the prompting and power of the Holy Spirit in the present searching of mind and conscience among God's people," their joint statement says.

"More churches are asking themselves more of the hard questions. More are alert to the times. More are uncomfortable with the facts about rich and poor nations. More are learning to distinguish between national interests and God's will for the whole world."

The United Church of Christ, which has been waging a campaign for fair treatment of Negroes in radio-tv news broadcasts and public affairs programs, is now tackling job discrimination in broadcasting.

In a petition filed with the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), the big Protestant denomination has proposed that "all broadcast licensees be required to furnish satisfactory evidence at least annually that they do not discriminate in employment practices on the basis of race, color, religion or national origin."

"Discrimination in the employment of personnel who appear before television cameras or who otherwise participate in radio and television programming, sets a conspicuous public example of unfairness," the petition asserts. "Such discrimination therefore tends to defeat national policy."

Major protestant, Catholic and Jewish organizations have thrown interfaith support behind legislation, pending in the U.S. House of Representatives, to give farm workers the same collective bargaining rights accorded to industrial workers by the national labor relations act.

Rabbi Richard G. Hirsch, director of the Religious Action Center of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, told a House Labor Subcommittee that the plight of migrant and domestic farm laborers has long been a concern of religious groups. They are the Americans "least able to protect themselves," he said, and they "have been afforded the least protection by society."

The fate of a proposed merger between two major Protestant denominations will be decided within the next six weeks.

The merger, which has been years under negotiation, would unite the 10 million members of the Methodist Church with the 800,000 members of the Evangelical United Brethren Church.

It must be approved by two-thirds of the delegates to the annual conferences (regional governing bodies) of both denominations. Most of the conferences will meet during the latter part of May or in June.

The first two conferences to vote approved the merger. A white conference in Wyoming voted 223 to 2 in favor. A Negro conference in Georgia cast 101 yes and 37 no votes. The greater degree of opposition in the Georgia conference reflects uncertainty among Negroes about the workability of the merger plan's provisions for eliminating segregated structures which have long existed in the Methodist church.

Agnelo Cardinal Rossi of Sao Paulo, Brazil, will arrive in the United States next week to plead for more missionary priests to help him minister to the world's largest Roman Catholic archdiocese.

Cardinal Rossi's archdiocese contains 10 million baptized Catholics. Many of them are only nominally attached to the church, however, and an acute shortage of priests makes it difficult to care even for those who are eager to practice their faith. Brazil has one priest to every 6,300 Catholics, compared to 1 for every 775 communicants in the United States.

Once Staid Old Church Works With Outcasts

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — There's a Methodist church on the edge of downtown San Francisco's Tenderloin District that welcomes hippies, Hell's Angels and homosexuals.

The unusual setting for unchurchlike "happenings" is the result of a decision taken six years ago at Glide Memorial Church, formerly a staid old-line house of worship.

Glide's decision was to work with outcasts of all kinds in an attempt to stir up community action.

"We take the hot issues," says the Rev. Lewis Durham, executive director of the Glide Foundation, "the problems too controversial for other church orgainzations to handle.

In his view, big cities are stagnating. They are fragmented into groups cut off from each other, and the church itself is one of the alienated fragments.

The five staff ministers of Glide, aided by interns, set up "dialogues" with the city's isolated segments. The message to them is that they, too, are important members of the community.

"Then we tell them to get up and walk," says Durham, "and be responsible members of the community."

But being responsible, for Durham, doesn't necessarily mean conforming to all the behavior patterns of the San Francisco establishment.

Once the alienated become convinced, Durham says, "they can mobilize tremendous power to do things." In the eye of conservative Methodists, it's a tremendous power for small revolutions.

The result has been a long list of unique organizations in which Glide has been an important factor.

To name a few, there's Vanguard, a group of male prostitutes; Intersection, a center for artists; Citizens Alert, an organization accusing police of brutality; Gateway, a center for orientation of young adults just arrived in the city; Baker House, a half-way house for ex-convicts and addicts, and the Council on Religion and the Homosexual, an effort founded on the notion that homosexuals, too, need religion.

UNUSUAL SERVICES

There was the time John Handy, an avant garde jazz band, provided the music for the Christmas morning service. And the time tourists from Mississippi found Negro comedian Dick Gregory giving the Sunday sermon and walked out.

A recent flap was over a 72-hour "happening" for hippies, called "the invisible circus" and planned for 500, with members of the Hell's Angels motorcycle gang scheduled as ushers for the Sabbath morning service.

The event was ruined by its own success, and Durham says, "it turned out to be our biggest mistake."

Five thousand people shouldered into the church, its halls and office. The hippies unexpectedly were joined by neighborhood prostitutes and dope peddlers.

The air was heavy with marijuana. Hippies thumped away on drums, sleepers filled the corners and at 2 a.m., the jammed sanctuary was jumping as never before.

"The situation was explosive, and we got scared," says Durham. The out-of-control crowd was "cooled" by hasty improvisation of some activities far away—at the ocean beach.

"The Gospel doesn't say a thing about getting them to be members," he says. "What we are concerned about is what happens in the lives of those people. We want them to become responsible people, and then if they want to become members, fine."

Ordination To Ministry Is Conducted

JONESBORO (Special) —The Rev. Royce Sylvest, assistant pastor and song director of Jonesboro First Baptist Church was ordained into the Gospel Ministry at the evening worship hour last Sunday.

The Mr. Rev. Sylvest has held his present position for approximately 5½ years. He is a graduate of Louisiana College at Pineville and of New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

He served six churches in Louisiana prior to coming to Jonesboro.

The Rev. Mr. Sylvest and his wife, the former Martha Andress of New Orleans, have two sons, David and Danny.

Special guests included Chaplain Captain Glen Evans, Ft. Polk, La., the Rev. S. J. Sylvest, pastor First Baptist Church, Montgomery, the Rev. C. B. (Lum)Ellis, former pastor, and present pastor of Oak Grove Baptist Church, Prairie Ville.

Immediately following the ordination ceremony, a reception honoring the Rev. and Mrs. Sylvest, was held in Fellowship Hall.

At this time of year, parties for graduates [illegible] number even those for brides. Their [illegible] season, though only two or three short weeks in duration, can and does count dozens of affairs large and small.

A lovely party was that planned Wednesday by CAMILLE and ROBERT WOOD and their daughter NANCY, honoring MARY ATKINSON. About thirty Neville seniors were invited for a patio supper at the Wood residence on Deborah Drive. Candles burning in hurricane shades were placed in flower beds around the house, lighting the way to the patio in the rear garden.

Wrought iron candelabra stood on individual tables set up on the patio and the veranda. Candles [illegible] and concealed lights created a fairyland effect in the dining area.

Refreshments were served from a buffet table centered with [illegible]. The menu [illegible] of roast beef with marinade sauce [illegible] beans, potato salad and for dessert, a [illegible] of chocolate eclairs or cream puffs. Following the dinner there was dancing to the stereo.

[illegible] a conversational hour given for MARY BASS and DONNA SMITH Wednesday afternoon at [illegible]. Arrangements [illegible] cutout figures lining the drive and leading the way to the garden at the rear of the house. A [illegible] and rolled diplomas ornamented the table [illegible].

"Way You Look Tonight". Decorations included masses of magnolia foliage used as background for king-size crepe paper flowers. The committee which made arrangements were FRANK WALKER, JENNY JACKSON, AL WHITE, and JEFF LINER. Several hundred young people attended.

A luncheon at her home on [illegible] Street was the compliment planned by MRS. W. E. EVANS for her niece, Neville senior FLOYE MATHIS. Twelve guests were seated at a table centered [illegible] with a silver bowl filled with pink roses. At each place was a white sachet pillow, monogrammed in pink.

Gayest party of the week for grown-ups was the cocktail-buffet hosted Thursday evening by KATHERINE and BILLY BOLES. Spring flowers including Gerber daisies, Dutch iris and stock were used in arrangements throughout the reception area in the house and in the patio. About one hundred guests from Monroe drove to the Boles Rayville home for the party.

A family weekend at Six Flags Over Texas was the treat planned by CODY and PHIL ROSAMUND for their sons JIM and CHARLES. The four went over last Friday evening late, returning to Monroe Sunday.

Arriving yesterday for a visit with her mother, MAE WOOTEN, and sister, ANNA SLAGLE, on South Grand street, was CHING (Mrs. Melvin) VAUGHAN of Aurora, Ohio. Ching comes here from Atlanta, where she made the acquaintance of her new grandson, THOMAS WINN KISTLER, son of the former MARIA VAUGHAN.

The annual open meeting of the Review Club is planned for tomorrow afternoon at the home of BOBBIE INABNET on DeSiard road. ELSIE MAPP will give a book review.

...On Dit...

by Marillyn Taylor

At this time of year, parties for graduates outnumber even those for brides. Their "social season," though only two or three short weeks in duration, can and does count dozens of affairs large and small.

A lovely party was that planned Wednesday by CAMILLE and ROBERT WOOD and their daughter NANCY, honoring MARY ATKINSON. About thirty Neville seniors were invited for a patio supper at the Wood residence on Deborah Drive. Candles burning in hurricane shades were placed in flowerbeds around the house, lighting the way to the patio in the rear gardens.

Wrought iron candelabra stood on individual tables set up on the patio and the veranda. Candles, votives and concealed lights created a fairyland effect in the dining area.

Refreshments were served from a buffet table centered with blue iris. The menu included roast beef with marinade sauce or barbecue; baked beans; potato salad; and for dessert, a choice of chocolate eclairs or cream puffs. Following dinner, there was dancing to the stereo.

Fifty-five senior girls attended a conversational hour given for MARY BASS and DONA SMITH Wednesday afternoon at 2107 Sherwood. Arriving guests found cartoon cutout figures lining the drive and leading the way to the gardens at the rear of the house. A silhouette of a girl graduate and rolled diplomas ornamented the table where the guests registered.

Refreshments were served al fresco from a table covered with a graduation cloth. Centerpiece was a hurricane shade, turned on its side and spilling a profusion of yellow chrysanthemums tied with black and gold ribbon and highlighted with mortarboards.

CARROLL HUSTED was named guest of honor when JEAN GIFFEN and LUCILLE CARROLL entertained at a conversational hour Thursday morning. All Neville senior girls were invited to the party between ten-thirty and noon in the Giffen home on Deborah drive.

Centering the dining room table was an epergne overflowing with yellow daisies and chrysanthemums. Carrol's grandmothers, MAE MICKEL and IRMA HUSTED served a choice of lemonade or bottled soft drinks. Other goodies on the buffet menu included chicken salad sandwiches, cucumber sandwiches, chocolate squares with almond icing, praline cookies, and sand tarts.

Two parties for seniors have been planned for SALLIE SUDDUTH at the Sudduth home on Frances Place. Boys and girls were invited for supper and dancing last Friday evening; eighty girls for swimming this Wednesday afternoon.

Twenty-five couples attended the former party, which began with swimming and supper. The menu included hamburgers, hot dogs, and barbecued ribs with all the trimmings. Later there was dancing to the stereo on the patio. . . For Wednesday's party, a refreshment table was set up at poolside. Here the centerpiece was of spring flowers, with yellow napkins printed "Neville graduate, 1967". Bottled drinks were served from a wheelbarrow bedded with ice.

Parties have been on a somewhat slower schedule this weekend, with thirty-three senior girls who are Tigerettes out of town on the group's annual trip. They left late Thursday night by bus for Panama City, Florida, are due home tonight.

LIONETTES OF Ouachita Parish High school had their trip last weekend. Some forty members of the marching squad went by bus to Ocean Springs, Mississippi, where they were guests at Gulf Hills Dude ranch from Thursday until Sunday.

Ten Lionettes, with their dates, attended the senior party, Friday night aboard the JAMES TRIPP houseboat. The groups went up the river to Long John Beach for a late evening picnic. Chaperones were the Tripps and the MARK BOATRIGHTS.

Since a Junior-Senior prom is no longer included in the year's festivities, a committee of Neville juniors organized a private party this year to which seniors could be invited. The affair was held on the Frances hotel roof last Saturday night, with Music for dancing provided by the "Blue Shadows" of Shreveport. Carrying out the theme, "The Way You Look Tonight", decorations included masses of magnolia foliage used as background for king-size crepe paper flowers. The committee which made arrangements were FRANK WALKER, JENNY JACKSON, AL WHITE, and JEFF LINER. Several hundred young people attended.

A luncheon at her home on Civic Street was the compliment planned by MRS. W. B. EVANS for her niece, Neville senior FLOYE MATHIS. Twelve guests were seated at a table covered with Swiss linen and centered with a silver bowl filled with pink roses. At each place was a white sachet pillow, monogrammed in pink.

Gayest party of the week for grown-ups was the cocktail-buffet hosted Thursday evening by KATHERINE and BILLY BOLES. Spring flowers, including Gerber daisies, Dutch iris and stock, were used in arrangements throughout the reception area in the house and on the patio. About one hundred guests from Monroe drove to the Boles' Rayville home for the party.

Honoring YVONNE ANDERSON on her birthday, BETTY HASTINGS was hostess at a surprise luncheon. Fourteen guests attended the party in the Hastings home on Deborah drive.

A brass bowl filled with Shasta daisies and daylilies formed the centerpiece for the dining room table, where guests were seated. The menu included shrimp curry, asparagus and peach flambe . . . and birthday cake, of course: a somber black, expressing condolences for the number of candles.

A family weekend at Six Flags Over Texas was the treat planned by CODY and PHIL ROSAMUND for their sons JIM and CHARLES. The four went over last Friday evening late, returning to Monroe Sunday.

Arriving yesterday for a visit with her mother, MAE WOOTEN, and sister, ANNA SLAGLE, on South Grand street, was CHING (Mrs. Melvin) VAUGHAN of Aurora, Ohio. Ching comes here from Atlanta, where she made the acquaintance of her new grandson, THOMAS WINN KISTLER, son of the former MARIA VAUGHAN.

HELP FOR HOMEMAKERS

DEAR HELOISE:
When baking a whole chicken, take the skin from the neck in one piece and slip it over the end of the drumsticks to hold them close to the bird.

It is much easier than tying, and the drumsticks will be juicier.

Mary

* * *

Heloise

BOX SPRING COVERS

DEAR HELOISE:

It's such a task to remove a muslin box spring or mattress cover for laundering.

So I use two fitted sheets instead of a regular mattress cover. I put one on the bottom of the mattress first and bring it up around the sides; then I put the other sheet on the top and tuck it over the sides of the bottom sheet and under the mattress.

DEAR HELOISE:

One day the children confiscated my plastic measuring cups for making mud pies in the back yard, and I needed them to measure shortening for my baking.

I remembered that my ice cream scoop holds exactly one-quarter of a cup. What a breeze to measure the vegetable shortening for pie crusts. No more scraping the gooey mess from cups. Just scoop and plop (level each scoop).

Rosemary Otto

DEAR HELOISE:

When your playing cards get old or sticky and do not slide when shuffling and dealing, try this and you will be surprised.

Toss the cards in a shopping bag with some talcum powder. Shake the bag well and stir several times with your hand. Take the cards out of the bag and riffle several times to shake off the loose powder. They will handle much better after this powder treatment.

This is my own idea and it works.

S. J. Newcomer

DEAR HELOISE:

I use a heavy plastic shower curtain on a picnic table.

Nellie Strayer

DEAR HELOISE:

Recently, I was sick in bed for several days and discovered a good way to keep from knocking over my water glass and the bottles of medicine on my night stand.

I pulled out the drawer of my night stand just far enough so that the glass and bottles would stand in it, and put them in the drawer. This way, if I tossed around in my sleep, there was no danger of my knocking over anything that might have been standing on top of the night table.

Mom thought it was a good idea and said I should send it to you.

Bill Dean

DEAR HELOISE:

Pin a small card or envelope addressed to yourself (with your phone number) inside your coat pocket.

You can quickly determine which coat is yours, and someone else getting your coat by mistake will know you are the owner.

Mrs. W. W.

DEAR HELOISE:

I hate to spend a lot of money on tablecloths for everyday use, so I buy cotton yardage (prints, plain or whatever I see that I like) on sale. I then fringe the ends and have a beautiful, inexpensive tablecloth with fringed napkins to match.

I find these are much easier to iron than linen or thicker cotton tablecloths.

Mrs. Earl Thompson

DEAR HELOISE:

I had a hard time vacuuming the lint off my black couch, so I took an old rolling pin and wrapped some masking tape all the way around it, sticky side out.

I now roll the pin all over the couch, and it picks up the lint.

M. E. J.

DEAR HELOISE:

Before opening a stick of butter, I make notches at the "one tablespoon" marks through the paper into the butter. The dents show when the butter is unwrapped, and I can cut off an exact tablespoonful.

Good for those watching their diets.

Helen Crain

DEAR HELOISE:

When a small child with a bandaged hand or finger persists in pulling or biting off the bandage, pull a clean cotton sock over his hand and arm and pin it to the tot's undershirt with about three small pins. Then pull on his outer shirt.

A. M. M.

DEAR HELOISE:

I wonder how many people realize just how handy their stove timer can be. I have a wringer-type washer and use the timer for each load. This is especially handy when hanging clothes on the line in the summer. One can hear the bell quite clearly and know it's time to stop the washer.

I use this timer also for baby's formula, medicine taking, to keep appointments (if I have to make a telephone call at a certain time), etc.

Marian Holladay.

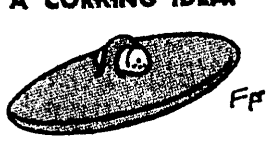
A CORKING IDEA



DEAR HELOISE:

I have enamel and aluminum saucepans with lids. When I am cooking with these pans and I want to lift the lids the metal bar handles are hot of course.

To prevent burning my fingers I wedge a large cork under the lid handle. Now, by lifting the cork between my thumb and index finger, I don't touch the hot metal handle.
